Firemen crawl through flames to save women

Two Ontario women were seriously burned and two firefighters injured in a $5,000 apartment fire at 1026 W. G St., in Ontario early this morning.

Mrs. Ella Wood, 86, and her daughter Mrs. Dorothy Knudsen, 59, tenants of the two-bedroom apartment, suffered second-and third-degree burns over their heads and shoulders and smoke inhalation in the 3 a.m. fire.

Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Knudsen were both admitted to Doctors Hospital shortly after they were brought out of the burning apartment. Mrs. Knudsen was listed in fair condition and her mother in critical condition at the Montclair hospital.

Also injured in the fire and rescue were firemen Dick Ellsberry who suffered first degree burns on his legs while crawling on his stomach to bring the women out and Battalion Chief Jack Welch who suffered a strained back.

Capt. Welch said this morning that the fire was reported about 3:05 a.m. by a neighbor of the victims. When firemen arrived on the scene the back bedroom where Mrs. Knudsen was sleeping was totally engulfed in flames and smoke filled the entire apartment. Firemen crawled through the flames and smoke into the second bedroom where they found the two women unconscious on a bed. Paramedics called to the scene said that Mrs. Knudsen was not breathing when firemen brought her out. Her breathing was restored and both women were rushed to the hospital.

Welch said that Mrs. Knudsen apparently was awakened by the smoke and fire and ran to a telephone to call the neighbor who reported the fire. The younger woman ran into her mother's bedroom to assist her and was overcome by smoke.

Chief Fire Inspector Rick Leb said this morning that the fire m have been caused by an electri short in an electric blanket be used by Mrs. Knudsen.

Lebell said that the fire was s under investigation.

Fireman Ellsberry and Ca Welch were treated for their inj ies and returned to duty.

A new tax initiative by Watson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — County Tax Assessor Philip Watson has begun another march to lower property taxes with an initiative that would take school and welfare financing off the property tax.

The drive is the assessor's third such attempt in eight years, and offers a special tax break to homeowners and renters, Watson said Wednesday.

Watson failed in similar attempts in 1968 and 1972, but said of his latest effort "I do think this one will make it. The volunteer groups are pouring in."

Voters were "scared off" from the other attempts when schools made an "enormous" expenditure on anti-initiative literature sent home with schoolchildren, Watson said.

This time, though, Watson thinks the public is ready for the initiative, which needs 600,000 signitures to qualify for the June 1978 ballot.

Thousands of property owners in Los Angeles received higher assessments this week along with notices blaming the hike on increased property values.

In light of that, Watson said, the initiative "will be qualified by Christmas."

The measure calls for limiting taxes to $6 per $100 of assessed valuation compared to the present rate of $14.20, prevalent in much of Los Angeles County.

Homeowners — and in turn, renters — would be given a break by a provision calling for the assessment of residential property at 20 per cent of value, while keeping assessment of commercial property at 25 per cent, Watson said.

Asked who would pay for welfare and education, Watson said, "That's the legislature's problem. They created the problem of welfare finance, let them solve it."

Dolphins beaching, dying in Florida

CASEY KEY, Fla. (AP) — "We couldn't get to them all. There were so many, we couldn't keep up with them," says one beach resident, among dozens who tried to rescue a school of dolphins from the mammals' own instincts.

By the dozens, the spinner dolphins have been beaching themselves here, near Sarasota on the Gulf Coast, since Tuesday. Scientists say they don't know why, but it may be because some of the animals have an epidemic disease. Such beachings are rare among spinner dolphins.

By late Wednesday at least 22 had died on the beach.

"It was sad," said the beach resident, Peter Darling, after a day of hectic effort Wednesday. "The dolphins were just laying there in the surf. We'd take them out about 50 feet and when we'd let them go, they'd turn right around and come back in.

"The ones we had time for we'd scratch their stomachs and that seemed to calm them.

"They were squeaking. Talking to each other, especially the little ones; fretting. We quit when there weren't any live ones left."

The 100-150 pound spinner dolphins, a deep-water species, are part of a school that may be as large as 150. Marine scientists said there would likely be more small groups beaching in the next few days.

Spokesmen at Mote Marine Laboratory on nearby Siesta Key said autopsies were being performed on some of the bodies.

Dr. James Mead, a marine mammal specialist from the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, and Dr. David O'Bell of the University of Miami's marine lab, were guiding the investigation.

Carter picks Mondale as VP after capturing nomination

NEW YORK (AP) — Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter acted today to complete the Democratic ticket by designating Sen. Walter F. Mondale as his choice for the vice-presidential nomination. Carter's decision will be ratified at tonight's closing session of the Democratic National Convention.

Asked why he had settled on Mondale, Carter said he had found "a remarkable compatibility between his stands on the issues and my own."

Mondale described Carter as "an uncommon man, terribly gifted, committed, experienced, ready, but, above all, a good man and I'm proud and honored to be a part of this team."

Carter kept his choice a secret until the moment, a few minutes after 10 a.m., EDT, when he strode into the Royal Ballroom of the Americana Hotel to make his announcement.

It was the only suspenseful moment in a convention that belonged totally to the man from Plains, Ga., whose capture of the nomination the night before represented one of the most remarkable coups in American political history.

About an hour before Carter left his suite for the press conference, he received a telephone call from President Ford, who is fighting to be the Republican nominee whom Carter will run against.

According to White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, Ford told Carter he hoped the campaign could be conducted on "a high level" and "I look forward to a good contest this fall."

The vice-presidential selection process was drawn out over 30 days during which Carter said he changed his mind three times.

"This has been, as you can well imagine, one of the most difficult decisions I have had to make," he told the news conference. "But I have absolutely no doubt that this is the right decision."

Carter called the Minnesota senator "the best person to lead this country if something should happen to me." He added that Mondale has "a very clear concept of what the presidency should be."

Mondale arrived at the Americana during Carter's news conference. He was accompanied by his wife, Joan.

Carter said Mondale had suffered from mild hypertension, but that "since he has been taking medication he has had no problem."

Carter said Mondale's medical records had been examined by a doctor and they showed nothing unusual for a 48-year-old man.

With his wife at his side, Mondale joined Carter at the ballroom podium and said, "I am proud and honored to be a part of this team."

Asked about his trip to Plains where he was interviewed by Carter, Mondale said they had a long talk about the role of the vice president in a Carter administration.

"I was not interested in a ceremonial post," the senator said. "I was pleased to see he plans to use his vice president in a broad range of responsibilities."

"I am determined to put major responsibilities on the head of the vice president," Carter told the news conference.

Mondale said he expects Carter to be president for eight years. "I am not taking this job with the expectation of becoming president," he added.

Two years ago, Mondale made an exploratory run at the presidency but dropped the idea when he failed to generate widespread support.

Carter said that in the last few days "I have had very serious allegations" made against the senators on his final list but that no evidence was found to support the charges.

"I don't know of anything that would have been embarrassing to any of the six," he said.

After the delegates ratify Carter's choice of Mondale they will hear acceptance speeches from the two nominees and then adjourn.

They will leave Madison Square Garden more united than they have been in years and hopeful of regaining control of the White House after eight years of Republican administrations.

Since the last primary election June 8, there was no doubt who the Democratic presidential nominee would be.

Carter was born Oct. 1, 19[illegible] grew up in Plains, Ga., a town whose last census count was under [illegible] graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy and began a naval career. He resigned his commission in 1953 after the death of his father.

Returning to Plains, he managed the family peanut farm and warehousing interests, but in 1962 entered public life with a seat in the Georgia Senate. Four years later he ran for governor and lost, but tried again in 1970 and won, serving from 1970 through 1974.

With nothing but political obscurity ahead for a governor who by state law could not succeed himself, Carter looked toward national politics and began putting together a presidential campaign organization drawing from advisers and friends from his days as governor.

Terrorist group makes good its threat

Nazi war criminal slain in French villa

PARIS (AP) — A group calling itself "The Avengers" claimed responsibility today for the killing of convicted Nazi war criminal Joachim Peiper, who was burned to death Wednesday in his isolated villa in eastern France.

An anonymous caller told the Paris newspaper Aurore that Peiper, a former aide to Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler and personal bodyguard to Adolf Hitler, was killed by "The Avengers." The group said in pamphlets distributed last month it would kill Peiper on July 14, Bastille Day.

"Our vengeance will touch not only the Nazis hiding in France but also those who think they are safe in Germany," the caller said.

Police said they suspected members of the old French resistance movement in World War II organized the killing, but said there were no clues to identify the killers.

Peiper, 61, apparently fought a gun battle with attackers who surrounded the villa and finally set it on fire with Molotov cocktails.

Peiper was sentenced to death by an American war crimes tribunal at Dachau in 1946 for killing 71 American prisoners of war during the battle of the Ardennes. Witnesses testified he ordered his tanks to mow the men down with machine guns. The death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment in 1951 and he was released from prison in 1957.

He afterward came legally to France.

Peiper was also accused of commanding the SS unit that destroyed the village of Boves in northern Italy in a reprisal operation in 1944, killing more than 30 inhabitants. Proceedings against him were dropped by Italian authorities for lack of evidence.

The French Communist party launched a campaign last month for Peiper's expulsion from France, but Communist officials said they had nothing to do with the killing.

The Avengers group first came to public attention when eight hooded men gave a news conference in a Paris hotel in April 1975. They denounced what they called the impunity of certain war criminals, including Peiper, and threatened to kill them. Reporters said one of the men had a Nazi concentration camp number tattooed on his wrist.

Peiper was living in a house he built himself near the village of Traves, eight miles west of Vesoul.

When he was warned he would be killed on July 14, he sent his wife and daughters to Germany and remained in the house with his two dogs. The dogs were found roaming in the nearby woods after the fire.

Police said the assailants surrounded the house from all sides in the early hours of July 14 while Peiper tried to defend himself with his arsenal of guns.

Peiper's nearest neighbors, living several hundred yards away, heard the shooting and called police but when help arrived Peiper's charred body was unrecognizable. It was some time before positive identification could be made.

LEAVING COURTROOM

Edward Charles Allaway, 37, a university custodian at Cal State Fullerton, leaves court at Santa Ana Wednesday after pleas of innocent to charges of murdering seven persons in a campus shooting at Fullerton Monday.

Allaway pleads innocent; death sentence sought

SANTA ANA (AP) — The prosecution says it will seek the death penalty for Edward Charles Allaway, who has pleaded innocent to murder charges in the slaying of seven persons in a university library.

Allaway, handcuffed and shackled, stood silently Wednesday as Deputy Public Defender Ron Butler entered the innocent pleas to seven counts of murder, two counts of assault with intent to commit murder and two counts of assault with a deadly weapon.

Deputy Dist. Atty. James Enright said that under California law a defendant can be given the death penalty if the jury returns guilty verdicts on more than one charge of murder.

The prosecution and defense agreed to waive a Grand Jury indictment and Municipal Court Judge Robert E. Law set a preliminary hearing for July 28.

The assault counts against Allaway result from the wounding of two persons who survived the rifle attack in the library at California State University Fullerton, on Monday.

Monica Silbas, 17, an eyewitness to the slayings, locked herself in the library's basement and went into a state of shock, officials said. A spokesman at Mercy General Hospital said she was in guarded condition Wednesday.

A high school senior from Santa Ana, Miss Silbas was attending a special summer program at the university. By Tuesday, she had uttered a few words from her hospital bed. A psychiatrist said it may take "three days, three weeks or three months" for her to recover from the shock.

Police, seeking a motive for the crime, were told by witnesses that they saw Allaway enter the library screaming references to his estranged wife. He then allegedly opened fire, authorities said.

Bonnie Allaway, 23, acting as her own lawyer, filed for divorce last Friday.

Canners reach stall in talks

By The Associated Press

A stall in negotiations has escalated the danger of a cannery workers' walkout that could virtually paralyze the state's multi-million dollar fruit and vegetable canning industry in the middle of its peak season.

The talks in Palo Alto between canners and 13 Teamsters locals reached an impasse on Wednesday, according to management's chief negotiator.

"There are more than 40 issues unresolved in addition to the basic matter of wages," said John Scalone, president of the California Processors Inc., a coalition covering 95 per cent of the canning industry in the state.

Harrises, Patty viewed as clumsy

Inept but courteous at crime—witnesses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five prosecution witnesses have portrayed William and Emily Harris and Patricia Hearst as inept but courteous car thieves who brandished machine guns and promised to return their autos.

Miss Hearst was remembered by one man as "very quiet," holding her gun and waiting for Harris to take a car as they fled the scene of a May 16, 1974, shooting.

In the fast-moving day of prosecution testimony Wednesday, the fugitive trio emerged characterized as clumsy at crime, leaving a trail of stolen cars and eyewitnesses across Los Angeles.

The trial's star prosecution witness, alleged kidnap victim Thomas Dean Matthews, began the story of his encounter with the trio and was to resume the stand today.

The Harrises are charged with kidnaping, assault and robbery with Miss Hearst as their absent codefendant.

Each car-theft victim told jurors that Harris announced boldly, "We're from the SLA," the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army which had kidnaped Miss Hearst Feb. 4, 1974.

And all said they called police who arrived minutes after the Harrises and Miss Hearst left. Despite the trail of clues, officers didn't find them and the trio remained at large for nearly two years.

Thomas Patin Jr. remembered the newspaper heiress standing in front of his house that spring afternoon holding a machine gun.

"The lady was wearing a black natural wig, very pale and thin in appearance and very quiet," he said. "I have seen pictures of her...It was Patricia Hearst."

Patin's elderly father, who turned over the keys to his old station wagon, said the trio frightened him. "I was scared and afraid of getting my stomach blowed out to pieces," he said.

But he noted that Harris told him, "Don't worry about the car. We'll drop it off." Then, he said, Harris waited for him to remove the car keys from a key ring and paused in the escape to let Patin Sr. pull an electric grass edger from the back seat.

The Harrises, who did much of their own cross-examination of witnesses, say they intended only to "borrow" the cars, not steal them.

Scientists now working on Viking II

PASADENA (AP) — With Viking I still on schedule for a Mars landing on Tuesday, mission officials are debating a crucial decision involving its sister probe, Viking II.

The question is where to aim the second space craft for its scheduled Sept. 4 landing — north at a site near Mars' polar region or south of the equator near an awesome, rugged canyon.

Viking II, streaking towards Mars and currently about 3.3 million miles from the planet, is set to swing into an orbit around Mars about July 25. Well before then, a decision will be made on whether to send it northward, toward a site called Cydonia, or south toward a branch of the canyon called Capri.

On Wednesday, with Viking I coasting in its orbit and taking a day off from photography, top mission officials and scientists held a long meeting on the Viking II question.

They plan to announce a tentative decision Saturday.

A Viking II landing in the northern latitude might, among other things, yield a better chance of finding liquid water and consequently signs of Martian life.

But the northern area is inaccesible to Earth-base radar, which is one of the tools for determining how rough the area might be. The Capri site is believed to be almost bone-dry, but has been checked by radar and looks fairly smooth and there perhaps safer.

A host of other considerations, both engineering and scientific, will be weighed before a decision is made, said Dr. B. Gentry Lee, one of the mission directors.

Another factor that won't be known until Tuesday is whether Viking I lands safely or crashes on the dusty surface. A success with the first landing could allow for boldness with the second attempt.

Plenty of work remains to be done for Tuesday's landing. One task was to send new information to the computer aboard the robot vehicle that will guide it during its descent. Lee said the computer must be given new information because it is still primed with data for its original landing site.

Campaign spending report shows how incumbents fared

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state's new campaign spending figures illustrate an old story — them that's got shall get.

The Fair Political Practices Commission reported Wednesday on how $11 million was contributed to legislative and ballot measure campaigns in the June 8 primary. There were no surprises.

As usual, most incumbents got far more contributions than nonincumbents, and the candidates who raised the most money generally won — 49 out of 65 contested primaries in the Assembly, 17 of 21 in the Senate.

Special-interest spending, which comprised $6 million of the total, was heavily stacked for incumbents.

The Bankers Responsible Government Committee, as an extreme example, divided $57,000 among 81 incumbents and two non-incumbents. The California Dental Association gave $99,000 to 72 incumbents and 12 non-incumbents.

The report, covering the campaigns' next-to-last reporting period two weeks before the election, also showed that Prop. 15, the defeated nuclear initiative, was approaching a state spending record.

Final figures next month are certain to show the Prop. 15 campaign to be the most expensive ever for a ballot measure in California, the FPPC said.

Foes of the measure reported raising more than $3.7 million and spending $3.2 million. Supporters reported raising nearly $1.6 million and spending $1.1 million.

Most of the opponents were utility and construction companies. The largest donor, Pacific Gas & Electric Co., reported spending $431,008 against Prop. 15. Bechtel Corp. spent another $323,000. Ford, General Motors and numerous out-of state power companies also contributed heavily.

Prop. 15 support came mostly from small donors and such fundraising events as rock concerts, but there were several large donations, including $60,000 from William Brinton and $50,000 from Victoria Ward.

The current ballot measure spending record is $4.8 million in 1956 for and against Prop. 4, a measure on oil company drilling regulations. In that race, the bigger spender lost.

In all, Assembly candidates raised about $3.7 million and Senate candidates about $1.9 million.

The biggest donations came from the California State Employes Association, $147,000, and the California Teachers Association, $133,000.

Major money-raisers included Assemblyman John Briggs, R-Fullerton, who collected $229,000 for an easy Senate primary win, and Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, who got $135,000 help in brushing off two primary opponents.

But some of the most expensive campaigns were losers.

A notable example was Fred Furth, who reported raising $211,$$$, much of it from his own law firm, for a Democratic Senate campaign in San Francisco.

He was narrowly beaten in the primary by Supervisor Robert Mendelsohn, who raised $68,000. Mendelsohn faces Republican Sen. Milton Marks in November.

Another example was the Orange County Assembly Republican primary between Andrew Banks, who raised $54,000, and William Dannemeyer, who won despite raising only $13,000. Like Mendelsohn, Dannemeyer had an advantage in name recognition. He is a former assemblyman.

Other big-money losers were business groups that raised $419,000 for the defeated Prop. 12, a measure to raise interest limits on some business loans, and insurance companies that raised $234,000 against Prop. 6, which eliminates a $20-million insurance company tax deduction.

State briefs

7 farm workers killed in crash

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — Seven farm workers who had traveled 100 miles from their Los Angeles area homes to work in Kern County fields were killed when their sedan veered into the path of an oncoming pickup, highway patrolmen said.

Their sedan drifted onto the shoulder of California 166 near Maricopa as another car passed them before dawn Wednesday, officers said.

The victims, who were driving to work at Massey Farms, were identified as: Francisco Mendoza, 36, the driver; his wife Maria, 29; their son, Javier, 13; Leticia Negrette, 16; Secundia Echaury, 42; her son Miguel, 10, all of Los Angeles; and Francisco's sister, Theresa Mendoza, 36, of Huntington Park.

L.A. employes get pay hike

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The City Council has approved pay increases for 1,600 city employes and 94 fire and police chiefs.

The 5.6 per cent hikes for the city workers and 6.5 per cent for the police and fire heads were assured by a 10-1 council vote Wednesday.

City employes receiving the pay boosts are middle management personnel who are not represented by union or other employe groups.

Acting mayor John S. Gibson Jr. signed the ordinance into law after receiving word that Mayor Tom Bradley, attending the Democratic Convention in New York, had no objections.

Bradley had earlier opposed raises for the fire and police chiefs.

Total cost of the package is estimated at $1.7 million.

Opposition to farm land bill strong

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A proposal to preserve prime farm lands, which barely passed the Assembly, is running into heavy opposition in the state Senate.

But the author, Assemblyman Charles Warren, D-Los Angeles, predicts it will survive its first Senate test before the Natural Resources and Wildlife Committee, which held a hearing on it Wednesday and is scheduled to take a vote Aug. 10. He told a reporter the Senate Finance Committee may be tougher.

Most of the opposition came from representatives of farmers, real estate interests and local government. They also opposed the bill in the 80-seat Assembly, which granted a bare 41-vote approval in January.

Warren's bill would require cities and counties to map prime farm lands and create a state council to restrict the use of those lands to agriculture, in most cases.

Warren's allies say farm land must be saved to produce food and fiber for the state, nation and world.

But opponents say it would lower land values without compensating owners, stop city growth, interfere with such projects as Los Angeles County's proposed intercontinental airport in Palmdale, and create a new layer of bureaucracy.

Between the Assembly and the Senate, Warren amended the bill to satisfy some of the opposition. But it was clear at the hearing that determined opposition remained.

State workers' $70 raise okayed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State workers from the executive suite to the typing pool will get the same $70-a-month raise when pay checks are sent out next month.

The State Personnel Board approved the pay proposal Wednesday in a procedural action that put it into effect for most state workers.

Grape marketing order may raise the price of wine

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A Napa Democrat says the proposed wine grape marketing order will raise the price of wine.

Assemblyman John Dunlap issued a statement Wednesday urging wine grape growers to complain directly to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. and the state Department of Food and Agriculture about the proposal.

The director of the department, L.T. Wallace, is considering whether to submit the marketing order proposal to a vote of the growers. It would require approval of 51 per cent of the growers with 65 per cent of the volume, or 65 per cent of the growers with 51 per cent of the volume.

The order, for market research, was requested by the California Association of Winegrape Growers, which represents about 550 of the state's 4,000 wine grape growers.

Dunlap objected to the proposed $900,000 annual cost of the marketing order, to be paid through assessments on grape sales.

He also complained that growers in Napa County and on the north coast — where wines "are already world famous for their quality grapes" — would have to share the costs of market research for growers in the Central Valley and other areas where most jug wines are produced.

Dunlap urged he department to drop what he called the "foolhardy and poorly conceived $900,000 tax."

If approved, "the public will be paying higher prices for wine," he added.

"As things stand now, growers may get a very low price of $300 per ton this year and now we are told that a tax of from $4.50 to $7.50 per acre would be necessary to pay for this unneeded cost," he said.

Dunlap said the department "moved so quickly and with little public notice on its June 23 hearing that growers were unable to properly air their very justified objections to this proposed marketing order."

Ralph Bunje of the California Association of Winegrape Growers said at the hearing that the $900,000 would be spent on market research. He said the program is needed because of an oversupply of grapes that won't level out with demand until 1980.

He said the order would expressly prohibit any regulation of volume, quantity, grade, size or quality of wine grapes.

Dunlap said the state "has failed to adequately make a case for why we need to pay for yet another set of studies on how to market wine grapes. A great deal of data already flows from state and federal sources in California."

He also said the proposed 28-member marketing advisory board should have more than one representative from the general public.

At the moment of victory for Carter...

Now, 'I'm ready to go to work'

NEW YORK (AP) — When the moment of Jimmy Carter's victory showed on the three television sets in his hotel suite, the new Democratic presidential nominee punched his fist softly in the air and murmured, "Yea."

Jimmy Carter's mother, "Miss Lillian," was at his side. His 11-month old grandson, Jason, was on his kneww. And his 8-year-old daughter, Amy, stood across the room in pajamas and waved a paper flower she had crafted from a newspaper.

Carter was relaxed and smiling. "I'm looking forward to it," he said of the coming campaign. "I'm ready to go to work."

He joined the laughter when it was announced on the convention floor that a committee was being formed to inform him of his nomination and to ask if he would accept it.

At one point as his nominating roll call droned on to Ohio and victory, Carter sprawled across the bright blue carpet on the floor and played with the children.

At other times, he watched the proceedings while toying with a chop stick Amy had been playing with. Several times he stood to fiddle with the controls on the sets, turning up the volume every time pictures of Plains, Ga., his hometown, came on the screen.

His mother listened intently to the speeches that placed his name in nomination and she applauded softly at the end of each.

Later, when the results had been recorded, she rounded Amy up for bed, cleared away the coloring books and dolls and said to her son, "Goodnight, Mr. President."

During lulls in the speeches, Carter ruffled through the pages of the acceptance speech he will deliver tonight and said there was still work to be done on it. He said he would finish before going to bed.

During the evening, he tried to contact a number of the convention's principals by telephone, placing calls to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., and to some of those who nominated him.

When the cameras prepared to go live for the moment of nomination, Carter looked around for the children. He plucked Jason out from under the feet of the cameramen where he had crawled and put him on his lap. He gave him a pencil to play with.

Now, with the convention acclaiming him, Carter leaned forward as the face of his wife came on the screen. He smiled as a television reporter asked if she had a message for her husband. Carter laughed when she said, "Just tell him we won."

When the convention ended, Carter's wife, Rosalynn, returned to the hotel with other family members and some three dozen friends. They filled the living room and spilled over into the corridors outside.

There were kisses and handshakes and hugs and at least two women cried.

Later, Carter toured the hotel floor, shaking hands with the men and hugging the women staff members who had helped him win the Democratic nomination.

In the hours before the final balloting began, Carter met with governors and labor leaders and talked in Southern-accented Spanish to the convention's Latino delegates.

He assured them of a staff and advisory role in his campaign and said their voices would be heard in a Carter administration.

Carter began his nomination day at 6 a.m., arising early to work on his acceptance speech.

Throughout the day he fended off questions about his vice presidential choice, a decision he called one of the hardest he will ever have to make.

Later, speaking to delegates from western states, Carter warned repeatedly against the danger that overconfidence will rob the Democrats of a victory in November.

But he also repeatedly predicted victory.

"I never did intend to lose the nomination and I guarantee you I don't intend to lose the election," he said.

Carter's mother, Lillian Carter, called nomination day "the greatest day the South has known in over 100 years.

"I know everybody agrees with me. Everybody down South, they didn't think a Southerner could get it. I believed it but nobody else did."

SECONDS BEFORE DEATH

A sobbing holdup man who said he would rather die than surrender to police holds gun to his head moments before he shot and killed himself Wednesday night. He had held several persons hostage for three hours in a small bar near downtown St. Louis. The man, identified as Gregory Moore, seemed on the verge of surrendering when he placed the gun to his right temple and fired.

How the rejects took the news

'Would have been fine'—Church

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Frank Church was still shaving this morning when the call came from Jimmy Carter. The news was expected: The Democratic presidential nominee had chosen someone else as his running mate.

Church said Carter did not tell him who he had selected and "it wasn't my place to press him."

The Idaho senator, who had tried for the presidential nomination himself, said "it would have been a fine thing" to be selected for the No. 2 spot. But, he added, "I'm well satisfied with being the senior senator from Idaho."

The conversation with Carter lasted only a few minutes, Church said. "He told me that it had been a hard decision." Church said Carter also told him he thought he (Church) had a great future.

"I told him I thought he had a wonderful future too," Church said.

Church had been considered an outside contender for the job and as the period of waiting drew to a close, he and his family appeared resigned that it was not to be.

Glenn says he's disappointed

NEW YORK (AP) - Sen. John Glenn said today he was disappointed at not being chosen by Jimmy Carter as his running mate, but he called Sen. Walter Mondale — the man Carter did pick — "highly qualified."

Like the others under consideration as potential vice-presidential nominees for the consideration of the convention tonight, Glenn got an early morning phone call from Carter.

"We finally found out who's going to be mowing my lawn this weekend — namely me," said Glenn, a former astronaut who was the first American to circle the globe in space.

Reporters asked Glenn how he felt when he got the word. "I wouldn't deny that there was regret, but that doesn't mean my world will come to an end," he said.

Glenn, the junior senator from Ohio, had compared the suspense of waiting for the announcement to the suspense of sitting in a space capsule during the final stages of countdown.

Muskie ready to go home

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, who had been considered one of the front-runners for the job of Jimmy Carter's running mate, learned this morning that he had not been chosen by the Democratic presidential nominee.

He told the delegation from his home state of Maine that he was ready to go back home and run for re-election to the Senate. He said the idea of leaving the people of Maine for another goal had been bothering him.

Spotlight on area crime

Robber outwitted by woman

A female Pomona motel manager outwitted a robber early today at the Vogue Motel at 990 W. Mission Blvd., police reported.

The woman Nguyen Thi Borchers, 24, escaped the bandit who demanded more than the small amount of cash he took from her at gunpoint shortly after 1 a.m.

Mrs. Borchers said she was confronted by the gunman, who smelled of whiskey, when she answered a knock on the office door. The man, described as black, 6 feet 1 wearing a tan hat and jacket and dark brown trousers, was holding a .45-caliber pistol.

The victim said the man pushed the pistol against her stomach, grabbed her by the neck, and demanded money. She surrendered a small amount but he asked for more. She told him it was in her husband's apartment and he walked with her to a room occupied by a tenant. She knocked and when the man opened the door she leaped inside and slammed it in the robber's face. He fled.

The victim said the gunman was 30 to 35.

The discovery was made by Robert D. Hinkley, 32, of West Covina, who works in a restaurant nearby.

Sheriff's deputies said the victim was conscious when found, but was unable to speak. They said he had been badly beaten and had knife wounds in his face, chest, back and arms. Three upper teeth had been knocked out. A switchblade knife was found nearby. It was blood-covered and was believed to have been used in the attack.

The victim was treated first at Glendora Community Hospital and transferred to the county hospital. He is white, 18 to 20 years old, 5 feet 11 weighing 140 to 150 pounds. He has long, curly, red hair which is shoulder-length, blue eyes and wore a light blue T-shirt, blue corduroy trousers and a brown, flowered belt. He carried no identification papers, deputies said.

Three jailed in arson

Investigators with POMONA Fire Department made three arrests following an early morning fire today at an apartment at 1530 Holly Way.

Fire Chief John M. Fowlkes said that Welton van Hook, 52, 1435 W. Laurel Ave., was booked into Pomona jail on suspicion of arson.

His roommate, Lee Allen Butler, 28, was booked on an outstanding traffic warrant.

One occupant of Apartment C at 1530 Holly Way, Felicia Horton, 19, also known as Jackie Johnson, was booked on a warrant charging suspicion of petty theft, fire officials said.

Eleven persons were sleeping in Apartment C at the Holly Way address when the fire was set at 4:19 a.m. Fire officials said a flamable liquid had been poured over the outside of the apartment door and ignited.

Loss estimate was $1,000 to the door and carpeting. There was smoke damage in the living room area.

Ford also celebrated— his birthday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford celebrated his 63rd birthday with his family while the Democrats were celebrating the nomination of Jimmy Carter as their candidate for the White House.

Aides said Ford had expected to at least take a look at the televised proceedings of the Democrats in New York. But White House aides could not find out Wednesday night if Ford had actually tuned in.

The President said he didn't feel any older than 25 as he observed his birthday on Wednesday with three cakes and lunch at a downtown restaurant with his wife.

Mrs. Ford surprised her husband with the lunchtime outing and put the $25.36 cost of the meal on her credit card.

It was the first time any president had dined at the Sans Souci in the 14 years the expensive restuarant has been operating near the White House, even though it has been a favorite haunt of presidential staff members, Washington personalities and first ladies.

"We should do this more often," said Ford, who skipped his usual White House menu of cottage cheese and salad. He said his wife's idea to get him out for a change was a "great surprise and fun."

Ford puffed on his pipe and sipped two martinis on the rocks. Mrs. Ford smoked a cigarette and had two gin and tonics as they ate at a private balcony table. He also had a half bottle of French wine.

223 die, 2,350 hurt in Bali earthquake

BALI, Indonesia (AP) — An earthquake on the island of Bali, hitting far from the usual tourist spots, has killed 223 persons and injured 2,350, Bali Gov. Sukarmen said today.

He said the Buleleng district on the island's northern tip suffered the worst damage from the quake Wednesday, with 90 per cent of the homes in the district wrecked. More than 100 persons, mostly children, were badly injured by falling buildings. Hospitals and emergency clinics were jammed with victims.

Seririt in central Bali was almost totally destroyed and 10 school children died there when a school building fell, Sukarmen said.

The quake, which registered 5.6 on the Richter scale, struck far from the popular tourist areas along the southern coast. A spokesman said there were no reports of foreign tourists being killed.

In Jembrana, western Bali, 28 persons were reported killed and more than 150 seriously injured.

The Jakarta Meteorology Department said the quake's epicenter was in central Bali, and not in the Bali Strait east of the island as it had reported earlier. The tremors were felt in Surabaya, on Java 150 miles west of Bali.

Stab victim critical

An unidentified young man, found in SAN GABRIEL CANYON Tuesday stabbed more than 30 times, was reported in critical condition today at County-USC Medical Center.

The victim was discovered lying in a field east of Highway 39 a few feet off the old San Gabriel Canyon Road.

Soviet suspends arms to Syria

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Soviet Union has suspended shipments of arms and spare parts to Syria in an attempt to force President Hafez Assad to stop military operations against the Palestinians and their leftist Moslem Lebanese allies, the leftist newspaper As Safir reported today.

As Safir also said the leftists were getting Soviet arms by sea despite a Syrian blockade. Other papers said Syrian artillery shelled a ship believed to be unloading Soviet arms Wednesday in Tripoli, the chief Moslem city in northern Lebanon.

Reality finally caught up with Brown

NEW YORK (AP) — He resisted longer than anyone else, but reality finally caught up with Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California and he scrambled to get aboard the Jimmy Carter bandwagon.

Carter reciprocated with an appreciative phone call early today.

And Brown was to introduce the Democratic presidential nominee to the California delegation today.

"I was winning until Florida cast their votes," Brown quipped as he departed his hotel suite during the roll call vote Wednesday night and headed for Madison Square Garden two blocks away to pledge his support to Carter.

Brown had insisted on staying in the nomination race and keeping his delegates' allegiance to the very end. But after Carter had rolled up a massive majority, the young Californian vowed to campaign "enthusiastically" for Carter, especially in the West.

Brown's usual ebullience seemed dampened by the crushing Carter avalanche at the convention. Arriving back at his hotel headquarters at midnight, Brown looked with surprise at a crowd of wellwishers and declared, "Doesn't this thing ever end?"

Upstairs, the press core whittled down to mainly California media, the governor regained his verve. "My goal was to win, and barring that, to get my point across," he said.

Brown and some of his aides were in his convention floor trailer when the Ohio vote took Carter over the top. "That was the end of the fantasy," an aide said later.

The last hours of his campaign were characterized by one of the many zany happenings that have taken place since Brown entered the race for the nomination in April. With the roll call halfway through and as he departed his hotel for Madison Square Garden to concede the race, a bearded man approached Brown in the hallway.

Saying he was from the World Citizenship Federation, the man handed the governor a diploma and said he was entering Brown's name for an election at the world level "which will give you a mandate much broader than you could have won here tonight."

Brown smiled, accepted the piece of paper and rushed to Madison Square Garden to join the thousands of other Democrats applauding their new leader.

Brown later said his main purpose now was to return to California and resume his work as governor of that state. "There are issues that need my attention and they are my immediate concern," he said.

What about the future? "If I had enough energy to go this far this time, it might indicate some general interest in the subject in the future," he said.

Woman's death held accidental

Mrs. Camillia Reece, 58, of 208½ W. Francis St., Ontario, found dead in an alley behind the Alpha Beta Market at Euclid Avenue and Francis Street in Ontario early Wednesday morning apparently died as a result of accidental injury, according to the San Bernardino County Coroner's Office.

The coroner's office said that Mrs. Reece, had lost much of her liver function and apparently hemorrhaged when she fell and struck her head.

Weapons measure signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has signed a $32.5-billion weapons-procurement bill that authorizes production of the B1 bomber and earmarks a record $6.7 billion to expand the Navy's fleet.

In signing the measure Wednesday, Ford criticized Congress both for rejecting "a number of essential defense programs" and for funding other programs he said were not needed at this time.

Ford also signed two other major spending bills on Wednesday. One appropriates $8.3 billion in fiscal 1977 for the Treasury Department, Postal Service, General Services Administration, the Civil Service Commission and the Executive Office of the President.

The other earmarks $6.6 billion in 1977 for the State, Justice and Commerce departments, the federal judiciary, the Small Business Administration and the U.S. Information Agency.

The huge weapons-procurement bill permits spending $1 billion for the first three operating models of the B1 bomber, provided Congress appropriates the money in a future bill.

The bill also eliminated a one per cent "kicker" in cost-of-living increases in annuities for military retirees.

The Associated Press reported last year that the "kicker," designed to keep federal pensions in step with inflation, actually propels them ahead and gives federal retirees billions of extra dollars at taxpayer expense.

Breast X rays too risky, says expert panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — An outside panel of experts wants the National Cancer Institute to halt routine X-ray screening of healthy women under age 50 for breast cancer. The panel contends the risks of the radiation may outweigh the benefits.

The tests, called mammography, have been given to about 250,000 women since 1972 under a program run jointly by the NCI and the American Cancer Society.

Health officials disagree about the risks of mammography. They plan to take up the issue at a meeting Monday.

NCI Director Dr. Frank Rauscher said the risks are likely to be "very small." But he said the benefits of screening "may not be as great as was thought when the project started."

However, an official of the American Cancer Society said Wednesday the society would be "extremely reluctant to discontinue projects that are bringing about the early detection of breast cancer in women, including women between 35 and 50."

The screening program combines both X rays and physical exams.

Most breast cancer occurs in women over 50. The disease, which is expected to kill 33,000 women in the United States in 1976, can be treated if detected early.

The panel recommending an end to routine mammography was headed by Dr. Lester Breslow, dean of the school of public health at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Breslow's panel reportedly found that mammography was clearly beneficial for women over 50 who are prime breast cancer risks.

Dr. John Bailar III, editor of the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, published a paper last January charging that there was "a possibility that the routine use of mammography in screening asymptomatic women may eventually take almost as many lives as it saves."

Growers assn. must register

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An Oxnard growers association has been ordered by a federal judge to register with the U. S. Labor Department to insure that adequate conditions for migrant farm laborers are maintained by the group.

U. S. District Judge Harry Pregerson issued an order Wednesday enjoining the Coastal Growers Association from labor contracting activities until it has obtained a labor department certificate of registration.

Other smaller associations involved in recruiting, hiring, paying, feeding and housing agricultural workers are expected to register with the Labor Department so the federal agency will not file complaints against them.

The Coastal Growers Association supervises the employment of about 700 migrant citrus workers.

Lloyd critical of national health plan

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

The National health insurance program proposed under the Kennedy-Corman Bill would cost the United States $150 billion a year and would be disastrous, according to Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist.

Addressing the medical staff of Pomona Valley Community Hospital and members of District 14, Los Angeles County Medical Association, Thursday, the congressman said the United States could not sustain itself if such a sweeping health program were it to be passed by Congress.

"We do need a sustaining program for the elderly and I would like to see medical care available to all those under 15," Lloyd said. He added that the program for the young would cost an estimated $20 to $25 billion a year, but "would pay off later in reduced medical expenses."

Lloyd added that he strongly supports efforts to establish some sort of catastrophic health program.

"But there's not much chance of it passing this year," he said. "The average family is totally devastated by a catastrophic illness, but does not need cradle-to-grave coverage.

"I can see a balanced budget, which the country must have, within two or three years if we don't spend too wildly."

Asked if Congress had considered entering the problems of increased liability insurance premiums faced by California physicians, the representative said that 95 per cent of the doctors polled in his district did not want national involvement.

"If you bring Congress into your liability problem, you may regret it. Once Congress gets into a problem, it often fails to let go."

Lloyd said physicians would be better off to work out their problems at the state level.

The congressmen also said there was legislation now being considered which would make health maintenance organizations (HMO) "more competitive with traditional health systems."

Lloyd also predicted that Sen. John Glenn would be Carter's running mate on the Democrat ticket and that President Ford "will probably be nominated by the Republicans."

Prof convicted of drug charge

LOS ANGELES (AP(—A former professor at the University of California at Riverside has been convicted of conspiring to manufacture the drug phencyclidine, or "angel dust," and faces a maximum sentence of five years in jail with a possible $15,000 fine.

Philip Radlick, 37, who taught at Riverside from 1966 to 1975 and is currently director of a New Jersey chemical company, was convicted Thursday after a seven-day federal court trial of buying 165 gallons of the drug and selling it to Kenneth Marvin Baker, 33, of Hollywood, for $21,500.

Baker pleaded guilty to conspiracy and possession of drug charges earlier. A third defendant in the case, George Henry Willers, 27, of Los Angeles, was convicted along with Radlick.

MARGARET ANDERHALT

Pomonan heads telephone workers

Margaret Anderhalt of Ontario is 1976-77 president of the DeAnza Chapter of Telephone Pioneers of America. The chapter represents Riverside and San Bernardino counties and the Pomona-Ontario area.

Mrs. Anderhalt is a service assistant working at the Pacific Telephone office in Pomona.

The Pioneers, long-time telephone company employes, this year are helping the Bell Telephone System celebrate its 100th birthday anniverssry.

A service oriented organization, it devotes much of its resources to the sightless.

Big brains

Both orcas (killer whales) and dolphins are two mammals that have unusually large brains in proportion to their bodies. Moby Doll, a young Vancouver aquarium killer whale, tipped the scales at slightly more than a ton. His brain weighed 14 pounds. A seven-ton elephant has a brain of only about 12 pounds.

What's going on around here

MONTCLAIR LUNCHEON — Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., will be speaker at the Montclair Chamber of Commerce's pacesetter's luncheon July 21 at the Islander's Terrace.

The Upland legislator, who serves as vice chairman of the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee, will discuss problems facing the small business community and steps the state legislature has taken to ease these pressures.

McVittie identified the three major difficulties faced by small business people as inflation, taxes and government regulations.

SENIOR CITIZENS HELPED — The West End Multi-Service Center in Ontario is working with the Ontario Parks and Recreation Department and the Ontario YMCA in a volunteer workers program to assist senior citizens.

Volunteer workers help serve meals at nutrition sites, work in libraries, answer phones, read to the sick and shut-ins and provide transportation.

Residents wanting to participate may phone 983-0775 daily from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Violet Culbertson is the program chairman.

CONSERVATION CAMP OPENS — The Youth Conservation Corps has opened its Camp Cedar Lake near Big Bear Lake with 30 student workers.

The 30 workers, selected from 500 applications, are 15 through 18. They will earn money while involved in forest conservation work.

The students will also be instructed about forest management problems and practices and environmental matters.

The Youth Conservation Corps started as a three year pilot program in 1971 and is operated by several land management agencies in the federal departments of agriculture and interior.

SCHOOL CHIEF NAMED — Rowland Schools Supt. Stanley G. Oswalt has been named the 23rd Delta Epsilon Lecturer for 1976 by the USC School of Education.

Delta Epsilon Society was organized by USC alumni in 1937 to honor those who earned doctoral degrees in education there. Each year one of its members the society feels has made a notable contribution to the profession is selected to be Delta Epsilon lecturer on campus for a designated term or summer session.

Oswalt has been with the Rowland school district since 1962.

BACK FROM CONFERENCE — Lupe Perez of Pomona is home after his annual attendance at the National Reunion of the 41st Infantry Division Association.

The division was the first to leave the United States after Pearl Harbor in World War II. With Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Jungleers, Perez served through the Pacific campaign from Australia to Japan. He was in the 116th Medical Battalion as a surgical technician.

This year's reunion of the association was held in Dearborn, Mich. The Atomic Chapter was host.

Perez has attended all reunions of the association since 1962. He is a member of the board of governors of the association and past president of the Southern California Chapter.

He visited points of interest in Michigan before returning home.

Now retired, he was a state employe of the California State Department of Mental Hygiene for 29 years.

HORSEMANSHIP CLINIC — The 11th annual Horsemanship Clinic will be presented at Cal Poly Pomona on four Fridays in August.

Jointly sponsored by the Arabian Horse Association of Southern California and Cal Poly, the clinics will be from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. and open to both adults and students.

On Aug. 6, the clinic will cover hoof care, showing and judging halter horses and hunters and jumpers. Topics for the Aug. 13 clinic include vaulting and fitting and training equipment.

The Aug. 20 clinic will cover leg care, liability of horse ownership and dressage. The last clinic on Aug. 27 will cover competitive trail riding, stock seat equitation and handling of the young horse.

Persons wishing additional information or to enroll may contact Norm Dunn, professor at Cal Poly Pomona.

PIE CONTEST — The annual "My Favorite Lemon Pie" contest at the Los Angeles County Fair gives amateur bakers an opportunity to win recognition for their skills.

Entries close Aug. 10 for the contest which will be held Wednesday, Sept. 29.

Each pie will be judged for taste and appetite appeal with separate cash awards.

Individual competition is divided into juniors (under 18) and seniors.

Entry blanks may be obtained by writing Los Angeles County Fair, P.O. Box 2250, Pomona CA 91766.

LEGAL AID SEMINAR — Robert A. Mautino, instructor in immigration and international law at Western State University College of Law of Orange County, will participate in a seminar at the Pomona Legal Aid Office Saturday.

He will answer questions pertaining to the legal status of the Vietnamese refugees living in the Pomona area, and other immigration law aspects.

Officials cut L.A. water basin source

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Officials concerned with drought conditions in northern California have cut off the source for replenishing underground water basins in the Los Angeles area.

Spokesmen for the Metropolitan Water District, responsible for meeting the water needs of 11 million residents, said Tuesday their decision was motivated by drought conditions in northern California.

Numerous cities draw their principal water supplies from the subterranean basins, which are filled with water from the Northern California aqueduct.

John H. Lauten, MWD general manager, said the move will not cause a water shortage if sufficient rainfall is received next year.

Nevertheless, he said, the cut-off might bring "significant" increases in water costs for cities dependent on the ground water.

Officials said the suspension of replenishing the undergound basins will probably last until early 1977, when rains are expected to come.

The MWD action will primarily benefit central and northern California farmers, stricken with a record drought this year.

Jerry McLain, MWD spokesman, noted that the Northern California aqueduct has been closed for a week because of a major project to repair a leak in the supply line in a 69-mile section located north of Los Banos. The project is to be completed in August.

Southern California will draw on existing reservoir supplies and lower-quality Colorado River water until new rains come, Lauten said.

Save on R-19 ceiling insulation now. Cut back on the gas you use for heating & cooling forever.

Do it yourself – it only takes a day.

Do it yourself ceiling insulation gives you double savings. You save on the cost of installation, you save on the amount of gas you use for heating & cooling.

Check your attic or crawl space. Even if there's some insulation there, you probably need more to meet current FHA R-19 standards for energy conservation. (R-19 is simply a measure of the insulation material's ability to prevent winter heat loss and summer heat gain. All manufacturers label their insulation materials with R-values.)

You'll find installing R-19 ceiling insulation is surprisingly easy— our free booklet tells you exactly how. It only takes a few hours to complete the job, but your savings go on forever.

Lloyd to assist at dedication

Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., will assist Upland city officials in dedicating newly developed Citrus Park Friday at 9 a.m.

Funding for the park, which is located on Eighth Street between San Antonio and Mountain avenues, came largely from a federal grant under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) which paid the salaries of the employes who built the park.

"We are proud of the park and the fact that we were able to design and built it with our own crews, saving local taxpayers a substantial amount of money," said City Manager Lee Travers.

The five acre park contains a wide, grassy play area with a number of modern playground devices in the "tot lot."

DINA HANEY

Haney named top teacher

Dina Haney, teacher and girls athletic director, has been named Teacher of the Year by the Western Christian Schools student body.

Western Christian is a private junior and senior high school in Glendora.

Board chairman Charles Wyant presented Miss Haney a study-vacation trip to Hawaii, provided annually by trustees for the recipient of this award.

Students select a Teacher of the Year on the basis of teaching ability, classroom environment, personality, activity, involvement and ministry, Wyant said.

Miss Haney is a graduate of Azusa Pacific College. She has taught at Western Christian four years. She has received recognition as girls athletic director and head coach in volleyball, basketball and softball.

Formerly a science teacher at a Los Angeles high school and an instructor at the Cleveland Chiropractic College, Sohn joined the Shier Corp., 1063 W. Sixth St., Ontario, on July 1.

With the addition of Sohn on the staff, the office will now be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

2 licenses suspended

A Pomona firm and a Chino business have had their licenses suspended by the Contractors' State License Board for failing to properly complete a project, according to the Consumer Affairs Department of the State of California.

The Pomona business is French Roof Service, 2911 Hollander St., operated by Elton Deloiss French. The license was suspended for 90 days effective May 20, 1976.

The Chino business is Douglas Sailors Painting and Decorating, 15685 Del Monte Ave., operated by Douglas M. Sailors. The license was suspended for 60 days effective June 1, 1976.

Chaffey adopts policy

The Chaffey College Board has adopted a policy statement that the college prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex and is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer.

The action was in compliance with Title IX of the Education Amendment.

June Teitsworth, vice president for student services, has been given the responsibility of conducting a self-study of each campus operation in line with its conformance to Title IX.

Under the direction of Miss Teitsworth, Women's Center coordinator Jeanne Hamilton has set up the Title IX task force to carry out the campus-wide survey.

For continued federal financial assistance, the self-study report, focusing in the main on admissions and employment practices at the college, must be on file by July 21.

Long distance

The first known system for delivering water to cities was built by the Phoenicians. The Greeks copied the system of digging tunnels to bring water to their cities, and the Romans developed it with aquaducts 50 to 100 feet high that brought water to Rome from more than 60 miles away.

Finance bill to benefit local schools, ease taxes

A major school finance bill recently approved by the state legislature will benefit local schools and ease the pressure on local property taxes, said ASSEMBLYMAN BILL LANCASTER, R-62nd Dist.

"The bill will increase state funding for education by $272 million. That is money that local school districts will not have to ask property taxpayers to provide," he added.

Lancaster was among the Assembly members who withheld their votes on the new budget until some relief was provided to financially troubled school districts.

The Covina legislator said the education bill will provide more than $2 million in basic support for 62nd District school districts — Bonita, Charter Oak, Claremont, Covina, Glendora and West Covina.

"An important feature of the bill will grant a cost of living increase to teachers who have been retired for more than 20 years," he added.

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., said state Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-32nd Dist., will serve as general chairman of the Committee to Elect Jim Lloyd.

"Ruben Ayala has distinguished himself in Sacramento and in his home district as a man who works tirelessly in behalf of the people he represents," said Lloyd.

"Ruben honors me by his support and his efforts in my behalf. I hope to continue to work with Sen. Ayala for the people of this district."

In accepting the assignment, Ayala reported he and Lloyd had worked together for many years in the Democratic Party. "I have been impressed by the way Jim has represented this district and worked in behalf of all the people both here and back in Washington, D.C.," he added.

CLYDE R. STEPHENS, Republican nominee in the 65th Assembly District, has urged party workers to help remove the Democratic incumbent from office and "help restore a proper balance to the state legislature."

Meeting recently with Republican party leaders, Stephens said needed anti-crime legislation has been passed by the state Senate but tabled or killed by a "liberal Democrat controlled Criminal Justice Committee" in the state Assembly.

"Anything that has eked through this committee has been voted down by a Democrat majority in the Assembly. Bill McVittie is a member of and votes with that liberal Democrat majority which does not reflect the philosophies of this district," claimed Stephens.

Pomonan appointed to state council

RACHEL MILLER

Pomona resident Rachel Miller, second vice president of the National Welfare Rights Organization, has been appointed by Gov. Brown to the California State Legal Services Council.

Council members have the responsibility of receiving complaints regarding the Legal Services Corp.

Mrs. Miller was congratulated upon her appointment by Keith Comrie, acting director of the Los Angeles County Department of Public Social Services.

Elton John sued

ATLANTA (AP) — Rock singer Elton John has been named in a $500,000 slander suit filed by an Atlanta man who claims the entertainer had him removed from an Atlanta hotel where John was performing.

Frank Grassie said in the Superior Court lawsuit he filed Tuesday that John had him removed on Monday by telling a hotel security guard that Grassie was exposing himself.

Grassie's lawyer said his client was humiliated by the incident.

John was not available for comment. The Hilton Hotel chain was also named as a defendant.

Creative single unit workshop to begin

"Living Creatively As a Single" is the title of a group workshop series which will begin Aug. 3 at 7:30 p.m. in West Covina.

Arline Steiner, a licensed marriage, family and child counselor, will serve as leader for the series which will continue each Tuesday through August at the Maxson Medical Building, Suite 304, 933 S. Sunset Ave.

Titles of the five workshops are "The Importance of Liking Yourself," "Developing the Magnetism of Self-Confidence," "Inlocking the Power of Your Real Personality," "Are You Leaving Your Friendships to Chance?" and "Controlling Your Own Future."

A registration fee will be required. Those interested in attending may call the Family Guidance Center at 213 962-5137 or Mrs. Steiner at 599-6266.

PFA chooses president

MRS. NANCY THUM

Mrs. Nancy Thum will serve as 1976-77 president of the Condit School PFA in Claremont.

Mrs. Thum and her husband, Charles, have one daughter and one son.

Other new officers on the PFA board are Karen Twitty, president elect; Betty Gwen Thompson, first vice president, programs; Peggy Boesel, second vice president, social; Virginia Meriwether, third vice president, room mothers; Jane Theobald, recording secretary; LaVerne Fujimoto, corresponding secretary; Lynda Hoch, treasurer; Pat Hollenberg, ways and means; Kris Blay, parliamentarian; Judy Fidak, nominating committee chairman; Bettie Osborne and Ellen Hamilton, nominating committee.

Ontario Council appoints Franks

The Ontario City Council has reappointed Reuben W. Franks to a four-year term on the city's Planning Commission but rejected a request for a new term for Irene Rice.

Mayor Paul Treadway offered both names during a City Council meeting. Asking to vote on each individually, the council members were unanimous in voting for Franks but split 3-2 on Mrs. Rice.

Other commission appointments included Larry Newman and Laurie Van Ornam, Chaffey High School students, to the Youth Commission; Samuel K. Reeder, to the Library Board of Trustees; and Edward Bordenkircher, Jay Holmes, Jim Kelber, Mary Stern, Walter Stewart and Ray Marshall to the Ontario Parks, Recreation and Cultural Foundation.

Dinah Shore Sunday TV cover subject

Dinah Shore, star of "Dinah and Her New Best Friends" on CBS Saturdays at 10 p.m., is the cover subject of TV Week in Sunday's Progress Bulletin.

The "best friends" are seven talented young performers who have reached major plateaus in show business without an adequate national showcase, according to Miss Shore.

Ethiopia executes 19

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Ethiopia's military government today announced the execution of 19 persons. They included Maj. Sisaye Hapte, one of the leading members of the ruling military council, and Brig. Gen. Getachew Nadew, commander of the armed forces in rebellious Eritrea province.

The announcement, broadcast by the government radio, said a special military court found the two officers guilty of working together against the government.

The report said the other 17 were government officials who abused their authority.

It was believed the executions took place during the weekend.

What switch to metric system will do to consumers under study

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the Democrats are debating in New York, the real weighty issues are being discussed this week in Washington.

For instance, how much pig should be in a can of pork and beans? And how much turkey in a frozen dinner? And how many servings does a jar of instant coffee make?

It's the 61st annual Weights and Measures Conference, a gathering of some 500 state and local metrologists from around the country, whose main concern is to make sure consumers aren't ripped off when the country switches to the metric system.

In good convention style, the officials sometimes obfuscate the issues with complicated committee reports that refer to such items as Section S.1.6.5. of Handbook 44.

But what they're really saying is, for instance, that hungry consumers prowling the corner delicatessen should not be faced with little signs that say liverwurst is $2 per quarter-pound. A hurried shopper might find he's paying $8 for a pound of liverwurst because he thought he was being given a price per full pound.

"The primary function of the meeting is to adopt model laws that have been agreed on by those weights and measures officials," said Fred McGehan, spokesman for the group. McGehan said that after the four-day conference, the officials return to their states' weights and measures departments and recommend that such legislation be passed.

If the measurement officials have their way, shoppers will no longer have to guess what they're eating when they buy mystery meat cuts like "patio chops," "breakfast steak" and "paradise roast."

They're recommending that meat cuts have standard identities, such as roast, shoulder, bone-in and boneless.

In considering another model law, the officials are discussing whether the percentage of meat should be listed in frozen dinners.

Another recommendation would require companies to list the number of servings in such products as a jar of instant coffee. Other problems being discussed are softwood lumber. After all, a 2-by-4 is really 1½ inches by 3½ inches. The officials also are pondering uniform labeling of antifreeze and the method of sale for sod and turf.

McGehan said most of those at the conference feel the United States will have converted to the metric system by the mid-1980s.

McGehan said the officials expect that by early next year, a U.S. Metric Board will have been appointed by the president. "Its job will be to coordinate the voluntary changeover from the present measuring system to metric," McGehan said. "This will include a public education system."

Asked what a shopper will do when he is faced with kilograms when what he wishes to purchase is a pound of salami, McGehan said, "Take a kid along. They're now teaching metric in the schools."

School vandal damage heavy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crime and vandalism wreaked $600 million in damages in the nation's public schools last year, and school officials are looking for $300 million from the government to combat the problem.

"Many of the school systems hit by student crime, arson, vandalism and burglary can't afford to handle the problem," Joseph Grealy, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., president of the National Association of School Security Directors, said Tuesday. "We need more federal money for training and hardware."

The group is holding a conference this week in suburban Alexandria, Va., for more than 300 security experts and school superintendents from 30 states.

"We're talking about violence of the type never before experienced by schools and property losses in public schools of more than $600 million in 1975 alone," said Lucius Burton, security chief for Alexandria's schools. "The federal government has a definite role here."

Congress heard testimony from students and educators last summer about gangs shooting up classrooms, teachers assaulted and extortions carried out by fourth-graders.

The Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration already is planning a $12-million program to eliminate the violence.

Burton said of the planned $300-million request. "We think we'll get congressional backing, although there may be some revision on the money figure. Our main concern has been a presidential veto."

With statistics not yet compiled for 1975, Burton cited 1974 figures showing $594 million in public school property losses. The amount included $102 million lost to vandalism; $243 million lost to burglary; $109 million lost to arson; and $140 million in other losses, including locker thefts and student extortion.

The 1975 total "most certainly will top $600 million," he said.

All-girl tall ships crew flies to homes

BOSTON (AP) — Surrounded by suitcases and tightly packed duffel bags, the all-female crew of the British schooner Sir Winston Churchill was ready to head home — with some regrets.

"I haven't seen enough of America yet," said Hilary Gladders as she changed from sneakers to high heels. "If I ever come back I'll have so many people to see and homes to visit."

After sailing 28 days with the tall ships procession, the 42 women ended their tour of duty Tuesday and were whisked home on a chartered jet. An all-male crew replaced them later in the day.

"I've been homesick for three weeks and four days," Sally Anne Davis said. "But I wouldn't have missed it. I'd like to get back on the boat next year."

Tanned to a healthy pink glow, many women were reluctant to pack away the light blue tee-shirts that identified them as members of the Sir Winston Churchill crew.

"I'll be too old to ever do this again," Helena Watts said wistfully. The age limit is 21.

The crew was chosen on a first-come, first-serve basis. Sailing experience did not matter, and many of the women had never been on a sailing ship before

"I dare say I'm quite expert at it now," Jo Payne said as she scurried about the 150-foot ship like an old sea hand. "But when I first got aboard, I handed the sails upside down. It was awful."

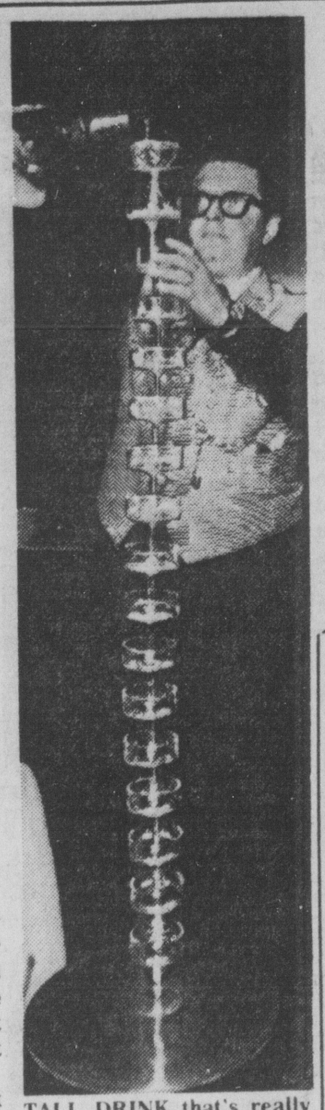

And hard work, too. They remembered weary nights on deck when sails had to be hoisted and taken down in an endless task, when the seas were rough and the food was cold. "But when we get back home all the hard bits will be forgotten," Juliet Thomas philosophized. "We'll only remember how super it all was."

Their one complaint was the way tourists tended to gawk at them — the only female crew participating in Operation Sail, the July 4 event in New York harbor. Life in a fishbowl was irritating at times, they agreed.

"The press seemed to think they discovered us somehow," one woman explained. "It was nice that people bothered about us. But really, in England, we're nothing special."

The female crew managed just the same to captivate most Americans and even drew praise from Queen Elizabeth II during her visit to Boston Sunday.

"Charming was how she described us. But I think we were a rowdy bunch, and good sailors at that," one crew member said.

TALL DRINK that's really TALL is created by Robert Gourdin to regain the record for the tallest Champagne Fountain. In a demonstration at New York's Four Seasons Restaurant, Gourdin, U.S. manager of the French champagne house of Moet & Chandon, stacked 17 champagne glasses and gingerly poured champagne, overflowing top to bottom until all filled.

False identity problem probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — As part of a crackdown on criminals using false identities, the Justice Department may ask Congress for money to help states tighten their procedures for issuing driver's licenses.

David Muchow, a department attorney working on the false identity problem, said the plan may be included in a package of legislation designed to make it harder for criminals to get false papers.

In an interview Monday, Muchow said the legislation may seek funds "to give to the states to help upgrade the security of driver's licenses." The money would be channeled either through the Transportation Department or the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

In addition, there may be an effort to try to make it more difficult for criminals to use false birth certificates to carve out phony identities.

Birth and death records often are key elements of classic false identity schemes. Criminals search cemeteries for tombstones marking graves of infants, then obtain a copy of the child's birth certificate from a state or local agency.

With the fake birth certificate, the criminal then can obtain a driver's license, credit cards and a passport.

Muchow said the proposal for aiding the states still is in the preliminary stage. The idea arose, he said, after officials of some states said they recognized the need for tighter security but had no money to implement new procedures.

There was no estimate of the amount of money that might be involved.

As an example of the problem, Muchow said some state driver's license offices check the information listed on license applications, but only after approving the license.

"By then," he added, "the criminal who is getting the license falsely has already committed his crime and escaped."

Muchow, chairman of the Federal Advisory Committee on False Identification, said the panel expects to submit a final report to Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi in September.

Later in the fall, the administration probably will send a package of legislative proposals to Congress, he added.

Exploding bag foils bank robbers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The getaway of two bank robbers was foiled July 2 when their bank bag full of loot exploded, covering them with red dye and tear gas.

Police arrested the bandits later in a relative's home as they tried to wash away the chemical irritant and the coat of red dye, authorities say.

The robbers were victims of a tiny electronic device implanted in bundles of currency beforehand which is triggered when the money bag is removed from the bank.

Twice last week police reported the device caused bank robbers to drop their loot and flee.

According to bank officials, there are several similar devices on the market. They have been in use for about a year.

But officials are reluctant to elaborate on the mechanism which triggers the dye and tear gas eruption, because they don't want to give details helpful to would-be bandits.

Amtrak taking over 722 miles of track

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amtrak is taking command of an additional 722 miles of track, along with hundreds of railway stations, and officials say ownership should improve services and facilitate renovation of depots.

A massive series of property transfers which began April 1 under the Federal Rail Reorganization Act are still continuing. Amtrak has been leasing much of the property from financially ailing rail lines.

The purchases total nearly $90 million and include a dozen major repair facilities, 722 miles of track and hundreds of passenger stations, rail cars and locomotives.

The purchases will improve service and should ease small problems thoughout the passenger rail system in the Northeast and Midwest, Amtrak officials said Tuesday. Some changes will be small, but important.

For instance, because it did not own the Newark, N.J., station, an Amtrak official said Tuesday, the system had not been able to post a sign telling customers that Amtrak trains stopped there. Now, the sign is going up.

Another official added that in many communities Amtrak ownership will facilitate renovation of stations while preventing others from being torn down.

In Pittsburgh, highway planners wanted to tear down a railroad station for highway construction and move the service outside the city, but this can now be prevented.

"As far as we're concerned, the last passenger station and the last passenger has been inconvenienced because of the bulldozers of the highway departments," an Amtrak official said.

The complicated series of purchases has kept lawyers busy around the clock, with one attorney sleeping on a sofa in Amtrak's Washington offices and showering in a men's room for two weeks.

Most of the properties purchased are located in the Northeast corridor from Boston to Washington. Purchases in the corridor, including more than 130 stations, totaled $86 million. Another $3.9 million is being spent in the Midwest.

"Now that we own the tracks and stations in our most heavily traveled corridor, we are in a better position to control the operation and implement the improvement program" said Amtrak President Paul Reistrup.

Following completion of the purchases, Amtrak plans to spend $1.6 billion upgrading facilities purchased from the other troubled railroads.

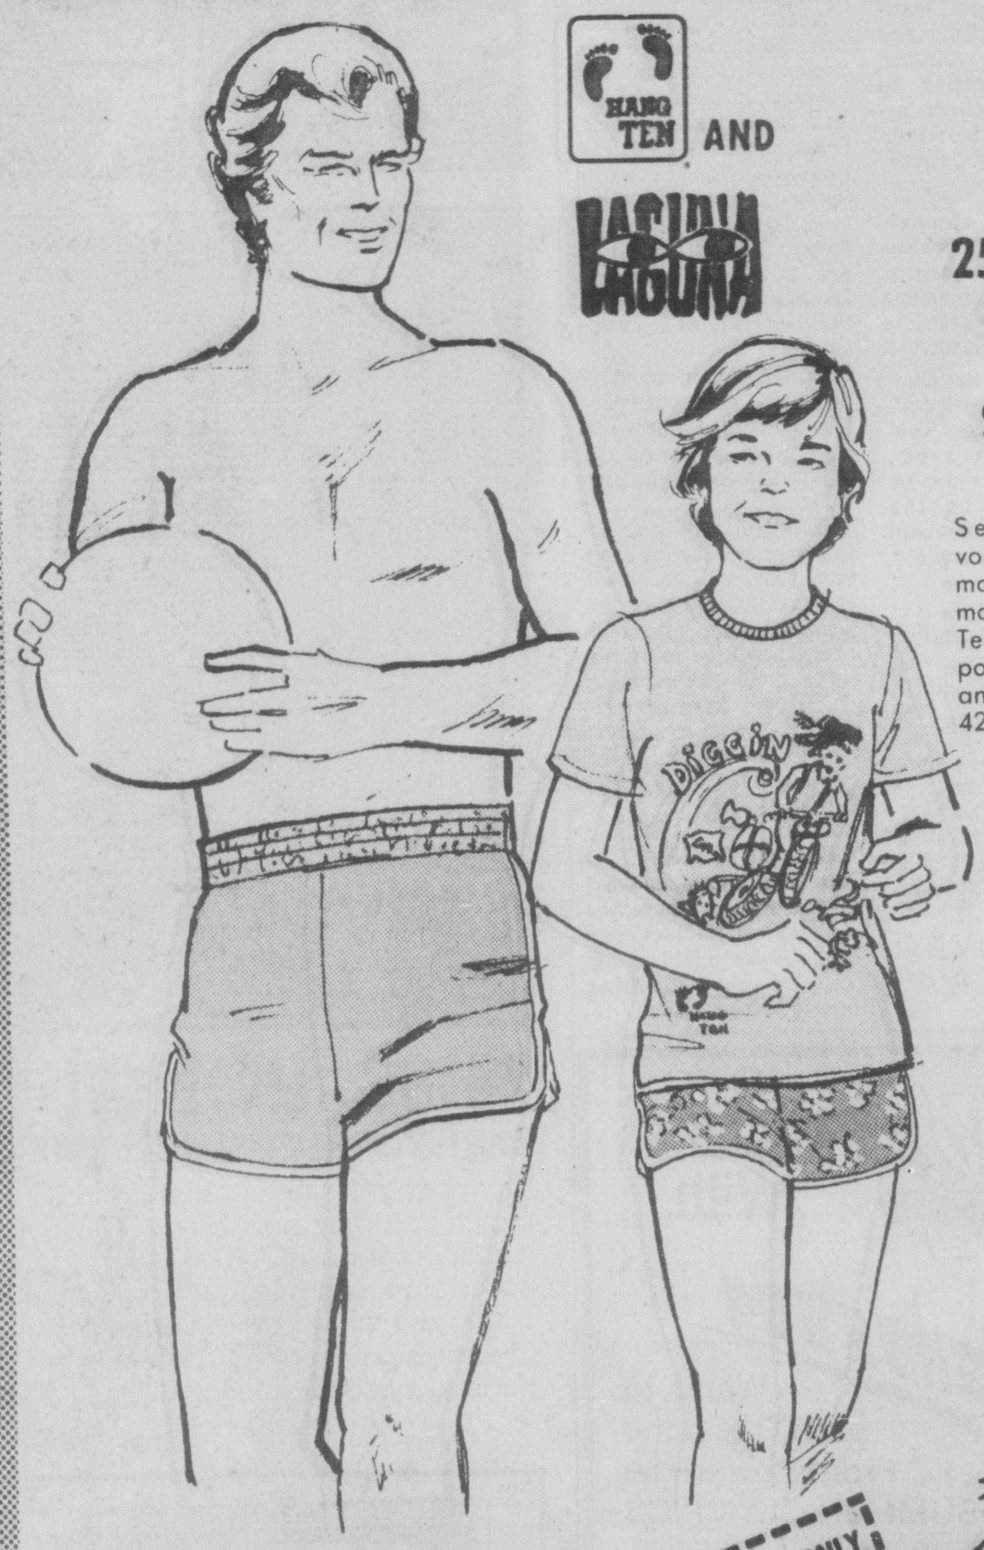

Eventually, electric-powered trains traveling at speeds up to 120 miles per hour will connect the cities along the corridor.

MSAC passes 'useless' publication budget

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

A thoroughly frustrated board of trustees at Mt. San Antonio College approved a $24,805,979 publication budget Wednesday but only because to do otherwise would have been a violation of the law.

James Simpson, vice president in charge of business services, whose staff prepared the budget, called it "the most useless budget I've ever seen."

He said the expenditure side of the budget was fine, but when it came to the income "I have to throw up my hands. The new state law has us completely bewildered."

He said he was referring to the Rodda Bill (SB-1641) which took effect July 1 and which provides a new formula for money from the state.

"We can't make sense of it," he told the board. "We can't get a formula out of it to figure our state aid. The chancellor's office had promised us worksheets by July 12 or 13, but we have not yet received them. Simply stated, we don't know how much money the state will give us next year."

"What happens if we don't approve this budget?" board Chairman Richard Todd asked.

"We would be in violation of the law," Simpson declared. "We'd probably lose some money."

Simpson explained that the publication budget was an "interim budget" and that the board will have a chance to make adjustments and set tax rates when it receives the final budget next month.

"In that case," Todd said, "Let's not take much time with this. Let's just adopt this as is, and worry about the real budget next month."

That's what the trustees did. At Simpson's suggestion, they set a special study session for 3 p.m. July 28, hoping that by then more information will be available on the new law.

Simpson said the Rodda Bill completely revamps the financial formula of the past several years by using once more a district's assessed valuation as a key to its income. It also removes the cap placed on college enrollment last year, eliminates defined adult categories and authorizes colleges to charge fees for classes not approved for state aid.

None of the implications of those provisions could be defined at this time, Simpson said.

The budget, as approved for publication, calls for a tax rate of 74.66 cents per $100 of assessed valuation two-tenths of a cent more than the tentative budget. The difference is in the boost of the levy for child development.

The school estimates that average daily attendance next year will be 13,678, the same as last year.

WATER FOR CHANNEL

San Bernardino County Supervisor Robert Townsend, left, and Col. H. G. Robinson, district engineer for the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, display a bottle of "pure Cucamonga water" during a ceremony which marked the start of a $4.5 million improvement project for the Cucamonga Flood Control Channel. Officials plan to line the 16-mile channel with concrete floor and walls to better control storm runoff water.

COY D. ESTES

Estes named Upland's new police chief

Capt. Coy D. Estes, 41, a member of the Upland Police Department since 1963, has been selected as the department's new chief, effective Aug. 1.

His appointment, announced Wednesday by City Manager Lee Travers, will be officially confirmed at the Monday meeting of the Upland City Council.

Estes has been serving as acting chief since April when the former police chief, John Wessely, retired. His annual salary in the post will be $28,308.

Estes was one of three final candidates interviewed by a select committee composed of persons from outside of the city.

A resident of the valley since he was 2, Estes graduated from Chaffey College. He attended the 100th session of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Quantico, Va., and graduated in March 1975.

During the 12-week FBI course, Estes studied police management, behavorial science, law, education, communication arts, forensic science and law enforcement arts.

Winnett Ranch again interests Walnut council

New life was injected into an old issue at a Walnut City Council meeting Wednesday night when the council instructed Vern Lawson, city manager, to look into the possibility of acquiring Winnett Ranch.

The 80-acre ranch is the joint property of the Claremont Colleges, Occidental College and California Institute of Technology.

City officials talked about acquiring the acreage in 1973 and 1974 but the proposal hasn't been discussed recently in council meetings until it was revived this week.

If acquired, the ranch would be used as a recreational area.

At the same meeting councilmen unanimously denied a request from U Mark Corp. to change residential lot zoning from a 20,000 square foot acreage to 7,200 square foot acreage with a density of 4.2 dwelling units per acre.

Ernest Partaker, vice-president of U Mark, spoke in favor of the change at a public hearing. Three Walnut property owners opposed it.

Councilmen initiated proceedings toward annexations to its newly formed open space and landscape maintenance district.

A public hearing on the annexations will be held Aug. 28. One of the tracts affected consists of 124 units already completed by La Solana Corp. Others, being developed by U Mark Corp. and Larwin Corp., are partially constructed or not yet built.

The council also approved re-naming of Lemon Creek Park to Lemon Creek Historical Park. The city's Bicentennial Committee requested the change.

The city official accepted donation of 200 items for the park and its museum.

Bonita employes accept pay hike

Classified employes in the Bonita Unified School District have accepted a two per cent pay raise and a 20 per cent increase in fringe benefits for the year that started July 1.

The school board agreed that if additional funds become available to the district by next October, it will consider more money for its 258 employes.

The fringe benefits involve mostly health and dental insurance. The increases will protect the employes against a 30 per cent rise in rates.

The board also offered a similar salary package to the teachers and that offer is now under consideration.

Three injured in six-car collision on S.B. Freeway

Three persons were injured Wednesday night in a major traffic accident involving six cars on the San Bernardino Freeway near Dudley Street in Pomona.

The injured were Rita Burkdoll, 53, Palm Springs, a driver, and Darlene Harris, 32, Fontana, and Tommy Langston, 24, 2459 Lovejoy St., Pomona, occupants of a disabled vehicle parked on the freeway.

They were treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and later released.

The series of collisions began when Ismael Legitimo, 20, Culver City, was driving east and started to pass another vehicle on the freeway shoulder, said highway patrolmen.

His car struck the disabled vehicle parked there. Glen Felton, 32, 221 Annapolis St., Claremont, came upon the initial accident and lost control of his vehicle as he attempted to avoid the accident, they added.

Felton's vehicle went into a broadside skid and collided with the Burkdoll vehicle and then continued across the eastbound lanes where it struck vehicles driven by Thomas Hibbard, 37, Loma Linda, and Roberto Vargas, 40, 1644 N. Leeds St., Ontario.

Legitimo was later booked at the Pomona police jail on suspicion of drunken driving.

Station wagon sales on skid; vans are 'in'

SAN DIEGO (AP)—The president of the National Auto Dealers Association says popularity of station wagons is on a downhill skid.

"People who thought of station wagons because they wanted to haul kids and gear are saying today, 'Why not go all the way and get a van?'" John Pohanka of Washington said Wednesday.

He said other trends also are becoming evident.

Although big car sales are up this year, the public is clearly leaning toward intermediate-size vehicles and big cars of the future are going to be considerably smaller than those of today, he predicted.

Pohanka said the future also demands increased recognition of diesel engines for passenger cars. He said he expects at least one General Motors model next year will be diesel powered.

Cucamonga flood channel improvement project begins

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

A Cucamonga dirt clod and a jug of muddy water were used Wednesday during ceremonies to mark the start of the first major improvement project on the Cucamonga Flood Control Channel.

San Bernardino County Supervisors Robert Townsend and Daniel Mikesell were joined by other county, state and federal officials at a breakfast program at the El Prado Golf Course and then later at the channel work site.

Officials used shovels to break a large dirt clod mounted on a stand following the breakfast program and then to scoop up dirt at the construction site.

Noting the channel is normally dry during the summer, a deliveryman named "Big Al" carried a five gallon bottle of "pure Cucamonga water" to Col. H. G. Robinson, district engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, to show what will flow through the completed channel. Robinson was recently assigned as district engineer.

County officials and the U.S. Corps of Engineers are working to line the Cucamonga channel with concrete floor and walls to prevent a repeat of the 1969 floodings where $13.5 million in property damage was reported in the West End of San Bernardino County. This was caused when water spilled from the dirt channel.

A $4.5 million contract was awarded June 29 to the Sully-Miller Contracting Co. of Long Beach for the channel's first major improvement project.

The project will extend from Hellman Avenue near Chino north about two miles to Remington Avenue. The contractor will pour a cement floor 80 fet wide plus sloping walls. The channel, measuring 150 feet wide at the top, will be capable of carrying 40,000 cubic feet of water per second.

The work also includes two-lane bridges at Hellman Avenue and Schleisman Road. During heavy rains, these crossings are often closed by runoff water.

Workers have begun grading in the channel and the project should be completed next July, said Art Sidler, director of the San Bernardino County Flood Control District.

The $4.5 million contract includes $3.5 milion in federal funds and $1 million from local sources.

Flood water will flow from the channel into an existing outlet at Hellman which has grouted stone levees to break the water's velocity before it pours into the Prado Basin's spreading grounds.

Sidler said he hoped another contract would be awarded next spring to continue the channel work north from Remington Avenue to near the Pomona Freeway, a distance of about four miles.

The federal government has included $7 million in its new fiscal year budget. Funding would be available after Oct. 1, he added.

Should the federal government continue to fund the project, the entire 16-mile channel could be completed within five years, he said.

Based on present costs, Sidler estimated that $100 million is needed to complete the project. This will involve both federal and local funds.

Some 100 persons attended the breakfast meeting where resolutions of appreciation were presented to Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., Col. John V. Foley, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Jack Coe, California Department of Water Resources and Robert E. Mills, flood control district advisory committee.

Rep. Lloyd reported that federal funding will make up two-thirds the project cost, with the federal budget including $3 million this fiscal year and $7 million for the next fiscal year.

"Once we get the funding, we can keep the project rolling," he added.

Supervisor Townsend reported that a quest for federal and state funds for the Cucamonga flood control channel improvement project actually dated back to 1928.

And when he was first appointed to the Board of Supervisors, there were still several questions in Washington, D.C. about the project's future.

"We all got behind the project to push," he added. Townsend thanked Supervisor Mikesell, Lloyd, Sen. Alan Cranston and Vic Veysey, assistant secretary of the Army, for their part in getting federal funds.

"It was difficult, but in our joint effort with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, we made it."

Pine to leave hospital Friday

Pomona school board member Ken Pine will be released from Pomona Valley Community Hospital Friday and complete his recuperation from July 8 spinal surgery at his Diamond Bar home.

He will walk five miles a day and swim, but has been forbidden to ride in automobiles for a month by his doctor, he said.

Pine attended the June 14 school board meeting and then was admitted to the hospital.

Receptionist retires after 34 years at Pomona College

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Mrs. Mildred V. Morrison of Claremont retired today after working 34 years at Pomona College.

The animated, friendly receptionist in the college's admission office is actually concluding a career which started in 1916, when, as a 16 year old, she took her first job as a clerk in Lewiston, Maine.

"Although I'm now 76 years, seven months old, I've made lots of plans for the future," Mrs. Morrison said. She shares a home with her sister, Mrs. Addie V. Moore, 91, past owner of a former popular college eating spot, Moore's restaurant.

Mrs. Morrison has seen many changes during the years since she joined the college as a worker in the cashier's booth at Harper Hall.

She has also endeared herself to the generations of students and faculty who have been associated with her.

Mrs. Morrison is held in such high esteem by the college alumni that she is just the fourth person to be named an honorary alumna of the college. She joins Chet Jaeger, former President E. Wilson Lyon and Mrs. Lyon in the exclusive group.

MILDRED MORRISON

"When the alumni association president asked what class I chose to be a member of I chose Class of 76 — after all, it's both the year I leave the campus and my age."

Over 150 friends and former faculty and staff members gathered in Hartwood Court for Mrs. Morrison's farewell party.

"It was a warm, informal party with everyone kissing me," recalls Mrs. Morrison, whose infectious smile and charm would naturally lead to a relaxed, fun event.

She plans to audit courses in the field of astronomy next year and eventually audit courses in Asian history and government, plus work with a couple of favorite service organizations.

Mrs. Morrison and her son, Robert John Weston (now a Pomona resident), moved to California in 1942. The change followed other family members who had been moving from Maine to California over the years, starting in 1914.

She started at Pomona College on

Braking the public pay

Why should any local official be paid more than the governor? That is the question many are asking as property owners are being driven from their homes and major cities court bankruptcy. Yet the numbers in city, county and special districts, including the school districts, whose salaries nearly equal and even exceed that of the governor, continue to grow.

That there is an increasing resentment on the part of the people of the high salaries being paid those in government can be seen in the rejections by the voters of bond issues and tax overrides. It has also been exhibited in efforts to place measures on the ballot to limit public pay.

The publics' feelings are understandable when one takes a close look at the earning of California's citizens. According to the Franchise Tax Board less than 25 per cent of the state's 20 million earn enough to pay state income taxes. Fewer than 50 per cent of those paying taxes earn more than $10,000 a year. Only 276,000 earn $30,000 or more.

What that means is that more than half of the taxpayers are supporting their families on less than $10,000 a year while paying taxes for government officials to live in a luxury they themselves can't afford. More than 93 per cent of them are paying taxes to provide government salaries greater than their own.

Neither inflation nor necessity can be blamed for this situation as much as the failure of the Legislature to clamp a lid on public pay.

Instead, although the laws for many years did require its approval for pay increases for various county officials, the lawmakers found the burden too onerous and delegated its authority.

But today, even more than in former years, there is compelling reason for the state to limit local government pay scales. Not just because they have demonstrated their inability to maintain control over such matters but for the reason that the state is furnishing the money for their frivolity. Of the $12 billion state budget just passed by the Legislature about 75 per cent of it will be parcelled out to local government in shared revenue, property tax reimbursements, and for education, health and welfare programs. Holding the purse strings, the state has both the right and the duty to spell out the spending.

The Legislature need not concern itself with the setting of salaries for the multitude of job classifications. There is a simple way if one starts with the premise that none in state or local government should be paid more than the governor. All that is necessary is to enact a law prohibiting any public employe from being paid a salary greater than 90 per cent of that paid the governor.

An even better law would relate the jobs to other top state positions. District attorneys and others in legal work would not be paid more than 90 per cent of the Attorney General's salary. School officials would be similarly limited by the salary paid the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and fiscal types would be restricted by the pay for the State Controller.

This approach would appear to be the simplest solution to the problem for, by limiting the top local offices to something less than the similar state positions, it automatically puts a ceiling on all the local positions below them.

It also is a means of instilling some sound reasoning into local government pay. How can a local official argue that he is worth more than the guy in the top spot with statewide responsibility? Should a county D.A. be paid more than the Attorney General?

Anyone who can argue that might as well say that the governor should get more than the President. When that happens all five million Californians paying income tax can get ready to go on welfare.

Think on these things

If there is somewhere you do not want to be, then never step on the path that leads to it. We always assume we can stop the motion and get off before we get to where we don't like it. But sometimes the going fascinates us so that we're there before we know what has happened.

We are free to choose according to our inner strength. What am I strong enough to avoid, or to bear, or to eventually live with? Everything is a matter of choice. It is certain that we can't be everywhere and do everything so we have to choose the right road that will lead us to better things. One of those choices is to think freely about the future. Project ahead in thought. Is it good or bad? Look back and think what you would do to change it. And then do it now while your nose and your toes and your thoughts are still in your control.

Joyce Hifler welcomes your letters and will try to answer each one. P.O. Box 788, Bartlesville, Oklahoma 74003.

Few men of courage

Dear Editor:

"How are the mighty fallen, and the weapons of war perished!"

Today, the African Archipelago and their Communist masters must be chortling at the discomfiture of our government by the heartless execution of an American in Angola.

The weak and despicable conduct of our American (?) leaders must present an avenue for opportunism to each of our ideological foes. Our vacillating President should learn a lesson from Israel! If those had been Jewish mercenaries in Angola, they would have been freed by Israeli force and alive today. Sen. John Tunney can laugh along with his Angola comrades: it was his resolution (he brags about it) which prevented American intervention into Angola and its ultimate fall into the Communist sphere.

What good is power if it is not used? An American life has been wantonly sacrificed, America insulted, and our stature further diminished because the Reds know that America no longer has leaders with guts!

Our leaders have catered to the outrageous insults and the brazen deceit of the Communists for the past 40 years! Is America to go down by default? Will the Kissinger syndrome of gradual surrender be our ultimate demise? — And all without an opportunity to defend ourselves?

Again. America can learn from Israel: "There is a time for every purpose and for every work." There is little room for pusillanimous platitudes when the task requires strong measures to preserve our national integrity and our self-respect. God help America! We have an abundance of craven politicians — we have few men of courage and righteous determination. Our country is suffering because of the cowardly betrayal by false leaders — the blame belongs to the people who put them in office for their own selfish reasons.

Reagan's vice president

NEW YORK — While Jimmy Carter was narrowing down his vice presidential choices, members of Ronald Reagan's inner circle drew up their own secret, informal list of vice presidential prospects.

They are confident Reagan will win the Republican presidential nomination next month and will choose a running mate from their list.

The surprise on the list is Ambassador to Britain Anne Armstrong. Even Reagan's most chauvinistic advisers have said they could support the dynamic ambassador. She is one of the three top contenders.

Another hot prospect is Treasury Secretary William Simon, a conservative like Reagan but a loyal supporter of President Ford. Simon also has the respect of the Eastern money establishment. Reagan's inner circle feels that Simon, because of his devotion to Ford, would draw the party together after the President's anticipated defeat.

The third leading contender is William Ruckelshaus, who has served alternately as deputy attorney general. FBI chief and environmental czar. He was a victim of Richard Nixon's notorious "Saturday Night Massacre" which forced out the first special Watergate prosecutor, Archibald Cox.

Considered but rejected by the inner circle, barring an unlikely change of heart, are Reagan's able campaign chairman, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R.-Nev., and former Treasury Secretary John Connally.

Laxalt has made a highly favorable impression on the people around Reagan. But Laxalt's home state of Nevada is too close to California to make a balanced ticket.

In Connally's case, his "big government" concepts have alarmed some Reagan backers. They also fear the milk scandal and Connally's reputation for wheeling-dealing may taint the ticket, even though he was acquitted of criminal charges.

Down the list are three senators who at least are under consideration by the Reagan strategists. They are Sens. Howard Baker, R.-Tenn., a celebrity of the Watergate hearings; William Brock, R.-Tenn., an archconservative far to the right of Reagan; and Mark Hatfield, R.-Ore., a liberal who could broaden the Republican spectrum.

Reagan's own thinking, according to sources close to him, is that he wants a vice president who would carry on his political philosophy.

BURGEONING BUREAUCRACY: The Senate has jumped the gun on Jimmy Carter's campaign promise to streamline the government. In a joint operation, the Senate Commerce and Government Operations committees are studying ways to revamp the burgeoning bureaucracy.

The joint study has already produced evidence that federal agencies can be cut back, that the last four administrations did not usually appoint qualified people to run federal agencies and that regulatory agencies put off important decisions for an unconscionable time.

Carter will learn from the unpublished Senate study, for example, that it took the Food and Drug Administration nearly 11 years to decide how many peanuts should be required in peanut butter. He owns a peanut farm in Georgia.

So far, the study supports Carter's stance against big government. He has bragged that, as Governor of Georgia, he cut 300 state agencies down to 22. But skeptics doubt that he will ever be able to curb the massive federal bureaucracy. They point out that the strongest of Presidents have found themselves but small dogs wagged by a giant bureaucratic tail.

Sens. Abraham Ribicoff, D.-Conn., and Charles Percy, R.-Ill., disagree. They ordered the Senate study and are determined to implement it. They will push legislation, based on the study, to make the government more efficient.

To counsel them, the senators have formed a panel of advisers consisting of former agency directors, lawyers and economists. Meanwhile, the Senate inquiry has been divided into these approaches:

(1) To eliminate administrative delays; (2) to end overlapping regulatory functions; (3) to increase public participation in the regulatory process; (4) to insure the independence of federal agencies from political pressures; (5) to upgrade the quality of presidential appointments; (6) to improve congressional oversight; and (7) to determine the necessity of regulations.

Ribicoff kicked off the study with this pledge to his colleagues: "We are prepared to take a hard look at the facts and let the chips fall where they may."

The preliminary findings have confirmed Jimmy Carter's worst fears. After 33 years, for example, the Federal Communications Commission hasn't resolved a single dispute between two broadcasters.

Paul Harvey

Purple Heart for Pat Nixon

May I respectfully propose a Purple Heart decoration for Pat Nixon. If any soldier was ever wounded in action, it was she. We're told that strokes can result from prolonged stress, triggered by a trifle.

Three things happened on July 7, any one of which could have been that last straw. She saw a front page article by a former White House flunky captioned: "I Don't Think Pat Nixon Drank Too Much."

That same day her husband decided to make a campaign speech for a congressional candidate in Yorba Linda. And with this symptom, however slight, that her husband just might want back into politics . . .

I can hear something inside her saying, "Oh, no! I can't take anymore."

Another experience of that day which had to be traumatic was watching on television the grand reception for Queen Elizabeth of England at our White House.

Watching — from such a distance — that reception, hosted by another First Family, brought into such sharp focus all that has happened.

Pat Nixon felt the stroke coming on Wednesday night. Without telling her family, she went to bed. The next morning she could not get up.

I knew Mrs. Nixon only from a distance. It is my understanding that nobody outside her immediate family ever really got close to Pat Nixon.

She'd spent her adolescence nursing her mother until her mother died of cancer and nursing her father who suffered from silicosis and helping in the fields with the hard labor of their family vegetable farm.

She suffered the anguish of any war wife during those years and, though she did not prefer public life, she remained beside her husband through victories and defeats, an uncomplaining companion.

The public on the campaign trail and around the world saw Pat Nixon as tireless, outgoing, modest, chic, so cool as to be almost regal in her bearing, even under fire.

I've never quite understood the military mentality. It seems we reserve our decorations for those individuals who, with a single act of valor, capture an enemy machine gun nest or blow up an enemy bridge or drag a fallen comrade to safety.

Anyone who has survived a single act of heroism knows that such is often an act of impulse or indoctrination rather than of will. One can win a Silver Star in one shining moment or a Purple Heart from a finger cut on a K-ration can. Yet there is neither reward nor recognition for the endurables.

And for the women who have lived and suffered and died with them, neither medals nor monuments. There is a deep-rooted antipathy for the Richard Nixons which goes all the way back to "another war," to the days when an alien "ism" had a foothold in our own country and Nixon vigilance exposed that invasion and humiliated its supporters.

They never forgave him. For two decades they lay in wait for a Watergate — and revenge. In the light of what's been exposed on Capitol Hill since, any Nixon indiscretions appear innocently pallid by comparison. But the wounds suffered by the family were mortal wounds.

I would hope that for some recognition of her gallantry, above and beyond the call of duty, we might not wait until too late.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

The modern version of our Constitutional Rights, according to some of our Congressmen is, Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Women. — Those are the same Congressmen, by the way, who are also firmly convinced that the wages of sin are public office.

— And while we are discussing the laws of the land as they apply to office holders, it should also be mentioned that they mean one thing for the governed and another for those who do the governing. Which is why the Commissioner on Aging in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has been exempted for another year from mandatory retirement. — But dear, kind, long-suffering common people, take heart!

All is not lost. Didn't the Supreme Court recently rule that newly elected government officials can not clean house and fire subordinates who belong to the opposition party? And if it is any consolation, always remember that if the Supreme Court isn't equal to the task of weeding out unfit politicians, those politicians' girl-friends will ultimately succeed in doing the job.

Isabella gets eviction notice

By EARL G. WATERS

After nearly a century they are finally moving Isabella out of the State Capitol. In all that time no one has ever come forward with a sound explanation of what she was doing there. The reference is to a marble statue of Columbus kneeling at the feet of Spain's Queen Isabella as she bestows her jewels upon him. Donated to the state in 1883 by Darius O. Mills, it has stood in the rotunda of the Capitol ever since. Reconstruction has made the removal of the building interior and fixtures necessary.

If the statue is returned after work completion it will be a colossal mistake, perpetuating a fiction of history as well as a bad precedent of exhibiting relics in the Capitol, especially those completely unrelated to California.

For, the romantic story taught school children of the queen pawning her jewels to finance the voyages is a fairy tale. The very idea of Columbus prostrating himself to win her support is hogwash. He was a proud and arrogant man who demanded a knighthood, admiralty and viceroyship, as well as ten per cent of all treasure and revenues from the lands he hoped to find.

His exploits had nothing whatsoever to do with California. In actual fact he didn't even "discover" America. He set out to find a shorter route to India and died not knowing he hadn't. His explorations centered in the Caribbean and, although he touched upon the shores of Panama and Venezuela, he never realized he had found a landmass supposedly unknown.

The supposition is false. Five hundred years before Columbus the Norse explorer Leif Eriksson crossed the Atlantic to the coast of Newfoundland. Obviously, communication was bad in those days and the rest of the continentals didn't get the word.

Insofar as modern history is concerned the real discoverer of America was a mariner, Amerigo Vespucci who, sailing under the flag of Portugal, made landing in 1502 along the Rio de la Plata and identified his findings as a new continent. Although he never set foot on North America, the continents were named after him.

The first explorer of that era to view the upper continent of the new world was the Italian captain, John Cabot, sailing for England. He anchored in the Gulf of St. Lawrence in 1497.

As for California, credit generally is accorded the Spaniard, Juan Rodrigues Cabrillo, as being the first European to view the state which he named after the mythical land of gold and fabulous women described in the 15th century novel "Las Sergas de Esplandian". That was in 1540. The colonization of the state was to await Father Junipero Serra more than 200 years later. The Atlantic seaboard had by then been settled for more than 150 years and was only seven years away from revolution.

If the statue isn't symbolic of any event connected with the state perhaps there is something significant about the donor. Hardly. Mills gets small mention if any in the history books. Amid the gold rush he was involved in mining and became president of the Bank of California which later collapsed. He dickered with Collis P. Huntington for his interests in the Central Pacific (later Southern Pacific) but the deal was never made. How he came by the statue is not known. Why he gave it to the state can only be conjectured. Maybe he wanted to get rid of a white elephant and hit upon the bright idea of establishing it as a monument to himself.

The State Capitol was built as the seat of government. It was to be a functional building, not a museum. If for some obscure reasons there are those who believe some statuary will enhance it, at least the figures should have some significance in the state's history.

Ann Landers

It's OK, everybody does it

Dear Ann Landers: These days, when one hears so much about cheating and lying and crooks in high places, will you please rerun a column that appeared 10 years ago? It had to do with a boy named Johnny and the example his elders had set for him from the early days of his life. I believe it might help a great many parents understand why their kids "went wrong." I've carried that column since 1966, and I'll bet you've added a lot of readers since then. Thanks, Ann. — St. Petersburg Friend

Dear Friend: I know precisely the column you want and here it is, with my thanks for asking.

"IT'S OK, SON, EVERYBODY DOES IT"

When Johnny was six years old, he was with his father when they were caught speeding. His father handed the officer a five-dollar bill, along with his driver's license. "It's OK, son," his father said as they drove off. "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was eight, he attended a family get-together, presided over by Uncle George. All the relatives were instructed on the best techniques for chiseling on their income tax returns. "It's OK, kid," his uncle said, "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was nine, his mother took him to his first theater production. The box-office man couldn't find any seats until his mother discovered an extra two dollars in her purse. "It's OK, son," she said. "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was 12, he broke his glasses on the way to school. His Aunt Francine persuaded the insurance company that they had been stolen and they collected $27. "It's OK, kid," she said. "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was 15, he made right guard on the high school football team. His coach showed him how to block and at the same time grab the opposing tackle by the shirt so the official couldn't see it. "It's OK, kid," the coach siad. "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was 16, he took his first summer job at a supermarket. His assignment was to put the overripe tomatoes in the bottom of the boxes and the good ones on top where they would show. "It's OK, kid," the manager said. "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was 18, he and his buddy who lived next door applied for college scholarships. Johnny was a marginal student. His neighbor was in the upper 10 per cent of his class, but he couldn't play right guard. Johnny made it, but his buddy didn't. "It's OK," he told himself. "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was 19, he was approached by an upperclassman who offered him the answers to an exam for $10. "It's OK," he told himself. "Everybody does it."

Johnny was caught and sent home in disgrace. "How could you do this to your mother and me?" his father said. "You never learned anything like that at home." His aunt and uncle were also shocked.

If there's one thing the adult world can't stand, it's a kid who cheats . . .

First computer was a rockpile

The first computer was a stack of rocks piled high on the grounds of Balmoral Castle, Queen Elizabeth's home in Scotland. It was a rallying point over many years for the Farquharson clan before they went into battle. Each warrior brought a stone with him there and threw it onto the heap. After the fight, each surviving Farquharson took a stone away from the heap. The remaining stones represented the number of clansmen slain.

HEAR CORN GROW

Q. "I contend that a man can stand in a field of waist-high corn on a hot still day after a rain and actually hear the corn grow because of the squeaking and the popping. When I so stated to a couple of part time farmers who work for me, they hollered, hooted and pritnear rolled on the floor. Am I crazy?"

A. Not at all, sir. The record is full of reports from people who claim they've heard the corn grow.

The occasion when a woman is most likely to talk to herself is while she's rolling up her hair. It's while driving home alone from work that a man is most apt to do that thing.

No, it's not at all out of the question for a big tree to have half a million leaves, sir . . . Anther nominee for the Proper Job Club is Mrs. Brite Sink of Salisbury, N.C., identified as a housewife . . . Anosmia is the name of what that condition suffered by those who've lost the sense of smell.

CUT WEEDS

Can the local government force you by law to cut the weeds on your property? A circuit court in Madison, Wisc., thinks not, evidently. It has ruled that laws which require such mowing are unconstitutional. Donald Hager, a wildlife biologist with the U. S. Forest Service, had been charged with letting his weed patch depress property values thereabouts. He contended he had the right to let native plants grow on his private land. He won.

Dr. Miller

Dog's sniffing very exciting

DEAR DR. MILLER: Cappy, our beagle, has a nose that works all the time, or so it seems. It's either in the air sniffing or, more usually, on the ground sniffing. I can't see what he finds to sniff that much about. Is it just a nervous habit? — N. V.

DEAR N. V.: Certainly it's hard for Homo sapiens, sight-oriented as he is, to see how a sense of smell could be that exciting. Have you ever been stirred by a beautiful sunset? Well, your color-blind canine couldn't be, but he could become enraptured by incredible blendings of sense and smell far beyond anything Homo spaiens can imagine. Cappy's corner of the world is filtered first and foremost not throught his eyes, as is yours, but through his nose. This is not surprising when you consider that his sense of smell may be 200 times more sensitive than yours.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Fluffy, my cat, has had gum trouble for years. Her mouth has always been taken good care of, cleaned and all that, but treatment for the gums never does much good. I was talking to a doctor about it and he mentioned leukemia. He scared me so badly I hung up on him. What possible connection could there be between a stubborn gum condition and leukemia? — L. E.

DEAR L. E.: Chronic gingivitis, particularly in a cat with clean teeth, may be due to various types of infections and allergic-type reactions. The lowered resistance of a cat is frequently a factor. The doctor mentioned leukemia virus because cats who are leukemia carriers are ones who frequently have a generally lowered resistance as a result of damage to their immune system. This deficient immune response may be directly related to the presence of the leukemia virus.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My hamster, Squirmy, sometimes gets loose and jumps out of my hands onto the floor. It doesn't hurt her, does it? She never acts like it. The rug is soft. If it does, how do you keep her from getting loose sometimes? — D. P.

DEAR D. P.: Falling for a couple of feet or, more specifically, whatever she lands on, could be very dangerous for Squirmy. Most animals are subject to serious injury when they fall several times beyond their body height. Since any hamster can be a handful to hold, the safest way to handle Squirmy is only when you're sitting down with her on the floor.

Erma Bombeck

Only a hairdresser would know

Speaking of my hair . . . you may remember that in the last episode, I opted for the Brillo pad look, which followed the Grace Kelly syndrome (I was blessing children in supermarkets), which came after the wig that got dandruff and died.

Don't get me wrong. I loved the little tight curls close to my head, it's only when they started to grow out that I looked like an aging pepper plant.

That's when I went for the Blow n' Go. In my mind, I saw it as a coiffure with the maintenance of a self-cleaning oven. You just set a few dials, and zip, you were ready for the ball.

This isn't exactly true.

My blow n' go blew too much and went too far.

To begin with, you need one of those Dorothy Hamill haircuts, which look terrific, but you get this intense urge to ice skate. Secondly, there are two definitions of blow.

There's blow (verb), to send forth a current of air with force, as a wind that blows gently through the chimes.

There's also blow (noun), a sudden unexpected shock, an unfortunate or calamitous happening.

My blow was definitely an unfortunate and calamitous happening. I laundered my hair and borrowed my son's hair dryer.

Without any warning whatsoever, that dryer sucked up my two pitiful strands of hair, nearly pulling my feet off the floor. It was only by a miracle that I was able to kick the plug out of the wall, thus saving my entire face from being devoured by the appliance.

"That dryer nearly killed me," I said to my son.

"You used a dryer for that measly amount of hair? For that you could just hang out of the no-draft in the car. What do they call it?"

"A blow n' go."

"Go where?"

"Any place you want to go."

"You're kidding. You look like a guy I know in the Marine corps. He's too embarrassed to go anyplace."

When my husband came home he looked at me and said, "What happened to your hair?"

"I blew it," I said.

He shook his head. "I'll say."

Dr. Lamb

Can't eat all and stay slim

Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband and I need to lose a lot of weight. We have both faced the fact that what started as a middle-aged spread has ballooned into a problem of major proportions.

Since we have decided to do it we would like to do it and get it over with. We thought rather than diet for months we would go on a low carbohydrate, high protein diet. I have heard that all one really has to do is eliminate all carbohydrates for about a week or two then keep the carbohydrates down to a very low level. One can eat anything else and still have the fat just melt away.

Before we start on this diet we thought we would like to know for certain that it would not damage us in any way. I recall that there was a lot of fuss in the papers about the diet when it first came out. Will you tell us if it is safe for us to follow or not?

DEAR READER — I don't recommend it! Despite the exaggerated claims made in the promotion of the diet you speak of there is no magic way you can eat all you want to eat and stay slim — unless the food on the diet is sufficiently unappealing that all you want of it contains a limited number of calories.

The intial dramatic weight losses with such diets is not because the person loses fat at all. It is because the body loses its normal water content and is dried out. When you severely restrict your carbohydrate intake you cause the kidneys to eliminate an excess amount of salt from the body and with that goes a lot of water. This initial weight loss from dehydration will level off in a couple of weeks.

However the sudden loss of water — not fat — in the first week, coupled with emptying out the digestive system is enough to hook the unwary individual into thinking that a miracle has taken place and some will stay with the diet until they have lost actual fat because they have really been eating less calories. Amost all the diet frauds you see highly advertised depend on tricking you with that initial water loss and, of course, on that human failing of wanting success without pain, riches without work and a slim attractive body while gorging on high-calorie foods.

I am sending you a copy of The Health Letter number 2-2, Low Carbohydrate Diet Fads so you can get a better idea of how these diets work or affect your body and why so much of the things claimed for such diets are just not so. Others who want information on low carbohydrate diets can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

When you lose water with one of the diet gimmicks and the scales show you lost pounds just remember that as soon as you quit the diet and regain the water water your body needs for normal health that you will regain the pounds.

I have mentioned repeatedly that I do not approve of crash diets. I know you are impatient but it took years to get the way you are. It will take a long time to lose weight safely and sensibly, to regain your former physical appearance. A pound of fat contains about 3500 calories. Your job is to use excess calories stored as fat while you are taking in less calories. A well-balanced, sensible diet combined with adequate regular physical activity is your best bet for both your health and your appearance.

Better never than late

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The ostrich is supposed to stick his head in the sand and assume that makes him invisible.

North's pass over West's two spades was an example of what we have called the "Ostrich bid".

As North explained later, he had no defense and passed in the hope that East and West would not go on. Then after East did bid four spades North decided to take the save at five diamonds.

The defense took two spades and shifted to a heart. Later South played ace and a low club from dummy and managed to get out for down two.

Needless to say, South was most unhappy about the whole thing. The fact that he had made a good play in clubs was no consolation at all.

Suppose North had bid three diamonds. East would have gone on to four spades and South would have passed. North would have passed also and his side would wind up with a profit since East just can't make his spade game.

Explosion of tortoises at S.D. Zoo

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Galapagos Island tortoises, which were having problems hatching their eggs at the San Diego Zoo, are suddenly in the midst of a population boom, zoo officials say.

The largest tortoise hatching at the zoo from a single clutch of eggs is underway, said Dr. James Bacon, the zoo's curator of reptiles.

Bacon said Thursday that eight tortoises have hatched completely and three more are about to hatch, making 11 of the slow-moving, long-lived creatures.

The previous zoo hatching record was set in 1963, when nine tortoises were hatched from a single clutch, he said.

Book on solar water heater most popular

WINTER PARK, Fla. (AP) — A new edition of one of Florida's more popular paperback publications is hot off the press. But there's nothing risque about "Build Your Own Solar Water Heater."

The Environmental Information Center here is again distributing the do-it-yourself softback, which Director William M. Partington said is larger and more detailed than the original. Some 20,000 first-edition copies were distributed in the last year without hardsell marketing.

"Last year's overwhelmingly popular reaction to its smaller booklet on the same subject prompted the center to produce this new version," Partington said, adding that there are 2,500 copies in this edition.

"Although the first book was written primarily for Florida residents, requests flooded in from all parts of the country and even from foreign countries," Partington added. "I really don't know how people hear about it."

The booklet describes the materials needed and goes through construction step by step. It estimates costs of the material — heat collectors, circulation pipes and a storage tank — at about $700.

The non-profit center, with a full-time staff of three and some volunteer help promotes the booklet by sending copies to publications.

He said the privately funded center received an especially large number of requests for the booklet from California and New England — "one hot and sunny, the other cold and dreary" — and Canada.

Partington also said the range of persons requesting copies is broad.

"This thing cuts across all boundaries, from professionals and political leaders to prisoners and motel owners," he said. Several prisoners from Georgia and Florida have asked for copies — but he said he doesn't know if the inmates build the heaters in their cells.

A sampling of 323 people in the Orlando area, who were among those requesting the first edition, showed about half had built a solar water heater, were in the process of doing so or were awaiting parts, said Wayne Gantt, an engineer at the center.

Dr. Erich Farber, director of the Solar Energy Laboratory at the University of Florida in Gainesville, said recently that a survey showed 60,000 solar water heaters in use in the Miami area alone.

"We did not determine how many of them are new units, built since the energy crisis of 1973," Farber said. "But the number of dusinesses opening in this field indicates a good public demand."

New York stores, restaurants 'keep prices' down'

NEW YORK (AP) — For the visitor to the Democratic National Convention, it can cost $5 for a hamburger and French fries, $40 for a single hotel room, more than $2 for a drink and up to 80 cents for a cup of coffee.

But with few exceptions, the New York hotels housing the convention visitors and the restaurants and stores in the areas around them have not raised their prices in the past month.

The Associated Press checked prices at hotels, restaurants and stores a month ago and rechecked them this week when the convention opened. The conclusion: prices in New York are very high, but the average conventioneer is not getting ripped off much, if at all.

Lola Preiss, an official at the New York Hilton, which is housing six convention delegations, said it would be self-defeating to raise prices for the convention after thousands of dollars had been spent to promote the city.

One deterrent to ripoff prices is the presence of 35 city consumer inspectors, who have been prowling businesses in convention areas to make sure that visitors get a fair shake and that the city's deteriorating image is not further damaged.

A few eateries in the area surrounding Madison Square Garden, site of the convention, have raised their prices.

A bartender at the Briefkase Pub II said his boss had increased mixed drinks by a quarter to $1.60 and upped the price of a glass of draft beer by a dime to $1.10 the day the convention opened. The Brew and Burger across the street from the Garden raised the price of a hamburger from $1.65 to $1.88 and a steak from $5.95 to $6.50.

Koula's restaurant, a block away from the Garden, crossed out prices in its window. The price of a meal of broiled chicken, fruit salad and coffee was raised from $4.20 to $4.70.

Otherwise, few price hikes could be found. The convention's headquarters hotel, the Statler-Hilton, and the Americana, where Jimmy Carter is staying, have raised their room rates. But convention visitors are paying lower rates guaranteed months ago.

Some food prices in those two hotels are higher, but the cost for services are unchanged. And prices at such convention hotels as the Berkshire, Warwick and City Square, at stores in Rockefeller Center and at many businesses in Times Square remained the same.

Even street vendors kept prices stable.

Hot dogs from street vendors were selling for 45 cents around the Garden, a nickel cheaper than in some areas of the city.

N.Y. sex industry ignored by Demos

NEW YORK (AP) — For months before the Democrats came to town, police and prosecutors tried to knock the city's sex industry off its platform heels. Now it turns out the Democrats are largely ignoring Gotham and Gomorrah.

The topless bars are far from crowded. Trade at the massage parlors, which are only veiled bordellos, is off.

And the streetwalkers — police guess there are 3,000 of them — say they're jittery about approaching "Johns" because too many policemen are on the street acting like lustful delegates.

Damon Runyon once tagged it "sinful Times Square," and if anything has changed since his day, it's only that the sinfulness ranges farther afield. Times Square has blocks of strip joints, porn movies, peep shows, gay follies, nude studios and even one establishment with the telling name "Pleasure Seekers Club."

And it's not just on the square. Police figure there are some 100 sex-for-sale shops in the flesh market that starts on the uptown side of Madison Square Garden and stretches for 15 blocks, mingling with fancy hotels and chipping away at New York's prized theater district.

All around the area, if not all around the town, business was said to be off. Around the Garden, the lads from the vice squad have scared away many of the streetwalkers. Farther away, there were fears of "delegates" who carry badges different from conventioneers.

But the higher-priced prostitutes still work the hotel bars — like the lady in the purple dress at the Americana's Jockey Bar.

Looking to be in her 20s, she couldn't seem to slide onto barstools without brushing her knee against the guy next door. Then she landed a live one — he had silver hair, wore a string tie and used a cane.

And a bartender at the Americana, who asked to remain nameless, offered another view of where delegates may be seeking unconventional pleasures:

"When these convention guys come to town they bring phone numbers. The East Side is full of call girls, real classy."

Back at the more obvious haunts, the mood was less than gay.

"These Democrats are a weird bunch. They're staying away," said Michelle Andrews, a hostess at the "49er," a midtown spot where drinks cost $3 and the dancers wear little more than earrings.

"So where's the business?" complained Bruno Treet, manager-bouncer of a massage parlor just steps from Broadway. "We've had nothing but our steady customers."

Karen, a 22-year-old lady of the streets, says, "Who can work? The cops are busting everybody."

Police deny they've been sweeping up the local talent. But they are enforcing what on Sunday became New York's latest statute against the world's oldest profession.

The law makes it illegal to loiter for the purpose of prostitution and is aimed at both the gal and the guy. The burden of determining "purpose of prostitution" is left to the arresting officer.

The law is scoffed at by the New York Civil Liberties Union, which distributed pamphlets telling how to skirt the statute. Apparently, though, not all the ladies have gotten the pamphlets.

"It can make things tough," admits Sheila, an Eighth Avenue hooker. "We're afraid of the law, and I think the convention people are too. Somebody told them to avoid us."

N.Y. hawkers inspired by Demo parley

NEW YORK (AP) — It's called Fashion Avenue. But New York's Seventh Avenue seems more like Carnival Boulevard this week.

The Democratic convention that opened Monday night at Madison Square Garden has inspired hawkers to peddle everything from leftover Bicentennial banners to bright colored neon necklaces. Pamphleteers of practically every political and social cause assault the skies with shouts and slogans.

Passersby must weave their way through a sea of police blue, TV cameramen and photographers. Even if they don't stick their hands out to accept a pamphlet or brochure, they discover one stuffed into a shopping bag or pocket.

High above this peddler's paradise looms the electrically lit International Ladies Garment Workers Union "Welcome Democrats" sign at 34th Street near the threshold to the Garden.

There, the six members of the Ben Bentura High Society Jazz Band, dressed in red and white candy stripe jackets, warm up for four hours of Dixieland music.

Nearby, a lacquered peanut campaign pin for presidential candidate Jimmy Carter is being sold for $1. A sign boasts that it is a "collector's item." Not too far away, a cigarchomping hawker stands behind a pushcart covered with hundreds of buttons advertising one's race, religion, sexual persuasion and work habits. They sell for 50 cents and $1, depending on size.

In a constant parade in front of the Garden, placard carriers for restaurants carry large, garish signs above their heads.

Robin Memblatt stands in the middle of it all. She was so elated when she found out the convention would be just a few blocks away from her dress boutique she rushed out and had 2,000 flyers printed.

But business has not picked up. In fact, she said, none of the convention delegates will even accept the handouts, which offer them a 10 per cent discount. Why?

"Because they think it's a massage parlor," she said. The name of the boutique is Creative Dressing.

Meanwhile, Jews for Jesus in bright yellow T-shirts dot the avenue passing out brochures along with antiabortion foes and gay rights activists. The League of Women Voters collects signatures for a petition to have a candidates debate. The National Prison Reform Advisory Board has a table laden with literature in front of the Garden entrance.

Proabortion advocates and demonstrators against cutbacks in day care were squared off back-to-back across the street.

But the person who appeared to be attracting the most attention was Franklin Burke of St. Petersburg, Fla., who, in a Uncle Sam costume, stood smiling with apple in one hand and American flag in the other.

"I came to take part in this great Democratic convention," said the man who paid $40 for red, white and blue tophat, cutaway, vest and beard. "I wanted to dress up as Uncle Sam and have a little fun, because Uncle Sam is recognized as a great patriotic figure."

The apple, he said, represented New York City and not pie.

Recruiter says of executed soldier

Mercenary had been in firefights

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Daniel Gearhart, the American mercenary executed in Angola, penetrated enemy territory, engaged in several firefights and was commended by his British commander, says the man who recruited him.

Gearhart, 34, of Kensington, Md., and three British mercenaries were killed by a firing squad last Saturday. During his trial, Gearhart testified he was in Angola only a few days when captured and that he never fired his weapon.

"It wasn't three or four days. Gearhart went over with me and we were there for several weeks before he was taken prisoner," said David Bufkin, 39, who advertised nationally for mercenaries to fight in Angola before, he said, he decided to go over himself.

Bufkin said in an interview Monday he didn't discuss Gearhart's participation before "because his defense was he hadn't fired a shot," and Bufkin said he didn't want to compromise that position.

Bufkin, who works as a cropduster, said he accompanied Gearhart to Angola, along with a number of other mercenaries he recruited, including Gary Acker, 21, of Sacramento, Calif., and Gus Grillo, 27, of Jersey City, N.J.

Grillo and Acker were captured, tried as mercenaries and are serving jail terms in Angola. Acker identified Bufkin during his trial as the man who recruited him to fight in Angola.

Bufkin said his role as a mercenary was that of a pilot, flying a light observer plane reporting the positions and movement of Cuban troops fighting in the African country.

Bufkin gave this account of the American mercenaries' role in Angola:

"We all went over together, flying the usual mercenary route to Africa through Paris and Belgium. When we arrived in Sao Salvador, Danny's first assignment was a deep-penetration patrol into enemy-held territory to gather intelligence. The patrol completed its penetration, and Danny returned with the information he was sent to get.

"Later, Danny was assigned to a British reconnaissance patrol. Danny's mission on that patrol, which was conducted in Jeeps and British Land Rovers, was to approach enemy positions in the Tomboco area, make contact with the enemy and return with information on the enemy's strength and positions.

"Danny's patrol did make contact, engaged in a firefight, and returned to report the positions.

"In between those patrols, he was assigned to set up portions of the defense perimeter around Sao Salvador and was training black troops to help defend that town, which was coming under assaults."

Sao Salvadore was the headquarters of the National Front, the FNLA, a pro-Western guerrilla organization supported by the mercenaries. The Angolans charged Gearhart with "commanding a combat section," laying minefields and helping direct the defense of Sao Salvador.

"Danny did a very good job and was commended by Cmdr. Peter MacAleese," Bufkin said. "It was a verbal commendation and was accompanied by a cash bonus. Mercenaries don't get medals. They get cash and a pat on the back.

"The day they were captured, three patrols were sent out from Sao Salvador. The mission of one patrol was to blow a bridge leading to Sao Salvador if Cuban forces were approaching.

"Gearhart and Grillo were in the second patrol in Land Rovers with a bunch of Portugese mercenaries, and Acker and a Canadian were in the third patrol. Both of these patrols had crossed the bridge.

"I was flying a Cessna 172 and Cmdr. MacAleese was aboard as radio operator and observer. MacAleese spotted a Cuban armored column on the road approaching our two patrols. We tried to warn them but we were unable to make radio contact.

"They drove right into about 2,000 Cuban troops. The Portugese were killed along with an American. Some of the others were wounded and Acker, Grillo and Gearhart were captured."

Shortly after that Sao Salvador fell, and Bufkin and MacAleese fled to safety.

Bufkin also said Acker, Grillo and Gearhart received $1,000 in advance pay and $700 for expenses as soon as they arrived in Angola.

During the trial, Gearhart said he sent the money to his wife, Sheila. Mrs. Gearhart said she never received any money.

Bufkin said Acker, Grillo and Gearhart entrusted their money to a mercenary who was returning to the United States and was to distribute it to their families. Bufkin said the mercenary arrived in New York and, through "a breakdown in communications," used the money in a renewed effort to recruit more mercenaries.

"Unfortunately, the Angolan government (that the mercenaries supported) collapsed and there was no more money," said Bufkin.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., said Monday the "basic arrangements have been made" for the Angolans to send Gearhart's body home. Parishoners of the Gearhart's church in suburban Kensington Md., had guaranteed payment of the $5,000 demanded for the release of the body of the Vietnam veteran.

Gearhart's widow had said Sunday she could not raise the money, noting that she and her four children are now on welfare. But she said she was determined to have the body of her husband returned for burial.

Aging B52s keeping tabs on Soviet Atlantic fleet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aging Air Force B52 bombers are being assigned to help the Navy keep watch on Soviet warships in the far reaches of the Atlantic Ocean.

The Pentagon announced Tuesday that the giant eight-engine, long-range jet bombers have started flying sea reconnaissance-surveillance missions from U.S. bases.

"Only a few aircraft will be involved in the flights, which will occur from time to time over various Atlantic Ocean areas of operation," the Pentagon said in a brief announcement.

Indications are that the heavy bombers will conduct high altitude surveillance missions with their standard cameras, radar and other electronic equipment, while Navy P3 patrol planes cover the ocean lanes at lower altitutudes.

In the past, the armed services have jealously guarded their traditional missions against encroachment. But in this case, the Pentagon said, Navy and Air Force chiefs have signed a formal agreement to share the sea surveillance responsibility "in accordance with the spirit and intent of mutual reinforcement."

The Pentagon says budget limitations and cutbacks over the past seven years have reduced the Navy's over-ocean reconnaissance capability "to minimum peacetime levels."

The announcement said, "The purpose of having U.S. Air Force crews trained in maritime operations is to have a readily available force for wartime or crisis use to supplement the Navy until reserve forces can be activated."

The new mission for B52 bombers appears to be the first step in a "maritime strategy," which has been under secret study by the National Security Council for some time.

Eventually, officials have said, land-based Air Force bombers and fighter planes could be used to bottle up Soviet warships in their home bases and to block Russia's Backfire bombers from striking American naval units at sea. The Air Force has assigned older B52 bombers to sea surveillance. There are 172 of these bombers in the Strategic Air Command's total force of 419 B52s. The youngest of the planes is 16 years old.

The Air Force said B52s assigned to ocean reconnaissance will retain their primary mission of delivering nuclear bombs and air-launched missiles at strategic targets in the Soviet Union.

College receptionist...

April 27, 1942, and found herself perched on a backless, four-legged stool at a high table. She entered receipts for various things in a giant cash book which she lugged back to a cupboard each evening.

"I once was told never to mention that I knew how to do a variety of things, or I'd find myself doing all sorts of odd jobs.

"Apparently I didn't keep my mouth closed as much as I should have done.

"Once during the war, I found myself spending a month in the dark, damp basement of Bridges Auditorium mending blueprints with rolls and rolls of tape.

"Another time, I was helping out in the plumbing supply department and found a tiny, hungry bunny which had been trapped in the office over a weekend. The rabbit and I were both uneasy about that encounter."

Among Mrs. Morrison's more exciting experiences have been being "kidnapped" along with a group of young women students in a campus prank and being a passenger in a wagon pulled uphill by men students during a fraternity hell week stunt.

A bottomless well of information about the college and a virtual who's who on administration, faculty and students both still here and long departed, Mrs. Morrison is considered "the right arm" of the admissions staff and telephone operators on the campus.

William L. Wheaton, a former dean of admissions at Pomona College was unable to attend Mrs. Morrison's farewell party but sent a letter which, in part, said:

"A horrible thought just occurred; what will the college telephone operators do when Mrs. Morrison retires? For at least 30 years they have been plugging her in to every distraught, lost, seeking, complaining, curious, kooky caller they couldn't handle."

In his toast at the party, Harry Carroll, professor of classics, said:

"I will always remember that Mildred Morrison was and is and will remain a great lady of dignity, of wisdom, of eminent common sense and of warmth beyond compare."

Just as Mrs. Morrison has seen many changes in the students and in the campus itself, there will be one more major change when she walks out the door today.

Someone will be missing in Sumner Hall. And it will be a someone hard to replace.

Life span

A life span of 47.6 years was average for white Americans in 1900, but that figure had climbed to 71.7 years by 1970. The life expectancy for other races went from 33.0 to 65.3 years.

Tennessee case

The Supreme Court ruled in a Tennessee case, March 26, 1962, that federal courts have the right to scrutinize the apportioning of seats in state legislatures.

Who is law—Canada or IOC?

MONTREAL (AP) — Whose word will be law in Montreal's Olympic Stadium when the Games open Saturday?

"That is our territory," say members of the International Olympic Committee. "We decide what happens there."

But what will the government of Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau do if the IOC defies its wishes and has two Taiwanese yachtsmen parading under the name of the Republic of China?

The U.S. Olympic Committee intervened in the dispute and indicated Wednesday it might withdraw its team from the Games if Taiwan's rights are not respected and the Olympic charter is not honored.

The Americans are "seriously considering withdrawing from the Montreal Olympic Games," said Philip O. Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The Taiwanese, encouraged by the American stand, dug in their heels and said they would not march in the parade under the Olympic flag instead of their own, one compromise plan suggested by the IOC.

The latest ruling by the IOC is that two Taiwanese yachtsmen, already in this country, march in the opening parade under the banner of the Republic of China.

The yachtsmen, brothers named Lim, got around Canada's entry ban because they have dual nationality and have U.S. passports. They have been training at the Olympic yachting center at Kingston, Ont., for two weeks.

Canada refused to allow the rest of Taiwan's team in because they use the name "The Republic of China," which is offensive to Canada's trading partner, Communist China.

But refusing to let 40 athletes in is a different proposition than ordering two yachtsmen out.

And in Ottawa, a spokesman for Prime Minister Trudeau said "there is not spirit in the prime minister's office" to give in to pressure on the issue.

Julian K. Roosevelt, a U.S. member on the IOC, said, "We cannot force the Canadian government to do anything about the Taiwanese athletes held up in the United States. But we can insist that the two yachtsmen, whose entries have been accepted, are not expelled from Canada."

The yachtsmen's entries have been accepted under the name Republic of China by the Montreal organizing committee, which has played no part in the political moves to exclude the Taiwanese.

If the name of the Republic of China is carried aloft in the opening parade, the claims of the Olympic movement to be independent of politics and governments will be put to the test. The ball will be in Trudeau's court.

In Olympic circles they tell a story of the Winter Games at Garmisch-Parkenkirchen, Germany, in 1936 when Hitler was in power. Signs at Olympic sites said "Dogs and Jews not allowed."

The president of the IOC, Count Henri de Baillet-Latour of Belgium, asked for a personal interview with Hitler and told him the signs were offensive.

"Mr. President," said Hitler, "when you are invited to a friend's home, you do not tell him how to run it."

Baillet-Latour replied: "Mr. Chancellor when the Olympic flag is raised over the stadium it is no longer part of Germany. It is Olympia, and we are the masters there."

Next morning the signs had gone.

Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, has bitterly denounced Trudeau's government for what he calls a breach of faith. Ottawa gave the IOC a written pledge in 1969 that all athletes recognized by the ruling body would be freely admitted to Canada for the Montreal Games, "pursuant to the usual regulations."

Killanin said he interpreted that as meaning subject to innoculations and other formalities. He never expected athletes from any country to be refused entry for political reasons.

Since then, Ottawa has recognized the Peking regime and withdrawn recognition of Taiwan.

Americans arrive in Canada

MONTREAL (AP) — Harvey Glance did not seem awed. Benny Brown did. Dwight Stones was unhappy with his roommates. Dr. Leroy Walker fretted over a room assignment chart.

The United States track and field team finally arrived at the 1976 Olympic Village Wednesday, during a rainfall which dampened luggage and caused a number of groans from athletes.

But the excitement of the Olympics was apparent.

Brown, who will run on the 1,600-meter relay team, no sooner had dumped his bags on the floor of his fifth-floor room than he rummaged through a suitcase, found his camera and ran outside on the balcony to snap pictures of the Olympic Stadium two blocks away.

"Well, it's the Olympics," he said to Millard Hampton, winner of the 200-meter race at the U.S. Olympic Trials. "We're finally here."

Stones and fellow high jumper Bill Jankunis both were assigned to a six-man apartment with discus thrower Jay Silvester and shot putter George Woods. The outspoken Stones was upset.

"I like to play my music at midnight," he said pointing to a stereo radio he had brought with him. "Those guys go to bed at 10."

Then he thought a minute and said to Jankunis, "You know, with those two guys in our room we don't have to worry about anyone stealing anything." Silvester weighs 240 pounds and Woods about 290.

Glance, winner of the 100-meter race at the Trials and an Auburn freshman who is only 19 years old, gazed through the rain at the two giant pyramid-shaped buildings in which the athletes will be housed for the next 2½ weeks. He barely said anything.

Walker, the former North Carolina Central University coach who is the head coach of the men's track squad, said plans were being formulated to make sure athletes with competitions coming up could obtain private sleeping quarters the day before their events.

"Actually I'd like to kick out of the Village all those guys who have completed their competitions," said Walker. "Those who are done competing may upset the ones who still have to compete."

But he said an alternative would be to ask athletes whose competitions were over to move into quarters away from those who still must perform.

Most of the athletes were hungry after a long bus trip from their first assembly point at Plattsburgh N.Y., and went to the Village cafeteria for a hearty lunch. When they came out, the rain had stopped.

Steve Scott looks like an Olympian

This year has certainly been a successful one for track and field in the valley.

Pomona High won the CIF 3-A team championship, marking the first time a valley school captured a CIF track title since the same school did it in 1913. San Antonio League athletes scored 124 points at the 3-A finals, nearly double the total of any other league.

Garey won the Chaffey Invitational, the first such title for an area team since Chaffey won its own meet in 1951. And Pomona was runnerup at Chaffey this year.

Mt. San Antonio College won another dual meet championship in the powerful South Coast Conference.

On the individual level, four valley athletes won state titles. Marcus Gordien and Andre Hall of MSAC won community college championships in the discus and high hurdles, respectively, while Lloyd Jones of Ganesha High won the state prep title in the high hurdles and Upland's Kari Gosswiller won the girls' high jump state title.

Pomona-Pitzer's Bob Orell scored a national championship, winning the NCAA Division III javelin title in Chicago.

And finally, four valley athletes got as far as the finals in the Olympic qualifying meet in Eugene, Ore. though none of the four will represent the United States in Montreal.

Stan Whitley of La Verne and Cal International Track Club placed sixth in the long jump with a wind-aided 26-1; Steve Scott of UC Irvine, an Upland High graduate, ran seventh in the 1,500 meters in 3:48.9; John Gregorio of the Colorado Track Club, formerly of Ganesha High and Mt. San Antonio College was ninth in the 5,000-meter run in 14:39.8 and Rey Brown of Montclair and the All-American Track Club was 14th in the high jump.

Scott quite young

Perhaps the most impressive of those feats is that of Scott, who at 20 was the youngest among the final field of nine runners in the 1,500.

Steve graduated from Upland just two years ago and already has made a strong showing in an event which, according to Upland cross country and track coach Bob Loney, is dominated by runners between the ages of 24 and 28.

Scott's coach at Irvine, Len Miller, has no reservations about the youngster's ability at 1,500 meters.

"I don't see any reason why he can't be the best in the world in four years," Miller said via telephone.

"He has the basic speed it requires — in that respect I'd say he's equivalent to John Walker," the Australian favored to win the 1,500 in Montreal.

"And he's got the stamina, too. He showed that by coming in fourth last fall in the NCAA Division II cross country finals.

"Most importantly, he's got emotional stability," continued Miller. "He really has all the attributes a champion needs."

He has confidence

Steve took the compliment in stride. "I'm going to be competitive," he said. "If I keep improving the way I have been there's no reason why I can't be among the top runners in a few years. You have to have confidence.

"Everything was just great in Eugene," said the personable Irvine undergraduate, a social ecology major. "Everything, that is, except the final race."

After running his best-ever race in 3:40.3 in the quarterfinals and a 3:41.68 in the semis, Scott slipped to 3:48.9 in the finals. That final race got off to an extremely quick start with Tom Byers of Ohio setting an incredible pace.

"There were two ways I could have run that race," said Scott. "I chose to hang back and wait for them to come back to me, but they never did. I could have gone out with them but my coach and I talked it over later and decided that wouldn't have been too good an idea." Byers, incidentally, finished dead last.

"I didn't really think I would make the top three when I went up there but after the semifinals I thought maybe I would. I wish the pace in the final race had been a little more realistic.

"I was really pretty surprised with how well I did and I had a great experience."

Steve is currently involved in three recreation jobs for the summer, including a conditioning clinic which he and a friend are conducting for 8-15-year-olds. He wants to be a track coach at a high school, and perhaps eventually at the college level.

But he still has most of his competitive career ahead of him, after starting out in track just four years ago.

"My goal in four years will be to make it to the Olympics," he said. If things are going well, my goal will be to win the gold medal. But first I just want to make the team."

Chances are very good that he will.

Philip Krumm on hot seat

MONTREAL (AP) - A long-distance telephone call comes to the busy switchboard of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel and the operator with a tinge of a French accent says, "Sorry, sir, I cannot put in a call to Mr. Krumm. He has asked not to be disturbed.

"Would you like to leave a message?"

"Tell him the White House called."

This is not such a ludicrous turn of events in this Olympic city, which has been thrown into turmoil by the Canadian government's refusal to permit the Taiwanese team to compete under its offige, the Republic of China, or under its national colors.

Mr. Krumm is Philip O. Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee. He is sitting on a political hot seat that involves not only the United States' continuing friendship with its good neighbor to the north but also strains its loyalty to the ideals of the Olympic movement.

President Ford is deeply interested, but, according to Krumm, he is applying no pressure.

"I have been reading stories and hearing reports about how President Ford and Secretary Kissinger are urging us to take this action or that action," Krumm said. "None of it is true.

"The President is deeply concerned. But he told me, 'I don't intend to interfere with you. It is an Olympic matter. You have the ball.'"

Sitting in his hotel suite here, heavy-lidded from lack of sleep and a heavy work load, Krumm took a few moments out to describe the President's role in the controversy — a role which the IOC executive contends has been wrongly pictured.

"The President flew to Plattsburgh (N.Y.) last Saturday to see the team off for Montreal, the graying, 69-year-old retired business executive said. "He is a terrific guy. I was one of those who went out to greet him at the plane.

" I got in the back seat of the limousine and suggested that he might want to meet the athletes. He said he did. 'Stick with me,' he said. 'It looks better if two are here.'

" Then we began talking about the possible reaction should the International Olympic Committee withdraw its sanction of the Games as a spokesman had warned.

"The President turned to me and said, 'The United States Olympic Committee has that authority, doesn't it?' Then he added: 'If you get in that spot, call me.'

"He made it clear that he did not approve of government interference in Olympic affairs and he repeated his assurance.

" We are taking no position on this,' he told me. 'It is all in your hands.'"

Krumm said that he has been in communication with the White House two or three times a day during the current crisis.

"I have talked mainly with Jim Cannon, assistant to the President," the USOC president said, "but a couple of times Mr. Ford has come in on the line to make an inquiry about the situation."

The President doesn't always get through. Swamped with calls and messages, Krumm has found it necessary to shut off his phone.

"We are getting calls from everywhere, England, Australia and other places, and at all times of the night and morning," he added. "But when the White House calls, don't worry — we get back right away."

Krumm has been an intermediary in an attempt to keep the Taiwanese in the Games and avoid damage to the Olympic image, meeting a dozen times with Lord Killanin, the IOC president, and making overtures to the Canadian government.

"We have urged the Taiwanese to swallow their pride and march behind the Olympic flag, as they did in Rome 16 years ago," he said. "But they steadfastly refuse. They claim damage to their pride has reached the breaking point.

"We had even hoped to persuade the IOC to permit the two yachtsmen who already are at Kingston and the three officials, all here and fully accredited, be allowed to march in the opening ceremonies with their national flag just as other members. That is being discussed."

Krumm did not deny that the U.S. team had posed the threat of a pullout if the Taiwanese were not accorded the normal courtesies.

"We have not made a final determination. It is a difficult decision. If the United States pulls out, others are sure to follow and that will destroy the Olympic Games. We also have to consider the time and dedication put into preparations by our athletes. Should this be sacrificed because of the dictatorial action of one obstinate man?"

He didn't say Prime Minister Trudeau, but everybody knew whom he meant.

Angels get Solaita, bad news on Bonds

ANAHEIM (AP) — The California Angels have learned that outfielder Bobby Bonds may have to undergo surgery after the season for a bone chip in his right hand.

Bonds, who broke the bone during an exhibition game a week before the season opened, had new x-rays taken recently. Although doctors said he could play out the season, they noted Wednesday that the bone had not healed properly and said the operation may be needed to completely heal the damage.

The Angels, who will open a four-game series in Baltimore tonight, also announced the acquisition of Tony Solaita from Kansas City.

Solaita, 29, is the only Samoan ever to play in the majors. The left-handed hitter was used primarily as a designated hitter and back-up to first baseman John Mayberry by the Royals the past two seasons.

He was hitting a .235 for the Royals this season, with no home runs. But in 1975, he delivered 16 homers — six of them against California — in 231 at bats.

The 6-foot, 215-pounder hit three homers against the Angels in Anaheim in September of last year. He had earlier set a Royals' club record by scoring five runs in a game, a contest in which he hit two homers. That performance came in June of last year — against the Angels.

Adrian Garrett was put on the designated-for-assignment list to make room for Solaita. The club has 10 days to trade Garrett, cut him or send him to the minor leagues.

Chisox deal Rich Coggins

Pomona's Rich Coggins was traded again Wednesday.

The former Garey High star, now a resident of La Verne, was dealt to the Philadelphia Phillies organization by the Chicago White Sox. The Phils assigned Coggins to their Oklahoma City farm club in the American Association.

Coggins was obtained by the White Sox from the New York Yankees who had gotten him from Montreal. The Expos had obtained him from the Baltimore Orioles.

The little outfielder was hitting .156 and had played in 32 games with the White Sox. Last year he batted .224 for the Yankees and .270 for the Expos.

In 1973, he rookie season Coggins hit .319 for Baltimore but fell off to .243 the next year.

In exchange for Coggins, the White Sox got outfielder Wayne Nordhagen who had batted .310 in 74 games at Oklahoma City.

Dodgers appear in better shape

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — The Dodgers are in much better shape this year following the annual All-Star Game break than they were in last year.

L.A. opens a nine-game homestand tonight six games behind the defending World Champion Cincinnati Reds in the National League West standings.

Last year, the Dodgers were 12½ back of the Reds at the All-Star break. Cincy eventually won the flag with an incredible 20-game spread over the second place Dodgers.

Obviously, Manager Walt Alston feels now is the time for his team to start cutting the margin.

The Dodgers host the Chicago Cubs for three games followed by the mighty Philadelphia Phillies, St. Louis Cardinals and San Diego Padres for two apiece.

"I think we need some improvement in every department if we're going to catch Cincinnati," Alston said. "So far, the defense has been the best part of this club. Our offense has been inconsistent and so has our pitching."

Even though the Dodgers have won eight more than they have lost with a 47-39 record, they have scored only seven more runs than their opponents.

"You can put a little of the blame on that on both our hitters and our pitchers," Alston added.

The Dodgers will stick with their five-man pitching rotation with Doug Rau (7-6), Don Sutton (9-8) and Rick Rhoden (8-0) slated to hurl against the Cubs in that order followed by Tommy John (5-6) and Burt Hooton (6-9) against the Phillies.

Chicago, which won six of eight before the All-Star break, will counter with Rick Reuchel (8-6) tonight, Steve Renko (3-4) Friday night and Steve Stone Saturday evening.

This is one homestand the fans will need to check game times.

The games tonight and Friday will start at the normal 7:30 p.m. time but Saturday's contest will begin two hours earlier at 5 p.m. Philadelphia will be here at 1 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. Monday with St. Louis scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and a special 1 p.m. start next Wednesday is the Dodgers' annual Businessman's Special.

San Diego will close it next Thursday and Friday at 7:30.

DODGER DATA — Helmet Weekend is slated for Friday, Saturday and Sunday with all youngsters 14 and under receiving free helmets.

Chicago Cubs outfielder Rick Monday, who made a great play at Dodger Stadium earlier this year in rescuing an American flag, will be honored in pre-game ceremonies tonight.

Southern California Olympic medal winners will also be honored.

The Dodgers have attracted 1,368,447 fans at home this season for an average of 33,377 per game. The Dodgers are behind last year's pace by almost 100,000 but the crowds dropped near the end last season because of no pennant race.

If the Dodgers stay in this year's race all the way, they are hopeful of drawing their second largest total ever behind only the 1962 record of 2,755,184. Last year's total was 2,539,349, and average of 31,741.

Alston needs only three wins to become the sixth manager in major league history to record 2,000 victories. The others are Connie Mack, John McGraw, Bucky Harris, Joe McCarthy and Leo Durocher.

Fred Dryer signs 1976 Rams' pact

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Starting defensive end Fred Dryer, who played out his option with the Los Angeles Rams last season, has signed a new contract with the NFL club, a team spokesman said Tuesday.

No details were disclosed.

'Everybody is capable'

Babashoff bristles

MONTREAL (AP) — Shirley Babashoff has blond hair. But that's where the similarity to Joan of Arc ends. She doesn't ride white horses and she bristles at the suggestion that she is America's last line of resistance to the charge of the East Germans.

"That stuff about me being our only hope for a gold medal is just a dumb remark," said Miss Babashoff, America's only legitimate hope for a gold medal. "Everybody on our team is capable of winning a gold medal."

That was the party line echoed by four American women swimmers and their coach, Jack Nelson, at a press conference on Wednesday. Only it didn't take into account that some swimmers are more capable than others.

The East Germans, owners of world records in 12 of the 13 Olympic events, are the most capable bunch of female swimmers in the Games' history. In almost every race, they have one super athlete who seems to have found a short cut to the finish line.

Ulrike Richter set a world mark of 1:01.51 in the 100-meter backstroke. Linda Jezek won the 100 backstroke at the American Olympic trials in 1:05.17. In the 100 breaststroke, Carola Nitschke's world record of 1:11.93 practically smirks at America's best time at the trials, the 1:14.46 swum by Laurie Siering.

The list goes on and on and where it stops everybody knows. Shirley Babashoff in the freestyle races.

Miss Babashoff, the 19-year-old Olympic veteran, holds the world record in the 800 freestyle and American marks in the 100, 200 and 400 freestyles. She'll be swimming in all these races, plus the 400 individual medley and two relays.

Her best gold medal shots are in the 200 and 400 freestyles, although she wouldn't say so. With a certain amount of smugness, she merely said her best chances were in the freestyles. "One of those events," she said.

Miss Babashoff, chosen the homecoming queen at Golden West Junior College, is 5-foot-11, 150 pounds. She can be very attractive when she smiles, but most of the time, around newsmen, she acts bored.

At the one-hour news conference, the only time she has made herself available to reporters, she smirked a lot.

She was asked which of her events she enjoyed the most.

"I like the 100 because it's short, and I don't like it because it's short. The 200 is the perfect distance. I like the 400 because I can go easy for part of it. And I like the 800 because I can go easy for most of it."

She said swimming seven races is not a problem. "In the nationals, I swam five events a day," she said. "I can handle two or three swims."

Miss Babashoff, 19, from Fountain Valley, Calif., said her goal was "to try my hardest, try to win a gold medal. I'll be disappointed if I don't try my hardest."

She downplayed her rivalry with East Germany's Kornelia Ender, world record holder in the 100 and 200 freestyles.

"I'll be looking for whoever's ahead of me. I'm not going out to beat her (Miss Ender). She's there but so is everybody else.

"To me it's not a big Babashoff-Ender thing. I came here to win a gold medal. Whoever I have to beat to do it, they're there."

'Phone golf lesson may help Carner bid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — JoAnne Carner, helped by a telephone lesson from Gardner Dickinson, bids to shake the fatigue that goes with winning the U.S. Women's Open and capture her second straight tournament, this week's $70,000 Columbus Classic.

"Gardner called me after the Open. He saw me on television and said I had my hands too low. I was going back to my old upright, outside swing," said the 37-year-old winner of more than $64,000 this year.

Dickinson, a former regular on the men's tour, is noted for his teaching ability as a Florida professional.

"I want to flatten my swing," said Mrs. Carner. To accomplish that, she was to spend a lot of time today on the practice tee, honing her game for the Friday start over the par-72, 6,250-yard Riviera Country Club layout.

Mrs. Carner sounded apologetic for her Open playoff victory over Sandra Palmer.

"It became exciting, but it was terrible golf. We were both so tired," said the seven-year pro, a former U.S. Amateur champion.

Mrs. Carner, second in 1976 earnings to Judy Rankin's record $100,000, concedes she faces an after-effect in this Ladies Professional Golf Association stop, carrying first prize of $10,500.

"I slept about 16 hours when I got to town. I'm really tired. I feel it most in my legs," she said. Because of her extra round in the Open Monday, the LPGA permitted her the rarity of riding in a cart in Wednesday's pro-amateur event.

Carol Mann, now sidelined with an ailing back, won this tournament last year with a 54-hole total of 207, nine under par over the relatively flat course. "I'd take 207 right now and never strike one ball," said Mrs. Carner.

Mrs. Rankin, who reached the historic $100,000 plateau in the Open, sees herself as a contender here if "I can get myself picked up physically. I see no letdown. I'm hitting the ball pretty good, but I'm not playing as strong as I have."

Jan Ferraris, runner-up to Miss Mann with 209 last year, is in the strong field of 102 pros and six amateurs. The only players from the top 60-money winners missing are all-time LPGA earnings champion Kathy Whitworth and Miss Mann.

The field will be trimmed to the low 60 scorers and ties after Saturday for the final round Sunday.

Solomon eats way to defeat

CINCINNATI (AP) — Third-seeded Harold Solomon ate his way out of the $100,000 Western Tennis Championships Wednesday.

Mistakenly thinking he wasn't due to play for several hours, Solomon helped himself to a hearty meal. Thirty minutes later he was on the sweltering court against unseeded Bill Scanlon.

Scanlon, a 19-year-old last-minute addition, rallied from a 4-6 first set loss to oust Solomon 7-5, 6-3.

"I thought I had plenty of time," said Solomon. "I thought there was another match to be played which meant I probably had two hours before I went on."

Struggling in the high humidity, he narrowly won the first set, then faltered. "I was lucky to win the first set. I was already starting to feel bad, and by the second set I was really sick."

"He was in bad shape," said Scanlon, a junior-to-be from Trinity (Tex.) College who won the NCAA title last month.

The victory gave Scanlon his first tour points since turning pro.

It was the biggest upset of the three-day-old tournament. Another surprise came when Sherwood Stewart, runnerup in last year's tourney, was knocked out by Egypt's Ismail El Shafei.

Top-seeded Eddie Dibbs slammed his way too an easy victory, beating England's Roger Taylor 6-3, 6-2.

Earlier, fourth-seeded Stan Smith and fifth-seeded Dick Stockton advanced with easy victories. Smith defeated Brian Teacher 6-4, 6-3 and Stockton stopped Terry Ryan 6-2, 6-2.

Six-seeded Tom Gorman, who won the tournament last year, downed Bobby Webb of Atlanta 6-4, 6-4. Cliff Richey, the No. 7 seed, beat Pat Cramer 6-4, 6-2.

Tray Waltke surprised ninth-seeded Kim Warwick of Australia 7-6, 6-1 in another surprise, while Henry Bunis of Cincinnati knocked out 13th seeded Byron Bertram of South Africa 7-5, 6-1.

Eighth-seeded Dick Crealey of Australia eliminated Sashi Menon 6-0, 6-3 and eleventh-seeded Mike Cahill of Eagle, Wis., defeated Peter Flemming, 6-4, 6-1.

Strings fall to Racquets

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Phenix Racquets increased their World Team Tennis record to 19-6 with an easy 30-17 victory over the Los Angeles Strings Wednesday at the Forum.

The Racquets won four of five sets in defeating the Strings for the fifth time without a loss this season.

Chris Evert, the Wimbledon champion, continued her dominance over the Strings by recording a 6-2 singles victory over Dianne Fromholtz and combing with Kristian Shaw for a 6-2 doubles win over Fromholtz and Rosie Casals.

The Racquets got off to a fast start when Tony Roche and Shaw whipped Miss Casals and Bob Lutz in mixed doubles 6-2.

Andrew Pattison gave Phoenix another win by downing Vijay Amritraj, 7-5, in singles.

Los Angeles' only win came in the mens' doubles with Amritraj and Lutz taking a 6-4 triumph.

Angel fans get jackets

ANAHEIM — The most popular special event of recent seasons — Jacket Night — will serve as a finishing touch to the Angels' next homestand at Anaheim Stadium.

The Chicago White Sox will provide the opposition on Saturday, July 31 when youngsters 14 years and under will receive colorful and practical vinyl warm-up jackets, compliments of the Angels. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Jackets are white with the Angels insignia across the chest in blue and red. Each jacket comes in its own handy carrying case and features a detachable rainhood. Small, medium and large sizes will be available.

Last year's inaugural Jacket Night was a sellout as 43,112 watched the Angels beat Boston. A second Jacket Night was added late in the season for those who missed out the first time and it drew 31,560.

Laimbeer to Michigan?

DETROIT (AP) — Notre Dame basketball player Bill Laimbeer has transferred to the University of Michigan, Detroit radio station WWJ said Thursday.

The 19-year-old Laimbeer, a 6-foot-11, 225-pounder, averaged 8.2 points a game at Notre Dame last season.

Espada set for Cuevas

WBA Welterweight Champion, Angel Espada of Puerto Rico defends his title against Mexico's Pipino Cuevas Saturday night in Mexicali, Baja California.

This fight will be carried live over KMEX-TV, Channel 34 beginning at 9 p.m. A prefight special will precede the title card at 8:30 p.m.

Espada, with a 39-6-3 record, including 20 KO's, will be making his second title defense of the 147 pound crown he captured by defeating Clyde Gray of Canada in June of 1975.

Cuevas, boasting a 15-4 mark which includes 12 knockouts, is currently the No. 3 ranking welterweight in the world.

Also included on this card will be a 12-round scrap featuring Gerardo Ferrat and Leonardo Bermudez for the National Lightweight Championship of Mexico.

Sports briefs

COON RAPIDS, Minn. (AP) — Medalist Jeff C. Thomas and Peter Jacobi, the second-leading qualifer, were first-round casualties in the U.S. Public Links Golf Tournament Wednesday, while defending champion Randy Barenaba went 20 holes to win his first match.

Barenaba, 19, Hawaii, edged Robert Holdstein, Woodbury, N.J., 1-up on the 20th hole when Holdstein hit his drive out of bounds on the windy, hot and muggy course.

Thomas, 25, Boise, Idaho, had scored 69-71—140 on the par-72 Coon Rapids Municipal Course in the Monday and Tuesday qualifying, but he lost to Frank Sexton of Barboursville, W.Va., 2 and 1.

TORONTO (AP) — The Toronto Star says that brothers Mark and Marty Howe have decided not to play for the United States team in the Canada Cup International hockey tournament in September.

Mark, a left wing, and Marty, a defensemen, are both members of the World Hockey Association Houston Aeros of which their father, Gordie, is president.

"I'm still too upset about the last international tournament two years ago," 22-year-old Marty told the Star.

The newspaper quoted Mark, 21, as saying that his doctor had advised him not to play in the September tournament because of knee and stomach injuries he is recovering from.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — World heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali will fight in Melbourne early next year, provided he wins his title defense against Ken Norton in September.

Ali has signed with an Australian syndicate to fight at the Melbourne cricket ground in January or February.

His opponent will be Jimmy Young, who came close to beating Ali in Washington in April.

The bout is being promoted by a Sydney advertising executive, Wayne Garland.

Garland said Wednesday night he expected a world record 150,000 spectators for the fight.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench, troubled the past two seasons by shoulder miseries, is expected to miss the weekend series with Montreal due to a bruise suffered when struck on his right shoulder by a foul tip in Tuesday's All Star Game at Philadelphia.

Manager Sparky Anderson said X rays Wednesday did not reveal anything serious.

"I don't think there was any internal damage," Anderson said.

The shoulder is swollen and painful. Anderson said he had no projection when Bench might be available.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Two Brigham Young University teammates from the Northwest and a pair of former Walker Cuppers are among the 32 players going into second-round match play today in the 73rd Trans-Mississippi Amateur Golf Championship.

Mike Reid of Kirtland, Wash. and John Fought of Tuolatin, Ore., the BYU golfers who tied for low amateur honors in the U.S. Open, won opening matches Wednesday. Reid, 22, beat Mike Wiechers of Atherton, Calif., 3 and 2, and Fought eliminated Bob Isaacson of San Jose, Calif. 2 and 1.

Doug Clarke of LaJolla, Calif., at 17 the youngest among the 219 tourney entries and medalist in qualifying play over the par-72, Spyglass Hill course on Monday and Tuesday, was an easy first-round winner. He downed Bob Harwell of Wichita Falls, Tex. 9 and 7.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Cale Yarborough looms as the favorite for Saturday night's NASCAR Nashville 420—the first Grand National race after a two-week layoff.

Yarborough won the Music City 420 here May 8, and has won three of the last four, and four of the last seven Grand National races in Nashville.

He also leads the point standings this year and is second to David Pearson in earnings. Pearson is not entered in this race.

Bobby Allison is entered but is a doubtful participant because of injuries suffered last week at a race in Elko, Minn. Negotiations are underway for his younger brother Donnie to drive his car for him.

If Bobby Allison can not compete, he will fall out of first place in the second leg of the point standings. Yarborough would pass him just by starting.

ATLANTA (AP) — Hugh Hendrix, a starting offensive guard on the University of Georgia football team, died Wednesday of a cardiac arrest brought on by an acute blood infection, school officials said.

Hendrix, who had been attending summer school at the Athens university, went home to nearby Decatur over the weekend and developed "flulike symptoms of chills and fever," a school spokesman said.

The spokesman said Hendrix, a 21-year-old senior, was admitted to DeKalb General Hospital and, when his condition did not improve, was transferred to Emory University Hospital where he died.

Dr. Marion Hubert, the football team's physician, said Hendrix died of a cardiac arrest caused by the infection.

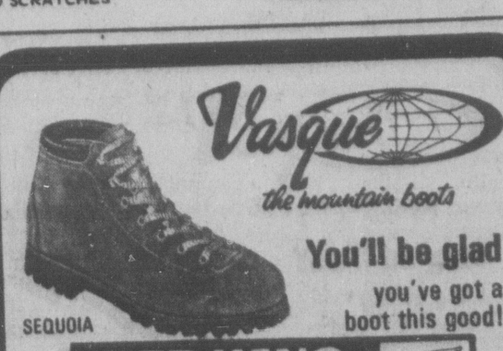

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kyle Macy apparently will spend the rest of college career playing at the University of Kentucky.

Macy had announced that he is leaving Purdue University, where he averaged 14 points a game as a freshman last season. Macy cited personal problems as his reason for leaving Purdue.

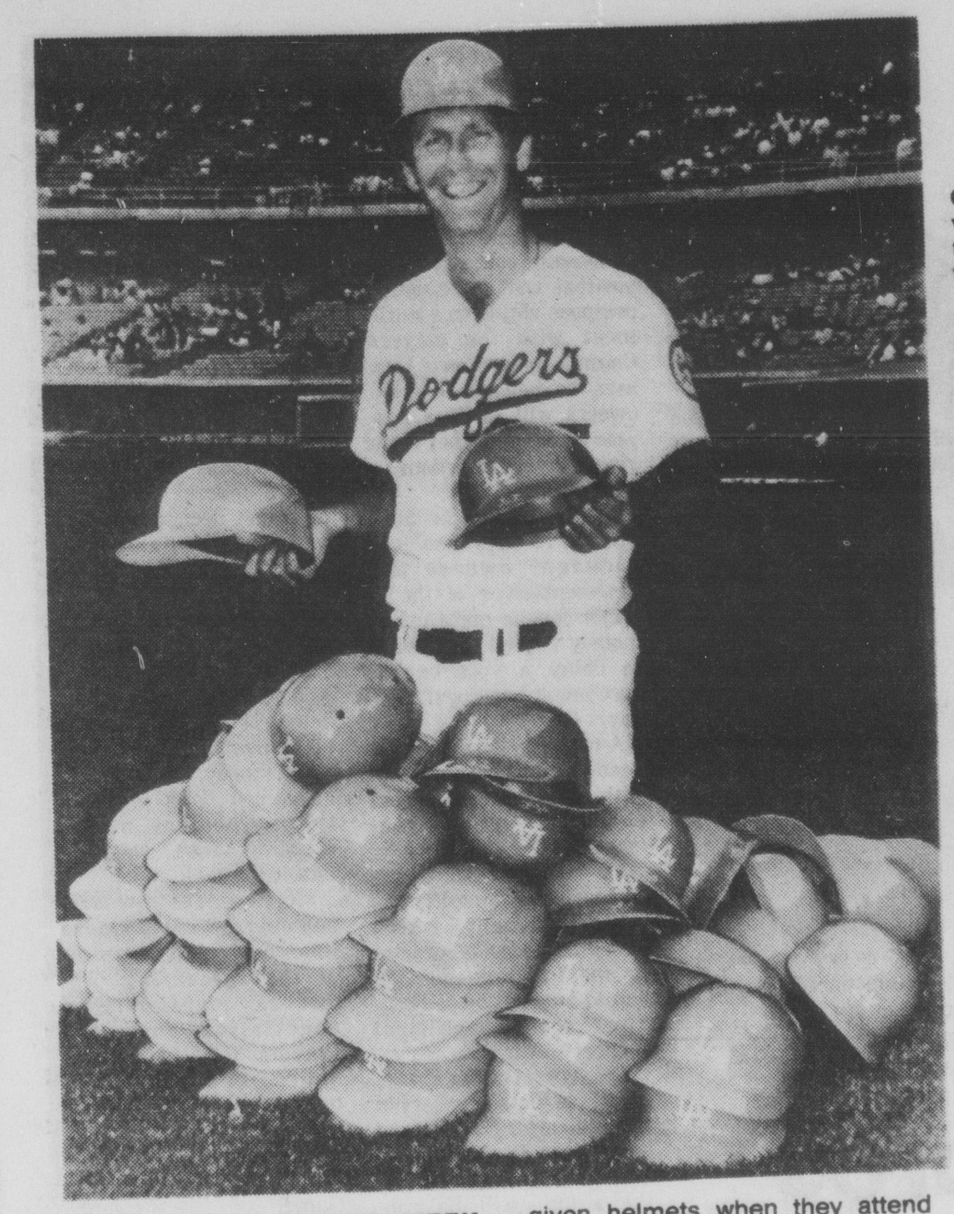

"This is better for me," said Macy of his transfer to Kentucky. "It was one of my other picks when I was a senior. I'm familiar with it. It was my first out-of-state pick."

"We're happy to have Kyle," said Kentucky Coach Joe Hall. "We have not gone into the reasons he left Purdue. We don't really know what his reasons were. "If he is fully released and has made up his mind that he is leaving Purdue, naturally we're interested," Hall added. "He's a fine basketball player."

Baseball needs pennant races

By Associated Press

Now that the All-Star Game is out of the way, it would be time to resume the pennant races ... if there were any.

Major league baseball's four division races are so one-sided at this point that they make Jimmy Carter's race for the Democratic nomination look like a cliff-hanger. Unless some of the front-runners collapse and some of the followers pick up the pace, the second half of the 1976 campaign will have them yawning in the aisles before long.

There will be other events, of course, to stir interest. Will San Diego's Randy Jones win 30 games? Will the New York Mets' Dave Kingman hit 61 home runs? Will the Montreal Expos finish the season?

But without a legitimate pennant race or two, baseball could be bad box office over the second half of the season.

At present, the best record in baseball belongs to the Philadelphia Phillies. The Phils, often maligned in the past, have steamed out to a 56-25 mark and a whopping 10-game lead over the formerly mighty Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

Is the pennant assured or will the 1976 Phils manage a collapse like their 1964 ancestors who dropped 10 straight games over the final two weeks of the season and blew a 6½-game lead?

"Winning so much can spoil you," admits Phils centerfielder Garry Maddox, "but all it takes is one defeat to remind you that you can't let up for a minute in the National League."

In the NL West, the world champion Cincinnati Reds are six games ahead of the runnerup Los Angeles Dodgers. The Reds have come through the first half of the season in fine shape despite injuries to second baseman Joe Morgan, catcher Johnny Bench and pitcher Don Gullett. The Reds have started the eight-man lineup that opened the World Series against Boston last October in only 17 games this season, winning 13 of them.

"Even at less than 100 per cent, like we've been the first half of the season, we're better than the other teams," said Morgan. "Once we get our regulars back, you'll see a different ballclub."

The Reds are 53-33. Last season they were 56-29 at this time.

"Considering the circumstances, there's nothing wrong with that record," said Morgan.

Unless, of course, you're a Dodgers fan.

In the American League, the rebuilt New York Yankees are the only club in the East over .500. They lead the second-place Boston Red Sox by a comfortable 9½ games and, at this point anyway, have nothing to fear but fear itself.

Yankees Manager Billy Martin admits he is surprised.

"I knew we had a contender," said Martin, "but how can you tell in the spring where you'll be in the middle of July?"

But Martin is a professional manager and professional managers are suspicious of large leads.

"This isn't the time to let up," insists Martin. "We've got to push harder and make things happen."

In the AL West, the Kansas City Royals boast a seven-game lead over the second-place Texas Rangers, and Manager Whitey Herzog is not about to make any changes.

"I feel what we have done so far has been right," said Herzog. "We are going to play the same type of game and scratch it out when we're not hitting.

"We are going to have to upgrade our home run production, though," he adds. "We don't have a lot of power hitters, but we are capable of more homers than we have been hitting."

Thomas now very friendly

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Duane Thomas, one of the friendliest players in the Dallas Cowboys' training camp?

Two teen-agers approached Thomas' table as he lingered over lunch talking to a newsman and asked for his autograph. The first offered a two-by-four inch card, the other a card and the front of a sports magazine. Thomas asked the youngsters their first names, then signed all three pieces.

Duane Thomas signed authographs? And chatted amiably with a sportswriter?

It was only a few years ago when he was Rookie of the Year out of West Texas State in 1970 and helped Dallas to the Super Bowl in 1971, that autographs were out. And so was speaking to most writers, much less a friendly chat with one.

This indeed is the same sensational running back of yesterday, only with a different personality. He has been in and out of football since splitting with Dallas in a money squabble in the summer of 1971.

Deals to trade Thomas to the New England Patriots and subsequently to the San Diego Chargers fell through for different reasons.

Then it was two years with the Washington Redskins with indifferent, and largely unexciting success. There was a divorce from the Redskins—money again—and Thomas jumped from the National Football League to Hawaii in the shortlived World Football League. He played in five games there, was released and dropped out of football.

Last winter, Thomas surfaced at, of all places, the Cowboys' offices in Dallas. Quite often in fact. He even attended a Cowboys alumni dinner. Last April he signed and returned to the Cowboys.

About the original break with Dallas, and some of the harsh words he had hurled at Coach Tom Landry, and club President and General Manager Tex Schramm, Thomas now says in his rather enigmatic manner:

"Perhaps there was something positive about all that, not negative. Landry, you know, is a very positive man.

"Now I am back in a positive position. The feeling in training camp here is good."

"Thomas has been very cooperative since he's been here," Landry said.

Thomas, now 29, appears to be in good physical shape and mentally mature. He speaks in low, thoughtful tones. In conclusion he said: "I think we'll have a good season. I don't see why not."

Two free agents sign Rams' pact

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams have signed free agents Bill Line and James Buckmon.

The new additions, announced Wednesday, brings to 63 the number of players in camp at California State University-Fullerton.

Line is a 6-7, 265-pound tackle from Southern Methodist University who previously played with the New Orleans Saints and Chicago Bears of the NFL, Hamilton of the Canadian Football League and Hawaii of the defunct World Football League.

Buckmon is a 6-3, 230-pound defensive end from the University of Pittsburgh.

The new additions brings the Rams' roster to 98.

Coach Chuck Knox said there the club will continue twice-a-day workouts, with the remainder of the veterans due to report by tonight.

Swim meet scheduled

The 18th annual Kiwanis Swim Meet will be held at Upland High School on July 27 and July 29.

All entries for the novice swim meet for youths and teen-agers must be turned in by Friday to David Campbell, Upland High School, 565 W. 11th St., Upland.

The meet will be at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday and 7 p.m. on Thursday at the high school pool. Included in the 33 events will be girls' and boys' freestyle for various age groups and girls' and boys' backstroke, breast and fly events, also for separate age groups.

Beam is the 'Turk' in Tampa Bay camp

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — "I am not very popular," says Dick Beam, an administrative assistant with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers of the National Football League. "Some players see me coming and cross the street; or look down as I approach."

The other day when Beam went into the locker room he heard tackle Mike Current holler to Dave Reavis, another tackle:

"Grab your playbooks, here comes the Turk."

The "Turk" in football talk is the bouncer, the one whose job it is to tell a player that he's wanted in the front office. And that means one thing. He's been cut.

It's always the same way.

Right after breakfast, Beam's squeaky sneakers are heard along the concrete walkways. Then there's a knock on the motel room door and for a player, it's doomsday.

Always, Beam says the same thing:

"Uh, Coach (John) McKay would like to see you in his office. And bring your playbook, please."

When the Bucs see Beam at the foot of the stairs after breakfast, all they can do is hope their name isn't on that day's checklist.

"It might spoil their breakfast if we told them first," Beam says.

"It's no fun. But it has to be done. Right now, you're doing the cut players a favor. They simply aren't up to it, and there's no use prolonging it."

McKay brought Beam with him to Tampa from his University of Southern California staff. He's the heavy around the Bucs camp. He's the one who inquires about the long distance calls and the broken lamps.

But when he tells a player the coach wants to see him it means:

—The airline ticket home already has been bought;

—The equipment room manager is waiting for the player to turn in his gear;

—The team doctors are standing by for the checkout physical;

—Accounting is at work subtracting the calls and other special charges from the per diem, the balance of which is later mailed.

And it means that Coach McKay is waiting in his office.

"It is my responsibility to talk to every young man we have to drop from the squad," says McKay. "I hear it is not universal in the NFL that the head coach do this."

Westmont AL's earns city berth

Pitcher Larry Arellano led Westmont AL's to a 7-0 win over Meat Cutters Local No. 439 recently in a game to decide second place in Pomona Southwest Little League's Major Division. Westmont AL's, by finishing as runnerup, earned the right to represent the league in the upcoming city playoffs along with league champion Lucky Star Market.

Arellano struck out 11 batters while allowing just one hit — a single by Tommy Mendoza — and faced just one real test. Meat Cutters filled the bases with two out in the fifth inning but Arellano got out of the jam with a strikeout on a 3-2 pitch.

Westmont AL's scored four times in the fourth inning on a bases-loaded flyball double by Steve Busby and a two-run single by Jose Parada.

Singles by Arellano and Rudy Brown, two walks and a sacrifice fly by Busby produced Westmont Al's final three runs in the fifth.

Meat Cutters Local No. 439 had appeared in seven consecutive city playoffs.

In a playoff game to determine first place in the Minor Division, Toyota of Pomona demolished Rod, Gun & Hobby, 21-8.

Wayne Darby drove in 12 runs with a home run, triple, double and two singles while teammate Aron Burns picked up 4 RBI with a home run and four singles.

Mario Casillos pitched the complete game for Toyota of Pomona, allowing just six hits.

Chino grid signups set

Signups have been set for Saturday for the Chino Pop Warner youth football program.

The signups will take place from 12 noon to 3 p.m. at the Chino Colt League field, located on Jefferson Street. Youths ages 8 to 13 are eligible to play.

There will be a $20 registration fee per youth and a $10 uniform fee. In addition, a doctor will be available Saturday from 12 noon until 4 p.m. for youths who have not taken a medical exam. The doctor will be at Chino High in room 101.

For further information, call Fred Combs at (714) 628-1841.

Eddings leads local team at track meet in Mexico

Ganesha High's Floyd Eddings was runnerup in the voting for Outstanding Men's Athlete in the recent 11th annual "Encounter of Youth," a three-day competition in Mexico City which brought together 14 teams from seven Latin American Countries.

Eddings, who will be a senior in the fall, led a team of 18 youths selected from high schools throughout the San Gabriel and Pomona valleys. That team, which competed under the name, "Mt. San Antonio College-U.S.A.," finished as runnerup to Cuba.

According to coach Cole Foster of Wilson High in Hacienda Heights, "The nine-girl, nine-boy team did an outstanding job when you consider all Olympic events were contested and our team was so small in numbers."

All athletes at the meet were required to be 18 years old or younger.

Eddings won the 100-meter run in a fine 10.4 seconds and the 200 in 21.8. He also teamed up with Terry Andrews and Lexster Cole of Pomona and David Paredez for first place in the 400-meter relay and with Andrews, Cole and Andy Grinstead of Edgewood for third in the 1,600-meter relay.

Andrews placed second in the 200, also in 21.8, but missed his specialty, the 400-meter run, due to illness. Other first-place finishers for the MSAC team were Grinstead (400 intermediate hurdles), Denise Holloway (shot put and discus), Anne Dandoy (1,500 meters) and Sonja Harding (100 hurdles and 200 hurdles). Walnut's Brian Jackson took sixth in the shotput.

In the men's division, the local team scored 48 points behind Cuba (88), National Institute of Mexico (61) and the University of Mexico (57). The women scored 70.5 points to Cuba's 71, giving the MSAC team 118. 5 to Cuba's 159 overall. Cuba won 12 gold medals, six silver and six bronze while MSAC took nine gold, five silver and five bronze.

The team, which will return home this afternoon, has been financially assisted by several area Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs as well as the National Youth Institute of Mexico.

Peacock fans 17 but loses

A total of 31 American Legion baseball players went down on strikes Wednesday night at Whittier Narrows as El Monte's Howard Logan outdueled Claremont's Leonard Peacock, 2-1.

Peacock struck out 17 El Monte batters while Logan whiffed 14 Post 78 players in the nine-inning game. Peacock walked five to Logan's three, and a base on balls proved costly to the Claremont hurler in the bottom of the fifth inning.

With two away and Post 78 leading 1-0, Peacock issued a walk and El Monte's David Hathaway tripled home the tying run.

El Monte won it with an unearned run in the seventh on an error, a sacrifice bunt and an RBI single by Brad Jones.

Claremont had scored its only run in the top of the fourth on Mike Davis' triple and a one-out single by Paul Sokolowski.

Post 78 catcher Scott Davis collected two singles in two tries and walked once.

Claremont is now 21-14 on the year and 5-2 for the second round of league play. Post 78 will host Montclair in a non-league game today at 5:30 p.m. at Pomona College before entertaining Pomona Post 30 in a crucial league game Saturday.

Knox misses films in preparing Rams

LOS ANGELES — When asked what would be different about preparing for his season opener, the Times Charity Game July 31 against Tampa Bay, Ram coach Chuck Knox said: "We won't be able to look at any game films. We don't even know what system they will use."

Knox, who is in his fourth year as Ram head man, is not taking the fledgling Bucs lightly. "John McKay is a fine coach. I'll guarantee you one thing, Tampa Bay will be ready to play."

The Ram rookies reported to camp Sunday and started two-a-day workouts the following morning. Among the sprinkling of veterans on hand were five quarterback candidates, incumbents James Harris and Ron Jaworski and hopefuls Pat Haden, Jerry Dyer and Steve Hamilton.

"I don't know how many quarterbacks we will carry," said Knox. "It all depends on what is decided regarding the player limits. The question of whether we will carry a third quarterback depends upon what we feel he can contribute to the team."

Haden, the Rhodes scholar on leave from Oxford, is looking forward to his opening confrontation against his former USC coach and wide-receiver J.K. McKay, his longtime friend and prime target during high school and collegiate days.

"The McKays are on their own now, I've carried them as far as I can," joked Haden. "I expect John will put a 35-man rush on me the first time I go back to pass."

McKay, whose Bucs are training at their own extensive complex in Tampa, has often called Haden the "best passer I have ever coached."

Now the former Trojan coach will rely on the strong arm of veteran Steve Spurrier as the Bucs enter their initial NFL season.

Tickets for the Times Charity Game can be purchased at the Rams office, 10271 W. Pico Blvd., Pacific Stereo, 637 S. Hill St., The Ticket Mart, 1303 Westwood Blvd., Sports Arena Box Office, Times Special Events, 212 W. First St., and all Mutual Ticket Agencies.

Cobras will hold tryouts

The Quad Cities Cobras girls track club is seeking interested girls for the 1976 cross country season. Tryouts will be held at Montclair High's track Saturday at 9 a.m. and Monday, July 19, through Friday, July 23, at 5 p.m. each day.

Club members are girls from Chino, Montclair, Ontario, Upland and adjoining areas.

Girls may try out in six age divisions determined by their ages on January 1, 1976. The divisions are 9-and-under, 10-11, 12-13, 14-15, 16-18 and 19-and-older.

Anyone unable to attend the scheduled tryouts may call Jim Allen at 626-8054 to arrange a tryout at another time.

ACA places four on team

American Christian Academy will have four players in the First Annual eight-man All-Star Football Game which will be played Friday night.

The contest, slated for a 7:30 p.m. start, will be played at Rio Hondo Prep School's Kares Field in Arcadia.

The North All-Stars are made up of teams from the Deltic, Hi-Lo and Tri-County Leagues. The South is represented by the Christian, Academy and Prep Leagues.

American Christian, champions of the Christian League, had only four seniors and all four are on the South team.

They are center Blaine Hammond, running back Rick Sherman, fullback Bill Mayberry and split end Jim Keith.

Tickets, priced at $2.50, will be available at the gate. Proceeds go to charity.

THE L.A. SKYHAWKS showed courage when they challenged the Mexican Olympic team to a game played last Friday . . . the young Olympians have been training rigorously for three years and are in top shape physically both individually and collectively. The Skyhawks, on the other hand, have been together for only a few months and chanced a humiliating loss before its new fans.

As it turned out, the Angelinos didn't have to apologize to the 9,910 fans who turned out at the Coliseum to cheer them on. The visitors had to overcome a 2-1 deficit to finally get the win. Two days later the Mexicans played the last pre-olympic game in San Francisco and defeated the Northern California All-Stars, 4-2.

The Olympians double and tripled-teammed the Skyhawks with such speed that the hosts were unable to pass accurately and often had the ball stolen by a rushing youngster. It took a half hour before the locals began to get their passes off quicker but by this time they were one goal behind.

First goal: Hugo Sanchez accepts a pass near the left corner, challenges the right fullback who retreats too much . . . Sanchez centers hard to a waiting Victor Rangel who slaps a shot to the back of the net past goalie Marine Cano. Time — 25 minutes.

Second goal: 48 minutes. The Skyhawks' Ken Fogarty recovers the ball near his own goal moves down the middle as space opens up in front of him . . . Leif Werneid pulls defenders toward him when he frantcally gestures to get Fogerty's attention for a pass . . . Fogerty sees an opening and slips the ball on the ground past the Mexican's defense . . . Jim Hinch follows the ball in a breakaway and puts the ball past goalie Javier Regalado tieing the score.

Third goal: 61 minutes. Mikey Cave executes a free kick and puts the ball to Jim Rolland . . . the shot is slapped away by goalie Regalado but Rolland follows up his own shot and forces Regalado to pick up the ball from the back of the net for a go-ahead goal.

Fourth goal: 72 minutes. Alfredo Navarrete makes a solo run down the right alley . . . he cuts toward the center eliminating two defenders with nifty dribbles and ends the play by nidging the ball under the arm of goalie Cano to give the visitors the tieing goal.

Fifth goal: 83rd minute. Rafael Toribio centers hard to Rangel . . . his shot is slapped away by Cano and in the scramble for the ball the ball ends up with it and easily shoots the winning goal.

A tip o' the hat to the Skyhawks for a fine performance and for providing local fans with an opportunity to see one of the 16 finalists at the Olympics in action. The Skyhawks play at home Friday kicking off at 7:30 p.m.

OLYMPIC UPDATE: The top two teams in each group will go on to the quarter finals. Group A: Brazil, East Germany, Spain, and Zambia. Group B: Mexico, France, Israel, and Guatemala. Group C: Cuba (replacing Bolivia who withdrew), Poland, Iran, and Nigeria. Group D: Canada, Russia, Korea, and Ghana. Our pick: Brazil, East Germany, Mexico, France, Cuba, Poland, Russia, and North Korea.

THE L.A. AZTECS will be trying to come up with two wins within a 42 hour period this weekend. The "tangerine kids" will be visiting San Diego on Friday to battle with the Jaws, presently resting at the bottom of the Western Division. On Sunday, the Aztecs return to El Camino to host the Boston Minutemen in a 2:30 p.m. kickoff.

In their last outing, the Aztecs had a relatively easy time in defeating the St. Louis Stars 2-1 before 9,910 fans but they only managed to get eight of the nine point maximum awarded per game. St. Louis kept giving the ball away all evening and the Aztecs had target practice with 33 shots on goal, but it took five minutes of overtime to get the final Best winning goal.

WHO WOULD YOU PICK AS EUROPE'S best team for the season just finished? The noted French soccer magazine "France Football" annually picks a Footballer of the Year for all of Europe and it is their view that Liverpool of England deserves the tag as Europe's strongest club on their record as English League champs and doubling with the EUFA Cup title.

Liverpool was the first English club to show strength after World War Two when they won the English League with Welsh International goalie Cyril Sidlow, Scottish International left winger Billy Liddell (of the cannon shot) and such trickers as Jack Balmer, Willy Fagan and Albert Stubbins up Front. Add a talented winghalf named Bob Paisley who is Liverpool's skipper these days.

Today Liverpool looks back to nine League championships to make them alltime top dog over Arsenal of England who have eight.

The L.A. Skyhawks' Ron Yeats was the backbone of the Liverpool defense thru a dozen years to be followed by current English International Emlyn Hughes and a few other players, some we saw at the Brazil/England match at the Coliseum last month in the persons of dynamic Kevin Keegan, Ray Clemence, Tommy Smith and Phil Thomson.

Paisley learned his trade well as trainer under Bill Shankly whose career record puts him in a class with Man United's Matt Busby . . . the latter responsible for much of George Best's success.

For his labors this year Paisley has been named England's Manager-of-the-Year . . . and deservedly so.

The other two European Cup winners were Bayern Munich who finished third to Borussia Monchengladbach in the German League, and Anderlecht of Belgium who finished two games behind Bruges in league play.

St. Etienne won the tough French League but lost the Euro Cup to Bayern so it was Liverpool who showed the utter steadiness of accomplishing the 22-team English League honors and the ability to stay tough thru the knockout EUFA Cup warfare. No small accomplishment.

HOW DOES LIVERPOOL RATE over the long haul in Europe? Fifteenth, say the experts who keep close note on the European scene. Who then could be the tops in Europe thru the challenge of Time . . . none but five-time European Cup champs Real Madrid who did it unbelievably in a five-year stretch, then added a sixth, or six crowns in nine appearances in the Euro Cup final . . . most memorable being that 1960 juggernaut that drew 137,000 to Glasgow's Hampden Park to see the 7-3 Real win over Eintracht Frankfurt in the 10-goal circus nearly everyone concedes to be the most famous game of all soccer history.

Brilliantly led by ex-Argentine international Alfredo DiStefano the Real Madrid squad at various times had the famous Frenchman Raymond Kopa, Santamaria of Uruguay, Canario of Brazil, the famous Hungarian gunner Puskas and Spanish players such as Gento, Del Sol among others.

Bayern Munich's third straight European Cup title this year has caused much debate as to whether Bayern will challenge Real's record but few think so with such great gladiators as Beckenbauer, Maier and the fantastic Gerd Muller all nearing maturity.

Here's how the rating went: 1) Real Madrid, 2), Benfica, 3) Barcelona, 4) Milan, 5) Glasgow Celtic, 6) Ajax, 7) Juventus, 8) Inter of Milan, 9) Athletico Madrid, 10) Bayern Munich, 11) Leeds of England, 12) Glasgow Rangers, 13) Manchester United, 14) Red Star Belgrade, 15) Liverpool.

En total they picked three Spanish clubs, three Italian, three English, two Scottish and one German, one Dutch, one Portuguese, and one Yugoslav team. Time alone will tell us if Bayern or Ajax will add to their three European titles and threaten the established record of Real Madrid who themselves remain strong (Spanish League champs again this year) and quite possibly capable of enlarging on their already accomplished record. The five in a row record could stand forever.

Soviet bloc uses pros

MONTREAL (AP) — Three days before the start of the Olympics, the gold medal for hypocrisy already has a cinch winner: it goes to the Soviet Union, and two Bloc buddies, East Germany and Poland, who have sent their greatest state-professional soccer stars to tear up the amateur kids at the Olympic tournament.

The Russian team includes Oleg Blokhin, the blond forward who was last year's European Player of the Year. He passes for an amateur here, with 10 of his Dynamo Kiev teammates, but Blokhin is roughly the equivalent of a Rick Barry or a Julius Erving, and by Western notions as much a professional as Leonid Brezhnev is a politician.

Blokhin and his friends, who normally play only against the rest of the world's best pros, East Germany and 10 of its players who beat world champion West Germany in the last World Cup, and Poland, with a lineup that includes 12 players from its third place 1974 World Cup squad, will be playing against the mild and the meek of Korea, Zambia, Iran, etc. in the 16-team tournament.

By comparison, the Koreans have six guys named Kim Gwangsok, Il Nam, Myongsong, Jong Min, Mu Gil and Sung Gyu; the Iranians have soccer non-persons like Zolfoqualnassab, Qelichkani and Mazloomi, and the Zambians the well-known defensive duo of Kaiser Kalamdo and Milton Muke. Against the Eastern Europeans, the matchups will make all the sense of the Boston Celtics taking on the Garfield Road Grade School.

London's Daily Mail called the tournament "Montreal's soccer sham" and Munich's Sueddeutsche Zeitung said it was "a farce." Neither Britain nor West Germany, two of the great soccer powers, have a team in competition, with the British going as far as refusing to use the word amateur in connection with any of their soccer players because, they say, there just aren't any.

But the Eastern Europeans insist their players are not professionals. Yet they live remarkably well—Blokhin has been shown in European magazines in a car worthy of a high party official—and when they play outside of their countries the competition comes from the European pros whose salaries sometimes rival those of American baseball, basketball and football professionals.

Perhaps because they would be outvoted anyway, the Western countries that could challenge the status of the Communist nations' state-professionals just keep quiet at meetings of the International Football Federation (FIFA). After a session Sunday, a FIFA spokesman reported "there were no appeals submitted on alleged professional status and thus no action. There are no investigations to initiate and nothing to add."

Besides Blokhin, the tournament includes such "amateurs" as East Germany's 31-year-old back Berend Bransch, its World Cup playmaker Reinhard Hafner, Lothar Kurbjuweit, a midfielder of immense talent, and goalkeeper Jurgen Croy.

The Polish team, which beat Italy in the World Cup, and defends its Olympic title here, includes Jan Tomaszewski, Grzegorz Lato and Kazimier Deyna, three players who would be starters on almost any team in Europe or South America.

In an effort to keep at least within hailing distance of the Eastern state-pros, some of the Western nations injected young professionals into their lineups during the qualifying rounds.

Spain put five men from Real Madrid, its greatest and richest club, into the Olympic squad to beat Turkey in an elimination match. The Turks protested, which got them nowhere, but the Spaniards were slightly shamed by the incident and have withdrawn their stars.

France has gone as close as it can to taking pros without actually infringing on the rules by selecting Michel Platini, who has played on the national pro squad, and Jean-Marc Schaer, a member of St. Etienne's European Cup runnersup team this year. But both men are technically apprentice professionals unde French regulations and thus eligibile for amateur play.

Brazil, another of the great soccer powers, has also respected the amateur rule, and selected an Olympic team with not a member over 23 years of age.

The absurd aspect of the competition—no team is given even a wisp of a chance against the Russians, Poles and East Germans—led in part to the withdrawal of the Uruguayan team from the tournament. The Uruguayans went out with their Olympic Committee president, Jose Vallarino, saying there was only one solution to the hypocrisy: ending soccer as an Olympic sport.

Owners delay contract vote

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Despite some vocal opposition and a decision to postpone voting on a settlement with the players, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says he believes baseball owners will ratify a four-year agreement that would give players freedom of movement.

After meeting for three hours to discuss the package, owners and representatives of the 24 major league clubs unanimously agreed Wednesday to delay a vote on the agreement until next Monday.

A majority of 13 votes is needed for ratification, with at least five from each of the 12-team leagues.

"I would say there was some strong opposition to the agreement, which didn't come as a surprise to me," Kuhn said. "I would say," he added, "that there's sufficient support to ratify."

The vote on the settlement, reached earlier in the week after 13 months of sometimes heated debate between the owners and the union, will be conducted by teletype message.

While details of the settlement have not been disclosed, the main points in the agreement reportedly include: free agency for players after six years in the majors; a limitation of 12 clubs with which a free agent can deal; draft choices as compensation for lost free agents, and an increase of $1.85 million in the owners' annual benefit plan contribution of $8.3 million.

Also, players under contract who do not sign new uniform player contracts after the agreement is approved will be able to play out their options. These players would become free agents at the end of their current contracts.

Under baseball's old reserve system, players were bound to one team unless they were traded, sold or released. The beginning of the end of the reserve clause came when New York arbitrator Peter Seitz ruled that pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally would play out their options.

Two federal courts upheld that decision, despite arguments by owners that baseball would become embroiled in bidding wars and only the richer teams could sign free agents.

Without being specific, Kuhn said the owners who voiced objections to the settlement were concerned about money. "Some of the clubs just don't feel that the agreement makes economic sense," the commissioner said.

Most of the owners, however, wanted more time to study the specifics of the agreement. The owners' eight-member negotiating unit, the Players Relations Committee, unanimously approved the settlement after the accord was reached with the players on the eve of the All-Star Game.

The 600 players also must ratify the agreement. Their votes are expected to be completed by the end of next week.

Charles O. Finley, the Oakland A's owner who has been stung by player movements recently, said he opposes the package.

He said he was against these points: a player being able to go to arbitration at the end of two years; a player becoming a free agent after five contract years and one option year, and a player being able to ask to be traded at the end of five years.

Speaking after the meeting, he added, "The feeling here was, 'Let's don't railroad this thing through. Let's take some time and have a look at it.'"

Busby to have surgery Monday

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The fight Steve Busby waged to shake off arm trouble and remain a part of the Kansas City Royals this season has been declared officially at an end.

He will undergo surgery next Monday on his right shoulder and the 26-year-old right-hander, once the stalwart of the staff, will be finished for the season.

The loss of Busby, who won 22 games in 1974 and 18 last year, is a blow to the midsection of Kansas City's American League pennant hopes.

In making the solemn announcement Wednesday, the Royals also said Tony Solaita, reserve first baseman-designated hitter, was going to the California Angels in what General Manager Joe Burke called a waiver deal.

Taking their places on the roster will be rookie outfielder Tom Poquette, who went on the disabled list June 22 with a broken cheekbone, and catcher John Wathan, being recalled from Omaha.

Burke said Dr. Robert Kerlan, who will perform the surgery in Los Angeles, had diagnosed Busby's problem as a tear in the rotary cup of the right shoulder.

"Any time you cut into an arm it's serious," said Burke. "We'll know a lot more after Dr. Kerlan cuts into his shoulder, but it is very unlikely he'll be able to come back this year.

"Dr. Kerlan has checked Busby several times. But this is the first time that it has been determined as a tear."

Through the first half of this season the Royals have managed to compile a seven-game lead over Texas in the Western Division with little help from Busby, who struggled to a 3-3 record and 4.40 ERA.

But nevertheless, the stylish right-hander, who threw no-hitters in his first two full seasons, was being counted on heavily.

"Actually, it's amazing for us to be ahead with our No. 1 guy not able to pitch," said Manager Whitey Herzog.

"But you have to face facts. Buzz was going the other way.

"We've won without Buzz since I've been here. If Buzz were well I don't know where we'd be now."

Herzog said he would stay with his five-man rotation and indicated that Andy Hassler, a lefty acquired last week from the Angels, might see considerable action.

Pincay at Del Mar fulltime this year

DEL MAR — Laffit Pincay, Jr., three-time recipient of the coveted Eclipse Award as the nation's outstanding jockey, will compete throughout the Del Mar meeting on a full-time basis for the first time this season. The seaside track begins its 43-day summer meeting Wednesday, July 28.

Since coming to America from his native Panama, Pincay has recorded more than 2,500 victories in less than 10 years, while reigning as the nation's leading money-winning champion for five consecutive seasons, from 1970-1974.

His finest year was in 1971 when Pincay topped all North American jockeys in total victories (380) and total money earned ($3,784,377). In recognition of his accomplishments, he was voted the first Eclipse Award as the best rider in the country.

Two years later he established a "first" when he surpassed the $4 million plateau for single season earnings, a feat he duplicated the following season. In fact, the 29-year-old Latin has earned more money (in excess of $26 million) in a shorter time (less than 10 years) than any rider in the history of the "Sport of Kings."

Pincay, who in past seasons has campaigned in the East in late summer and fall, has made only a handful of appearances at Del Mar during his career, his most recent being during the 1974 season when he rode Miss Tokyo in the Del Mar Debutante.

Opposing Pincay as he seeks to add the Del Mar title to his many Santa Anita and Hollywood Park crowns will be Bill Shoemaker, Marco Castaneda, Don Pierce, Fernando Toro, and defending champion Darrel McHargue.

Farm report delights Halos

ANAHEIM — During the past two-and-a-half years, California's farm system has developed 11 players who are now full-fledged members of the Angels.

Dave Chalk, Bruce Bochte, Jerry Remy, Ron Jackson, Danny Briggs, Dave Collins, Paul Hartzell, Don Kirkwood, Sid Monge, Frank Tanana and John Verhoeven comprise the youthful group.

However, the Angels' aggressive minor league system isn't about to slow down the production line.

While the names of Willie Mays Aikens, Danny Goodwin, Gary Wheelock, Mike Miley, Mike Overy, Carlos Lopez and Gil Flores may not be familiar to Angels' fans now, these youngsters could well earn promotions to Anaheim within the next year or two. They are responsible, in part, for the organization's best overall start in years.

In 1974, the Angels minor league system received the annual TOPPS award as "Organization of the Year." It was the first time an expansion club was so honored.

Last year, the system produced a pair of pennant winners and barely missed a third while, individually, two Angels' farmhands won batting crowns.

This season California's five minor league affiliates — Salt Lake City (Pacific Coast League), El Paso (Texas League), Salinas (California League), Quad City (Midwest League) and Idaho Falls (Pioneer League) — are all playing .500 or better.

Through Tuesday, Salt Lake City was the Eastern Division leader by two games.

Lopez, the 25-year-old outfielder, was the PCL's top hitter with a .370 average while Flores was hitting .314 and Miley had compiled a .292 average.

Overy, the big right-handder with a blazing fastball, had registered an impressive 70 strikeouts in 54 innings of relief, while post a 4-3 record and a 1.82 ERA. Wheelock a graduate from UC Irvine, showed an 8-5 record, six complete games and a 3.62 ERA.

El Paso enjoyed a comfortable five-game lead in the Western Division.

Infielder Fred Frazier was leading the league in runs scored (67) and average (.359); Aikens was the slugging sensation, topping the circuit in home runs (20) and RBI (77) to match a .337 average. Goodwin, the Angels' No. 1 pick in the country a year ago, was hitting .336.

Quotes

"There's always one name of the game—that is to win. You're not out to build character in this business." — Bob Bass, fired this week as coach of the San Antonio Spurs of the ABA.

Jackson able to relax

ANAHEIM — Ron Jackson figures his days as an apprentice major leaguer are over.

"This second half of the season belongs to me," said the Angels' muscular rookie' third baseman. "I've seen the pitchers now and I know what they're going to be throwing me. I hope to firmly establish myself here."

Jackson has gone through a model maturing process. Improvement has come gradually, day by day and step by step. As his confidence has grown, so have the accomplishments.

"I feel now like I definitely belong here," said the 23-year-old Alabaman. "Dick Williams stuck with me and told me it was my job. I was able to relax and feel more comfortable."

Ron's "greatest thrill" has been revised almost weekly. First it was a game-winning triple against Kansas City on May 29. Then his first major league home run at Boston on June 4. Nine days later he had a four-hit game at Detroit. And then came a glorious Fourth of July at Minnesota when he hit two home runs including a grand slam for an eight-RBI afternoon.

The soft-spoken Jackson is quick to make one point, however, and at a brawny 205 pounds,he demands attention.

"I'm a line-drive hitter, not a home-run hitter," he emphasized. "I just try to hit the ball hard somewhere a couple of times a game. The home runs will come from my natural strength."

Speed combined with that strength made Jackson a "blue-chip" football as well as baseball prospect out of high school. Ron turned down numerous scholarship offers from major schools to sign with the Angels, who selected him on the second round of the June, 1971 free agent draft.

"I was a halfback and liked football a lot but I liked baseball more," he said. "I had been playing it since I was very small and I thought I'd have a longer career in baseball than I might in football."

Ron traces his strength to working with his father, a brick layer.

"We'd work until two or so in the afternoon and then go play baseball with one of the community teams," he recalled.

Soon it was off to Idaho Falls and the Angels' rookie club. Ron hit only .208 his first pro season but then began a steady climb through the system. In 1972 he batted .274 at Quad Cities. At El Paso he hit .268 in 1973 and .328 the following season to earn a promotion to Salt Lake City for 1975. There he hit .281 until called up to the Angels in September.

Jackson made the Angels' Opening Day 1976 roster but after only two plate appearances the first two weeks he was sent back to Salt Lake for some activity.

"I was disappointed," he admitted. "But they wanted me to play every day."

His stay at Salt Lake lasted barely two weeks. Jackson batted .364 and quickly drove in 13 runs to earn a May 5 recall. He has started at third base every day since May 15.

A couple of specific goals remain for Ron. He wants to improve his batting average, particularly at Anaheim Stadium.

"I've been pressing too much before the home fans," he said. "But I think I'm gradually relaxing just as I did on the road. I won't mind hitting .270 or .280 for my rookie season but next year I want to be over .300."

Jackson also wants to skip winter ball for the first time since 1971.

"Moving back and forth is tough, especially for my wife, Marva," sighed Ron. "What I'm trying to do now is get established so we won't have to worry about that."

Colts complete player signing

BALTIMORE (AP)— General Manager Joe Thomas of the Baltimore Colts, who can be impulsive at times, plays a deliberate, calculating game at the negotiating table.

Never wavering from his policy against contract frills, not even for the likes of free agent Larry Csonka, Thomas has every member of the National Football League club signed for the 1976 season.

"I don't know for sure," Thomas said today, "but I'd have to guess that we're the first club to have everybody under contract."

In an effort to conclude all negotiating by the time training camp opened, Thomas took only a three-day vacation.

"Some of the players were persistent and the negotiations were tough," Thomas said. "But I thought it was important to get this out of the way before camp."

Thomas refuses to give no-cut, no-trade pacts, but said he occasionally agrees to an incentive clause to compensate for a super year or an unexpected performance by a rookie.

But, he contends, "The base salary should be the incentive."

Still, the man who has rebuilt the Colts in four seasons doesn't want to give the impression he doesn't reward talent on a team which won the Eastern Division title in the American Conference last season.

"Some of these guys are making a lot of money," Thomas said. "I've always been willing to pay what a player is worth, but I also have certain policies and I'm not going to alter them for individuals."

Csonka, signed by Thomas when he was with the Miami Dolphins, included the Colts on his shopping list after the World Football League folded. But he didn't even clear the first hurdle with Thomas.

California Seals head for Cleveland

By Associated Press

One National Hockey League franchise is moving, but the fate of another is still unknown after a lengthy meeting of the league's finance committee.

The finance committee approved the shift of the California Seals to Cleveland early today, but did not make any announcement concerning the possible shift of the Kansas City Scouts to Denver.

Bud Palmer, a former member of the New York Knicks' basketball team who is currently a sportscaster in Denver, has scheduled a press conference in that city today at 1 p.m., PDT. Palmer will reveal the status of his bid to buy the financially troubled Scouts and obtain a rental agreement for McNichols Sports Arena in Denver.

Mel Swig, the latest in a lengthy list of owners who unsuccessfully tried to establish a strong NHL franchise in the Oakland-San Francisco bay area, will retain a major interest in the Cleveland team. He has already signed a five-year lease to play in The Coliseum, a modern facility located in Richfield, a community approximately halfway between Cleveland and Akron.

The Cleveland team will be a member of the Adams Division in the Price of Wales Conference, where California finished last with a 27-42-11 record last season.

"We're very enthused about having a team in Cleveland," Don Ruck, vice president of the NHL, said. "For years, the area supported minor league hockey and we believe it will rapidly back the new Cleveland team. The Coliseum seats approximately 18,000, which will make it one of the bigger facilities in the league."

The California franchise came into the NHL on June 5, 1967—one of six U.S. teams to enter the league on that date. It was never successful on the ice or financially. Many of its top players jumped to the World Hockey Association after having financial troubles with former owner Charlie Finley, who operated the team as a sideline with his Oakland A's receiving the majority of his time.

The Seals made the Stanley Cup playoffs only twice in nine years, missing the last six seasons. The team's best record was achieved in its second season when it won 29 games, lost 36 and tied 11 to accumulate 69 points.

Last season was the first one that Swig owned the team. Attendance was up to an average of approximately 6,000 per game and the club's gross was just under $1.5 million—more than double its gross three years ago. But, he believed the 12,021 seating capacity in Oakland made it impossible to turn the franchise into a financial success.

Swig had hopes of moving the team to a new facility that was to be built in downtown San Francisco, but his hopes of remaining on the West Coast died when that project was voted down by the City Council.

A shift to Cleveland became possible when the Cleveland Crusaders of the WHA left the Coliseum for Hollywood, Fla.

Trading of draft selections and defections to the WHA hurt the club in its early years, but last season's squad showed promise which Swig hopes will win the fans in Cleveland.

Goalie Gilles Meloche is recognized as one of the league's top performers, but has been handicapped by a lack of support from his teammates. He and 5-foot-8 Dennis Maruk, who had a strong rookie campaign in the 1975-76 season, figure to become quick favorites in Cleveland.

Vince's wins LL crown

Vince's Spaghetti recently captured the Ontario International Little League (Majors) championship at Lundquist Field by taking its best-of-three game playoff series against International Association of Machinists Local 749 (IAM).

The league's Northern Division champs won the first two games of the playoff by scores of 2-1 and 5-4

A solo home run by Pat Pritchhard and a two-run homer by Ernie Espinoza highlighted Vince's deciding victory.

Vince's finished International League play with a 19-4-1 record while Southern Division titlist IAM ended its season with a 16-7-1 mark.

The new champions will now move on to the Ontario City Playoffs beginning Aug. 2.

Youth baseball standings

CHINO AMERICAN LL
(Major Division)

Fashion Carpet claimed top honors in the Major Division of the Chino American Little League, winning its special playoff game with Steer & Stein by a 3-2 margin.

Both clubs finished the regular season with 18-3 won-lost records, thus forcing the special playoff game for the right to advance in the District 23 Tournament of Champions which will be staged later this month.

Righthanders Greg Plutko of Fashion Carpet and Barry Graham of Steer & Stein staged quite a mound duel, with the latter appearing to have the edge on the strength of a home run by Kevin Boer and an unearned run.

However, Fashion Carpet put together four consecutive hits — singles by John Guillemet and Plutko, plus back-to-back doubles by Bob Grimmett and John Ellis — to push across three runs in the bottom half of the sixth and final inning for the win.

CHINO AMERICAN LL
(Minor Division)

W.E. Smith & Sons walked off with top honors in the Minor Division of the Chino American Little League, sporting a two-game edge of second place Beaver Roofing . . . In games over the final week, DUANE KIPP picked up two doubles in sparking a 12-7 win over Knittin Ambulance. GARY PUTKO collected two hits for Knittins . . . Knittins came through with a 15-14 win over Beaver Roofing as GARY PLUTKO and DON CASTONGUAY paced the win with two hits, while DAVID BOUWMAN had a double and two singles for Beaver Roofing . . . W.E. Smith notched a 13-3 win over A&W Rootbeer, despite collecting but two hits. DAVID BLADE had two hits for A&W.

Highlights

Rod, Gun & Hobby scored five unearned runs in the second inning and went on to win by the score of 11-1 over Market Spot. Kevin Williams and Gabirel Garcia collected two hits apiece for Rod, Gun & Hobby. Winning pitcher Tom Stancyk scattered three hits to gain the win. Joe Czimbal's RBI single in the fourth inning broke up Tom Stancyk's bid for a no-hitter.

Ray Andrzejewski went 3 for 3 with three singles and three runs scored as Host Lions beat Market Spot 12-6. Winning relief pitcher Guy Ryan also hit three singles for Host Lions. Wayne Parrish hit a double and a single and Mike Charles hit two singles for Market Spot. Guy Ryan's RBI single provided winning pitcher Ray Andrzejewski with the only run he needed as Host Lions beat Pomona Police 3-0. Ray Andrzejewski also scattered four hits to gain the win. This win put Host Lions into a tie for first place with Pomona Police.

Loyd Falgout scored the winning run in the bottom of the 11th inning as Straw Hat Pizza edged Rod, Gun & Hobby by the score of 2-1. This win put Straw Hat Pizza into a three-way tie for first place with Pomona Police and Host Lions.

Westchester has largest field

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — It might have been a nice time to take a week off—but the Professional Golfers Association decreed otherwise. So the largest field ever assembled for a PGA tourney, 169 entries, teed off today in the first round of the $300,000 Westchester Classic.

Sponsors of this 10th edition of the Classic, the richest tourney on the trail, might have been hard put to gather a representative field, what with it coming just one week after the British Open and a week prior to the Canadian Open.

But the PGA lists the Westchester as a Designated Tournament, one in which those players who are listed as designated—mainly specific champions of recent years—must participate or face a fine.

So they were at the 6,603-yard, par-71 West Course of the Westchester Cohntry Club— British Open winner Johnny Miller, Westchester's defending champion, Gene Littler, Canadian Open winner and two-time Westchester winner Jack Nicklaus, plus Masters titlist Ray Floyd, U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate, Tom Weiskopf, Hale Irwin, Ben Crenshaw, South African Gary Player and Arnold Palmer.

The only notable absentee was Lee Trevino, whose ailing back kept him out of both the U.S. and British Opens.

"It doesn't surprise me that the PGA made this a DT," said Irwin. "But for the money they have here, for a $60,000 first-place check, I'd play here even if the British Open was tomorrow.

"I am going to take some time off, maybe three weeks, after this tournament," Irwin added. "Sure, I would like a rest in the summer to spend some time with my family. But I don't mind being here one bit. This kind of competition and the money are just too good to pass up."

If any of the pros whose presence was required here didn't like it, they were not saying. A $300,000 purse can do that— even to those who don't have to be here.

La Verne contest winners announced

The La Verne Parks and Recreation Dept. has announced the winners of the "Play Ball with the Dodgers" Contest it co-sponsored along with the Pepsi Cola Co. July 9.

The contest, with three classifications of entrants, included throwing for distance and accuracy, hitting, bunting, running and pitching.

The classifications were "Tiny" for ages 9-10, "Pee Wee" for ages 11-12 and "Midget for ages 13-14.

Winners in the "Tiny" class are Todd Wessel (1st), John Rowland (2nd) and Mike Morrissey (3rd).

In the "Pee Wee" class, the winners are Keith Watkins (1st), Eddie Alajandre (2nd) and Brad Brandt (3rd).

Winners in the "Midget" class are Tim Wessel (1st), Carlos Guzman (2nd) and a tie for third between Roger Fortier and Fusebio Galeano.

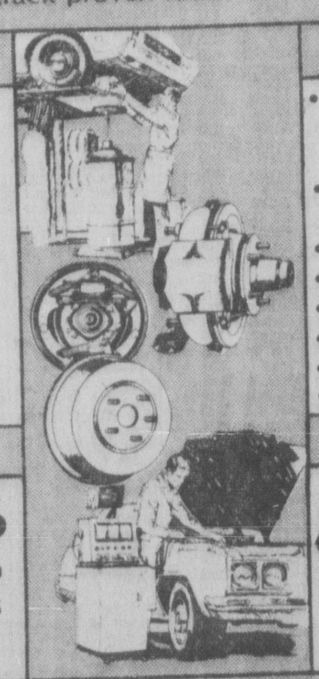

The first and second place winners are eligible to enter the regional contest where they may qualify for the countywide finals. Winners of the county finals will participate in the Southern California Finals at Dodger Stadium.

U.S. economy

Carter believes 'exercise' required

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In the Democratic tradition, Jimmy Carter believes that the best remedy for an economy that has been through a long siege of illness is to get out of bed and begin exercising.

In that sense he is like a good many modern doctors who assure the patient that, while the operation might indeed have been harrowing, it is best that he or she take a walk down the corridor the following day.

The Republicans, of course, have a very different view. They feel the sick patient must be nursed along slowly lest the incision reopen and produce all sorts of side effects. Easy does it, they say. Speed kills.

And so over the years you have a succession of Democratic candidates who insist that in the name of humanity the country needs to get moving again, while the Republicans, claiming logic and discipline, urge stability and restraint.

Carter seeks to combine the best of both positions, but in the most basic of equations, jobs versus inflation, he has come out unmistakably as an advocate of more jobs, while clearly recognizing the flirtation with inflation.

While the Ford administration obviously cares about jobs too, it has left little doubt about inflation being the No. 1 economic concern, and action against it the No. 1 economic priority.

In the Republican view, to urge the economy on, to create more jobs quickly instead of gradually, is to invite more inflation and, as a consequence, another bust. A bust in which those jobs would be lost again.

Ford repeatedly has expressed that position, and even when the country was on the brink of its worst recession since the 1930s he was, to his later embarrassment, considering a tax increase in order to slow the economy.

Carter's view of job-inflation is markedly different. In a very frank interview with Fortune magazine earlier this year he stated flatly his opinion that the jobless rate could be pushed below 5 per cent without more inflation.

Few Republicans are inclined to go that far, and thereby inevitably lay themselves open to accusations of apathy toward the problem of the jobless. While such a charge is spurious, it is true that Republicans in general believe that a higher jobless rate might have to be tolerated.

Carter believes that "if we get down below 4 per cent unemployment, you would have very high inflationary pressures as you tried to reach lower and lower levels of unemployment."

And, he told Fortune editors, the inflation rate would probably rise above 10 per cent within a few years after a jobless level of 3 per cent was reached.

The jobs versus inflation issue, therefore, is seen as one of degree rather than philosophy.

The Ford administration believes that right now we are producing the most jobs we can without generating an even higher rate of inflation. Go slowly but steadily, it states, and unemployment will fall in the same manner.

Carter says we're nowhere near our limits.

Again, there is nothing unique in these approaches, and many political analysts tend to see the Democrats as the party that takes the risks, and the Republicans as the ones who come in to restore stability.

It doesn't take much research to spot the exceptions to this — in recent years, for example, we had little inflation under President John F. Kennedy, a lot under President Richard M. Nixon — but there might be truth in it this year.

Carter believes there is a lot more potential energy in the patient and that we should encourage if not force it to exercise that potential, whereas President Ford fears that to do so would only drive the patient's inflation fever higher.

Today in History

Today is Thursday, July 15, the 197th day of 1976. There are 169 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, Italy declared war on Japan, its former Axis partner in World War Two.

On this date:

In 1606, the Dutch artist Rembrandt was born in Leiden.

In 1870, Georgia became the last of the Confederate states to be readmitted to the Union

In 1789, France's King Louis XVI was awakened at 2 a.m. and told that his authority had collapsed with the fall of the Bastille in the French Revolution.

In 1918, in World War I, American troops attacked German positions at Chateau-Thierry in France.

In 1958, President Dwight Eisenhower ordered 3,500 Marines to Lebanon during a Middle East crisis.

In 1965, the Mariner Four spacecraft sent to earth the first closeup photograph of the planet Mars.

Ten years ago: National Guard troops began patroling the Chicago West Side area where two Blacks had been killed and six policemen wounded the night before by snipers.

Five years ago: President Richard Nixon announced he would visit China to seek a normalization of relations with the Communist nation.

One year ago: The Democratic Party decided to hold its 1976 National Convention in New York.

Thought for today: A simple life is its own reward. — George Santayana, Spanish poet and philosopher, 1863-1952.

Bicentennial footnote: Two-hundred years ago today, at Castle Island in Massachusetts Bay, American Pvt. David How wrote that his regiment had orders to march to New York to defend the city against an expected British attack, but he could not go along because he had smallpox.

County may foot bill

LOS ANGELES (AP) — County supervisors reportedly are less than enthusiastic about a proposal that they foot the bill for continuing the operation of the municipal Bureau of Consumer Affairs.

A source close to the board said Monday there was little chance supervisors would agree to a City Council offer to continue operating the bureau if the county paid for it.

"Discussions thus far in the board indicate no interest or enthusiasm in taking over the city's costs," the source said.

The proposal would require a county outlay of $365,556.

In the current city budget, the bureau is set to be phased out by Oct. 31.

Covina band slates concert

The 67-piece Covina Concert Band, conducted by founder-director Charles King, will present a concert in the bandshell of the Covina city park at 8 o'clock tonight. Admission is free.

The Premiere Dance Band will perform there at the same hour Friday, and the PCC Jazz Ensemble will take the stage Sunday.

Tonight's program will include "The Great Gate of Kiev" from Mussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition," "Clarinet Candy," a saxophone quintet, "Swing Low, Sweet Saxes," music from "The Fantasticks," and marches and popular music.

"Trumpet Filigree" will be presented by a trumpet trio made up of Jerry Haynes, Mel Chambers and Michael Evangelista. Soprano Marjorie Hanson will sing selections by Victor Herbert.

Canadian-born King has been directing bands and orchestras for more than 30 years.

Laser show at Playhouse

The Laserama Studios of Claremont will present a laser light show, "A Bicentennial Fantasy in Light," at the Claremont Playhouse Saturday at 10 and 11:30 a.m. and at 1, 2:30 and 4 p.m.

Tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for children under 12.

The laser (light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation) provides an intensely concentrated beam of light capable of penetrating great distances and moving at high speeds. Beautiful changing patterns are created in the purest of colors.

The patterns are complemented by other optical instruments such as hexidoscope, kaleidoscope and cloud projectors, strobe lights and blacklights. The program is controlled by magnetic tape, an electric "brain," and an operator at the control console.

The light show is synchronized to a wide variety of music ranging from Holst and Stravinsky to Sousa and Joplin.

An audio-visual lecture on how the laser works will be given before each light show.

Growing older

Snub cynics, hail America!

By LOU COTTIN

In 1876, the Centennial restated our country's ideals proudly. The Bicentennial this year parades our country's accomplishments blatantly. We older Americans grew to maturity between those two Centennial celebrations.

In our schools in the early years of the century, we were taught why and how our country differed from others. "Elocution" was part of our curriculum. We learned patriotism through the recitation of poetry. We achieved a sense of citizenship through the singing of stirring songs. The words "freedom" and "democracy" brought a lump to our throats. The British called their flag the "Union Jack." France had the "Tricolor." Proudly, we called our banner "Old Glory!"

We older Americans wonder why children in schools today do not recite such verses as John Greenleaf Whittier's "Barbara Frietchie." Remember? " 'Shoot if you must this old gray head, but spare your country's flag,' she said." And Stonewall Jackson responded: " 'Who touches a hair of your gray head, Dies like a dog! March on,' he said."

As we recall it, in our school days during the early part of this century, all the songs we sang in assembly expressed high-minded concepts. Felicia Heman's "The Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers," asked:

What sought they this afar?
Bright jewels of the mine?"
The wealth of seas, the spoils of war?
The sought a faith's pure shrine

The ideals that we oldsters were taught in school have become for us a therapeutic antidote to the commercialism of the "buycentennial hoopla." Hambrugers in red, white and blue cartons do not represent the spirit of '76. We celebrate our heroes and our country's revolution as patriots, not as business people or hyped-up consumers. James Russel Lowell wrote of the father our our country:

Not honored then or now because he wooed
The popular voice, but that he still withstood;
Broad minded, higher souled
There is but one
Who was all this and ours — and all men's WASHINGTON.

And Ralph Waldo Emerson's "Concord Hymn" read:

By the rude bridge that arched the flood,
Their flag in April's breeze unfurled,
Here once the embattled farmers stood.
And fired the shot heard round the world.

His poem concludes:

Spirit that made these heroes dare
To die and leave their children free,
Bid time and nature gently spare
The shaft we raise to them and thee.

The heroes in our history books were not only brave. They were also knowing and thoughful. They were nonconformists.

Our generation learned our lessons from such wise men. During the Depression and later, many of us recalled those and other patriotic verses. For example, we who were early in the fight for black equality brought back to popularity George Henry Boker's narrative poem "The Black Regiment." This stirring poem described the heroism of slaves who won their freedom fighting during the Civil War:

Freedom! their battle cry, Freedom: or leave to die.

Ah, and they meant the word
Not as with us it is heard.

This, too, was the poem that begged the Union soldiers to accept the blacks as equals:

Hail them as comrades tried.
Fight with them side by side.
Never in field or tent
Scorn the black Regiment.

In the Depression days of the '30s, whites who called for black equality were a very small minority. But participation in that struggle led us to defend freedom of thought and freedom for the downtrodden on all fronts. We found ourselves supporting the CIO, which was then fighting the AFL. We demonstrated against Adolf Hitler early in his career and were later called "premature antifascists." We saw the political "left" as a true expression of the American ideal and were called "reds."

Though all of that, we were going back to our early schooling. Our teachers taught us that freedom meant the right to attack what was wrong about our country, as well as to cherish what was right and glorious about the U.S.A.

When we thought of George Washington, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, we valued them as revolutionaries. We were nourished by the writing of Tom Paine.

Theirs were the examples and the principles expressed during the Centennial of 1876. The poet Sidney Lanier's "Centennial Ode," written for that centennary, said it all for us. His words are still true today. And we senior-agers wonder why they do not appear in the educational material of this year's Bicentennial:

Dear Land of All My Love
Long as thine art shall love true love
Long as thy science truth shall know
Long as thine eagle harms no dove,
Long as thy law by law shall grow,
Long as thy God is God above;
They brother every man below,
So long, dear land of all my love,
Thy name shall shine, thy fame shall glow.

Older Americans will want to read this verse out loud to their grandchildren. It will help them to understand that our Bicentennial is not altogether commercial. The principles by which our country lives are in our hearts, not in our pockets.

Climber slides 2,000 feet down Mt. Rainier

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Dr. Frederick Hamley, of San Diego, reached for the cover of a cooking pot and slid 2,000 feet down a mountain.

"I should be dead. It's a miracle I'm alive," he said Tuesday after falling down the side of Mt. Rainier — a plunge which included a 75-foot drop over a cliff into piled-up snow which carried him so swiftly that he flew over 15-foot-wide crevasses.

Hamley, a pulmonary specialist, suffered a punctured lung and several fractured vertebrae, but he can boast being among the very few climbers to survive a fall of such magnitude.

"I was terrified," he said, from his room in the intensive-care unit of St. Joseph Hospital.

The mishap took place at sunset Monday in high wind at the 11,300-foot level, in the area called "Camp Hazard."

He had camped there in a party led by the Mt. Rainier Guide Service which planned to head for the 14,410-foot Rainier summit, via the Kautz Glacier, one of the most dramatic settings on the mountain.

Hamley said he was cooking for the climbers in his tent, which necessitated melting snow over a mountain stove outside.

"I got comfortable. I had my boots off and was wearing mukluks, which are slippery," he said. "I was carrying some melted snow to the tent when the wind blew the lid off. I chased it, and suddenly realized I was running down a 50-degree ice slope."

Without his ice axe, he couldn't stop himself.

The 2,000-foot slide — a vertical descent of 1,500 feet — took him down a snowfield and onto a glacier where he came to rest in avalanche debris.

Guides and a member of the party reached him 10 minutes later.

"His morale was great and he told us all about it and diagnosed his injuries," said one of the guides.

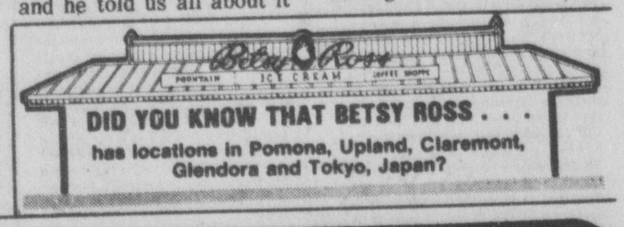

A group stayed with Hamley all night while others descended to Paradise lodge to report the accident. Tuesday morning an Army helicopter landed nearby and whisked him to the hospital.

More arsonist than fireman

CHALONS-SUR-MARNE, France (AP) — Volunteer fireman Jean-Paul Courtonne, 21, says he can't resist fires—starting them, that is.

"When I see a pile of straw, I can't stop myself from setting it alight," he told police who arrested him.

He was charged with starting 13 fires that caused more than $213,000 damage since May.

GM

More happy California Chevette owners talk about their cars.

Glenn Twitchell, Lagunitas.

"It has better carrying capacity than I expected. I'm able to put 4-foot sheets of plywood in back."

Nina Glover, San Francisco.

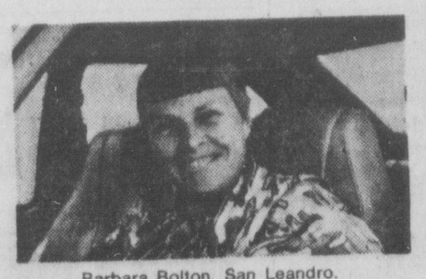

"It feels like a bigger car, but it has all the advantages of being a small car."

Nancy Bales, Pinole.

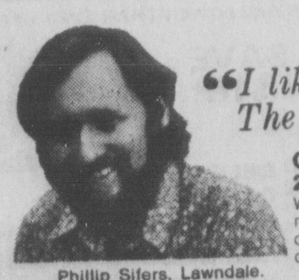

"I traded in a Datsun. I really enjoy driving my Chevette. It's easy to drive."

Warren Rainwater, San Bernardino.

"The ride—it's so smooth, it impresses me."

Barbara Bolton, San Leandro.

"I just like everything about it."

Phillip Sifers, Lawndale.

"I like the looks and the feel of it. The engine and the mileage."

CHEVETTE: 36 MPG EPA HIGHWAY ESTIMATE, 27 MPG EPA CITY ESTIMATE.
With available 1.6-litre engine, standard 4-speed manual transmission and 3.70 axle ratio. Actual mileage may vary depending on the type of driving you do, your driving habits, your car's condition and available equipment.

Jan Dahl, Los Angeles.

"It does everything I wanted it to do. I'm delighted. I love it!"

Chevette Chevrolet

It could make you a happy owner, too.

In every Chevette Coupe there's a lot to make anybody happy. And it's all standard.

ROOM FOR FOUR—more head room than some mid-size cars.
WAGONLIKE CARRYING SPACE — fold down the rear seat back. Presto: 26 cu. ft. of flat, clear load area.
FULL-WIDTH HATCH DOOR—opens to take objects a full four feet wide.
FREEDOM BATTERY—Delco's carefree battery that never needs filling.
30.2-FOOT TURNING CIRCLE—one of the shortest of any car in the world. Perfect for tight city maneuvering.
RACK-AND-PINION STEERING SYSTEM — responsive and easy.
17 CORROSION PROTECTION STEPS—Chevette is built with extra rust-fighters like wax base spray, epoxy paint, galvanized metal and zinc-rich paint primers.
DIAGNOSTIC CONNECTOR—built in to allow quick, accurate checks of your Chevette's electrical system.
DO-IT-YOURSELF MANUAL — in every glove compartment, simple instructions to help you do minor maintenance and save still more.

Nationally, Chevrolet has nearly twice as many dealers as VW, Toyota and Datsun combined.

No wonder so many people have good things to say about their Chevettes.

See your California Chevy dealer yourself, soon.

Excepting therefrom any portion of said land included within the lines of the land described in Parcel 1 of said Deed to the State of California, recorded in Book D-2560 Page 306 of said Official Records.

Excepting all oil, gas and other hydrocarbons and minerals now or at any time hereafter situated therein and thereunder, together with the exclusive right to drill, for, produce, extract, take and mine therefrom such oil, gas and other hydrocarbons and minerals and to store the same upon the surface of said land, or below the surface of said land, together with the right to store upon the surface of said land, oil, gas and other hydrocarbons and minerals which may be produced from other lands, with the right of entry thereon for said purposes, and with the right to construct, use, maintain, erect, repair, replace and remove thereon and therefrom, all pipelines, telephone and telegraph lines, tanks, machinery buildings and other structures which may be necessary and requisite to carry on operations on said lands, with the further right to erect, maintain, operate and remove a plant, with all necessary appurtenances for the extraction of gasoline from gas, including all right necessary or convenient thereto, as reserved by Transamerica Development Company, a California corporation, in deed recorded March 29, 1968 in Book D-3955 Page 185, Official Records, and re-recorded June 19, 1969 in Book D-1407 Page 591, Official Records, as Instrument No. 1776.

By Quitclaim recorded August 22, 1972 as Instrument No. 377, Transamerica Development Company, formerly Capital Company, a California corporation, released and surrendered unto the record owner the surface rights for a distance of not more than 500 feet in depth.

The street address or other common designation, if any, of the Property is purported to be portions of real property situated westerly of the intersection of the Orange Freeway and Pathfinder Road, with approximately one-half of the Property located northerly and one-half of the Property located southerly of a proposed westerly extension of said Pathfinder Road and with the southerly line of said Property bounded in part by the Brea Canyon cut-off road, all within an unincorporated portion of the County of Los Angeles, California. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address or other common designation, if any, shown herein.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession and/or encumbrance to satisfy and pay the obligations and indebtedness secured by said Deed of Trust, including, but not limited to, the payment of all or any portion of the unpaid principal sum of any note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust, with interest as provided in said note(s), advances, if any, made under the terms of said Deed of Trust, said note(s) or any other instrument(s) evidencing the obligations secured by said Deed of Trust, together with all charges, costs, expenses and fees (including reasonable attorneys' and trustee's fees) incurred by CONTINENTAL ILLINOIS REALTY, the Beneficiary under said Deed of Trust, in connection with the herein noticed sale and the exercise of the power of sale contained in said Deed of Trust.

A Notice of Default and Election to Sell said Property under said Deed of Trust was recorded on April 6, 1976, as Document No. 3460, Book M5299, Page 508, Official Records in the Office of the County Recorder of Los Angeles County, California.

There is expressly reserved to the above-named Beneficiary, the right to "credit bid" and offset against any bid made by or on behalf of said Beneficiary for the purchase of the Property (without the payment of cash) the total amount of (i) any indebtedness due said Beneficiary to satisfy and pay, as hereinabove set forth, the obligations and indebtedness secured by said Deed of Trust and (ii) all charges, costs, expenses and fees (including reasonable attorneys' and trustee's fees) incurred by said Beneficiary in connection with the herein noticed sale and the exercise of the power of sale contained in said Deed of Trust.

Telephone bills jump 25 per cent in four-year period

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average telephone user rang up a phone bill of $19.55 a month in 1974, up from about $15 a month in 1970, a new report says.

On a yearly basis, the average bill jumped $55, from $179.23 in 1970 to $234.63 in 1974, according to figures compiled by the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners.

The average 1974 bill included $164 for local service and $70.63 for long distance calls. The corresponding figures from 1970 were $125.06 and $54.17, the association reported Tuesday.

The association, which represents all state utility regulatory bodies, said the nation's consumers paid $8 billion to the Bell system and its affiliates for long distance, interstate telephone service in 1974.

That gave Bell a profit of more than $1.4 billion, or a 7.9 per cent rate of return, the report said. Local service also cost consumers more than $18.4 billion and generated profits of $3.4 billion, or an 8.8 per cent rate of return, the report found.

In terms of total revenues, the Bell System's 23 companies form 90 per cent of the nation's telecommunications network.

The report's data was based on monthly telephone company reports to the Federal Communications Commission, rather than year-end figures.

The Bell system challenged the report's profit statistics. It said:

"The earnings ratios shown on these sheets are of little significance and do not provide a valid measure of the earnings of individual companies."

HORSE SHOW — Julie Holznecht, a graduate of Cal Poly Pomona, takes her horse, Stuart Little, over the jumps as she prepares for second annual Childrens Hospital of Los Angeles Benefit Horse Show Saturday at Rainbow Canyon Ranch, in Azusa.

Cummings-Olmos vows are recited

Miss Haydee Olmos and Paul Cummings, both of Pomona, were married in Pilgrim Congregational Church.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Humberto Olmos of San Pedro Sula, Honduras, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Cummings of Pomona were married in a candlelight service read by the Rev. Benton Gaskell.

The maid of honor was Miss Maria Elena Olmos of San Pedro Sula. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Pilar Suarez, Miami, Fla., Miss Diana Castillo, San Pedro Sula, and Miss Elizabeth Freitas, Chino.

Standing as best man was Arthur Cummings, Tracy. Ushers were Robert Oftedal and Arnie Oftedal, Pomona, and George Fernandez and Rich George, Upland.

Flower girl was Catherine Ryan of Arcadia. Ring bearers were George and Timothy Ryan of Arcadia.

A reception in Pilgrim Hall followed the rites.

When the couple returns from a wedding trip to Santa Barbara, the newlyweds will establish a home in Pomona.

MRS. PAUL CUMMINGS

Joyce Brothers
Security blanket

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My son, who is almost 4, is practically glued to an old, torn blanket. He drags it around everywhere. My husband is embarrassed and wants me to bury it or toss it into the garbage. He feels that if my son is allowed to hang onto it he'll be a sissy and never stand on his own two feet. He has visions of our son taking the blanket to college or into a business office. The child cries and gets upset if he doesn't have it. I hate to force him to part with it. Am I being foolish? — P. K.

Dear P.K.: Tell your husband I can guarantee that your son will eventually give up this prop and I'm sure he won't carry it down the aisle or insist on having it by his side in high school or college. There is some evidence that children who are allowed to hang onto these symbols of mother's warmth and security perform better and are less strained as they mature.

I suggest you try to ignore the blanket. When your son wants it, let him take it with him, but don't make an issue of it. Try to encourage your husband not to try to force a rigid sex role on the child. Let your son grow up without pushing him into arbitrary patterns of behavior that really have nothing to do with his basic sexuality. He is male and he's not going to be any less male if he drags a blanket around.

In experiments with young children psychologist Richard Passman of the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, found that those who were attached to security blankets and were allowed to keep them nearby showed no distress. They were better able to learn tasks than those who were denied the pleasure and comfort of the blanket.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: About six months ago, our 18-year-old daughter went to a hypnotist traveling through our area and allowed herself to be used in an experiment. Now everything she does that we don't like she says is the hypnotist's fault because she doesn't have any control over her behavior. She's been living with a young man we dislike intensely. My husband says there's nothing we can do because she's not herself, so we can't punish her. — A. C.

Dear A. C.: I think your daughter is using her experience with the hypnotist as an excuse to do whatever she wants. It is an easy way to avoid accepting responsibility for her own actions. The fact is that no hypnotist can make a person do something he or she is opposed to doing, or feels is wrong.

The human mind is about one-ninth conscious, and about eight-ninths unconscious, so it is extremely suggestible and becomes more so under hypnosis. Hypnosis can be used in many positive ways and the object is to present a view that the patient is for rather than against.

I suggest you let your daughter know that you don't accept her theory. If she doubts you, you might get her some books to substantiate your arguments.

The point is that she should accept reponsibility for her own actions and not use a scapegoat. She has control over her behavior. She should recognize, and accept this and be prepared to take the consequences, whether they be positive or negative.

There's very little parents can do about their children's romantic interests. The more parents object, the stronger and deeper the relationship is apt to become. Of course, you are free to express your feelings about your daughter's lover, you can advise her and you can withdraw any financial support, but beyond that there is little you can do.

Brier and Sonkoly vows said

Newly wed Mr. and Mrs. Allen Brier have established a home in Elk Grove, following their marriage at Las Vegas, Nev.

The former Miss Linday Sonkoly is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Art Sonkoly of Alta Loma. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Brier of Claremont.

Chapter donates to fund

Six members of the Claremont - Montclair Chapter of City of Hope will attend the summer roll call Sunday at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles.

Attending will be Mmes. Suzanne Scates, president, June Gorman, Voda Ryan, Dorothea Armandan, Darlene Ryan and Eileen Peters.

The local chapter will present a check to City of Hope for $1,132, bringing to $3,652 the amount raised by the group since Jan. 1.

The next chapter meeting will be on July 29 at 8 p.m. at The Pines, 9550 Fremont Ave., Montclair. The program for the evening will be a demonstration of cake decorating presented by Mrs. Lorraine Westrope.

Chapter meetings are held on the last Thursday of each month and open to all interested persons. Additional information may be obtained by calling 626-8804.

Book sale slated by Juniors

The Junior Women's Club of Chino Valley is sponsoring a book sale Saturday as a benefit for the Chino Library.

Used books are being collected by the club members and a display trunk has been placed in the library lobby for donations.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to develop a new section on infant care in the library.

The Junior Women's Club is a service organization for women between the ages of 18 and 35. New members are welcome and may obtain information by calling Mrs. Mary Sandhagen, 627-1724.

F. V. Grange sets dinner on Saturday

Fair Valley Grange 752 has scheduled a chicken dinner, open to the public, Saturday from 5:30 to 8 p.m. at the Grange Hall, 11667 S. Monte Vista Ave., Chino.

The price is $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children.

August nuptials charted

Miss Deborah A. Donnelly and Donald L. Mears, both of Upland, will be married on Aug. 7 at Padua Hills in Claremont.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Don L. Donnelly of Pomona and Mrs. Charles Shaner of Calimesa. She graduated from Garey High School in 1971 and is manager at Cable Air Flight School in Upland.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mears of Los Angeles, the groom-to-be is an air traffic controller at the Ontario International Airport. He served five years with the military.

Benefit show scheduled

The second annual Children's Hospital of Los Angeles Benefit Horse Show will be held Saturday at Rainbow Canyon Ranch, 9300 N. San Gabriel Canyon Road, Azusa.

Sponsored by the San Gabriel Guild, the All English Los Angeles County Horse Show Exhibitors Association — B approved competition will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the main arena.

Exhibitors for Southern California will compete in the 22 classes for juniors and adults which include the two LACHSEA Hunter Seat Medal classes for riders 17 and under and those 18 and over.

For the second consecutive year, ranch owners Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gatti have contributed the use of their equestrian facility for the fund-raising event for the hospital, according to guild general chairman, Mrs. Mathew Klecker of Duarte.

Accommodations include a covered grandstand, a tree-shaded patio for a snack bar, an expanded parking area and two warm-up rings for practice.

Children's Hospital is celebrating its 75th anniversary this year. It was once a small building on a corner in downtown Los Angeles, a part of Chinatown that has long since been demolished for freeway expansion. The present, modern medical center, located at Sunset and Vermont Avenues in Los Angeles, is internationally recognized for its pediatric care, research and teaching.

Proceeds from past guild events have assisted in staff and equipment expansion. This year, the Hematology-Oncology Division is the recipient of funds.

Among the trophies to be presented is the award by Dr. and Mrs. Robert Dukes of Claremont to the Junior Working Hunters.

Local committee members include Mrs. William Halliday of Glendora and Mrs. Alan Winston of Claremont.

JOHNNY WONDER

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHERE DOES BALSA WOOD COME FROM?"

NORMAN MERTKE
SAN JOSE, CA

A. BALSA IS A LIGHT, STRONG WOOD THAT COMES FROM THE BALSA TREE WHICH GROWS IN ECUADOR AND OTHER TROPICAL AMERICAN COUNTRIES.

Balsa (pronounced BAWL suh) is a lightweight, easy-to-cut wood that is popular for building model ships and airplanes. You can buy it in hobby stores.

Balsa wood comes from the balsa tree, which grows in Ecuador and other tropical American countries.

It is one of the lightest woods known, yet it is very strong. The lightest kinds of balsa are about one-third as heavy as cork.

Balsa is light because it contains many tiny spaces that are filled with air when the wood is dried out.

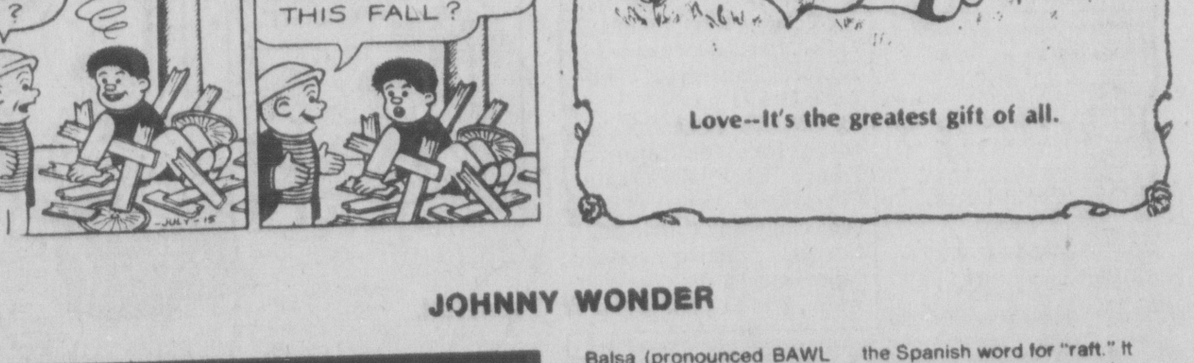

Balsa has a silky sheen and feel. The wood is white to cream-colored.

Balsa gets its name from the Spanish word for "raft." It was so named because the people of South American countries often used the lightweight wood for building large sailing rafts.

In addition to making model toys, balsa wood is important for making life rafts and life preservers. It is also used as a sound-proofing and insulating material.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.
